Ford's 71st Birthday.
Heart and Soul, But.

What a Grand Movie.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HENRY FORD was seventy-one years old yesterday.

Nearly sixty years ago, he thought he was old enough to earn his own living and got a job at two dollars a week in a Detroit machine shop, where he worked all day six days a week. Two dollars a week was not quite enough. When the machine shop closed at six o'clock, young Henry went to work as clerk in a jewelry shop that kept open late. There he made one dollar and a half per week more. On three dollars and a half a week he could live.

THAT WAS not exactly an NRA program, but it worked. Since he made that start Henry Ford has paid in highest wages to other Americans, skilled and unskilled for labor and for producing materials, THOUSANDS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS, and he has constantly raised wages, paying out to workers at least a billion dollars that he might have kept in his own bank account.

Henry Ford's success was not sudden. He had been old enough to vote several years before he earned more than five dollars a day.

But he worked steadily, and he thought and planned all the time. He is working and thinking today, as hard as he ever did, looking and planning ahead, and this country hopes he will continue to work and plan for the public benefit for many years to come.

Also, the country hopes that President Roosevelt will tell his NRA and other "New Era" enthusiasts not to pester Henry Ford or tell him how to run his business. Henry Ford seems to know how to run it.

THE SHORTEST great love song in history seems to be the one that Hitler and Mussolini, with heads thrown back, sang recently in Venice.

It's a complete divorce of dictators now, and because of that little rift within the lute, France and Italy are said to be drawing closer together. They were far apart before Dollfuss was killed. Political and other assassinations are never profitable. One, twenty years ago, started the great war.

THE GOVERNMENT is willing, and would like to spend about six hundred million dollars on its PWA public works program in New York, but strikes may prevent. Labor leaders complain that men getting 80 to 90 cents an hour should be replaced by more highly skilled men getting $1.45 to $1.85 per hour. There are internal labor troubles also, based on quarrels as to jurisdiction among different unions, two or more, claiming control of the same job.

MR. GREEN, wise head of the American Federation of Labor, will perhaps advise unions that this is not a good time for quarreling among themselves. Gen. Johnson has declared himself "heart and soul" in favor of union labor, and President Roosevelt favors union labor. But, both are even more "heart and soul" in favor of relieving unemployment and restoring prosperity.

If unions prove too efficient in blocking the plans of government, the administration might decide to get the work done "anyhow," and transfer its "heart and soul" to the open shop.

THE PRESIDENT and his son are on their way back from Hawaii, each having caught a dolphin just before leaving, and perhaps witnessed "the dying dolphin's changing hues," although it may not have been the poet's kind of dolphin.

The dolphin is an amiable cetacean, member of the whale family. The female brings forth one infant only and cares for it tenderly, mother and child lying on their sides at the surface of the water during nursing. This lets them both breathe, while baby absorbs vitamins, lactic acid, butter fat, casein, a perfect diet (drink plenty of milk).

THE DOLPHIN is fond of man's company. Every ocean traveler has seen schools of dolphin playfully following the ship. Old-fashioned sailors would not harm a dolphin, believing it to be the mariner's friend, warning him of ap-

DOLLFUSS ASSASSINS HANGED

142 POLICE LOSE MOTOR BEATS

Ax Hits Inspectors, Lieutenants in Shakeup

A police shakeup, described by veterans as the biggest in the history of the department, was announced today by Acting Police Supt. Jacob F. Dorsey.

One hundred and seventy-five policemen, from inspectors down to beat men, were affected.

Hardest hit were the motorized police. In answer to recent criticism, every patrolman—142 in all—of the emergency cars, the scout cars and the radio cruisers, was taken off his machine and sent back to walking a beat.

Inspector Andrew Charles, who a few short months ago was assistant police superintendent, was retired on pension.

Lieuts. William Madine, Philip Kumpf and John Vandell and Sergt. John Nugent, magistrate's clerk on the South Side, retired voluntarily on pension.

Lieut. Albert Jacks was promoted to inspector, and put in charge of the traffic division.

Sergt. John Vincent was made an inspector and assigned to the downtown and hill districts.

Patrolman Louis Keebler was named a lieutenant in the traffic division.

Patrolman Sylvester Stoehr was appointed a sergeant in the traffic division.

Sergt. Edmund Bishop, who was retired on pension two weeks ago by the Civil Service Commission, was reinstated as a city detective and sent back to his old job as chief operator in the Bertillon division.

Numerous other lieutenants and patrolmen were transferred.

Both Dorsey and Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell were

POLICE PROBER BARES THREAT

Attorney Dennis Mulvihill, counsel for the Police Research Commission, revealed today that he was warned that if the commission "went after" Billie Scheible, the Oakland ballady, then certain accusations would be levelled at James N. Hoey, the former police inspector, who is a member of the commission.

Mulvihill read into the record, at today's meeting of the commission, a statement which said in part:

"I was advised that if the Police Commission went after Billie Scheible, then they would go after Hoey. I was not informed as to the identity of 'they.' But I was told they would try to discredit the commission by alleging that vice existed in that district when Hoey was inspector.

"I told Mr. Hoey of this. Mr. Hoey said, 'If anybody talks to you that way again just say, "If Hoey were ever involved in any police graft, then the public ought to know about it."'

Coast Guards Dash to Steamer's Rescue After 'Tip'

BULLETIN.

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP.)—An anonymous tip that pirates were aboard the excursion steamer City of Grand Rapids bound for Milwaukee sent coast guards after the vessel today, but its master radioed a message, "Everything okay."

The coast guards, nevertheless, were ordered to nvestgate on the theory that bandts might have forced the shp's operator to snd the reassurng message.

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP.)—Coast Guard patrols from Milwaukee, Racine and Chicago roared out into Lake Michigan at noon today on reports that the lake boat City of Grand Rapids had been boarded by six pirates.

Lieut. S. F. Gray, communications officer of the Chicago Coast Guard, said the patrol boat Rush from Chicago and the patrol boat Walcott from Milwaukee were carrying 40 men to the lake steamer and that six speedboats would follow them.

The steamer left Chicago at 10:10 a. m. today, bound for Milwaukee, and was about 30 miles north, Lieut. Gray said.

The Coast Guard officer said the report was turned into Coast Guard headquarters by "an excited man who phoned." Lieut. Gray said:

"We can't tell whether it's a real tip or a joke, but the boats will investigate anyway."

MILK PRICE UP TOMORROW

Boosts in the prices of milk, cream and buttermilk, effective tomorrow, were announced today by the Greater Pittsburgh Milk Dealers' Association.

Milk, delivered, is increased one cent to 11 cents a quart, seven cents a pint; cream, from 40 to 45 cents a quart; from 23 to 25 cents a pint; from 13 to 14 cents a half-pint; buttermilk from 8 to 9 cents a quart.

W. C. Zeuger, spokesman for the association, explained that one reason for the rise was the complaint of producers that their share of the consumers' price was too small. More than half of the boost goes to the producer, Zeuger said.

$3,000 Door Missing From Cody's Home

HOLLYWOOD, July 31.—(AP.)—Deans S. Bedilion, auctioneer, disclosed today that the famous autograph door which had been a prize of Lew Cody, late film star, is missing from the actor's Beverly Hills home.

The door, into which the autographs of more than 1,000 celebrities were carved, was valued by Bedilion at $3,000. It was at the entrance to a den in Cody's home, and friends noticed it had been lifted from its hinges and carted away.

Film Girl Missing After Auto Ride

DETROIT, July 31.—(INS.)—Police today were searching for 17-year-old Betty Greenwood, screen player, who disappeared from a local hotel after she had accepted a ride with an unnamed man.

Miss Greenwoood had appeared in "Harold Teen" and "We're not Dressing" and also on the stage in Carrol's "Vanities."

28-Once Infant In Fight for Life

PLYMOUTH, N. H., July 31.—(INS.)—Heating pads were used at Plymouth Memorial Hospital today in an effort to keep alive an infant weighing a pound and three-quarters, the son of Mrs. James Currier.

Dr. L. A. Middleton said the baby was the smallest ever born at the hospital.

EUGENIC LAW FOUGHT BY CONVICTS

582 in Oklahoma Pen Join Criminal, Wife In Court Test

International News Service.

M'ALESTER, Okla., July 31.—George Winkler and his attractive young wife want to have children, but the State of Oklahoma says that must not be done.

Winkler, convicted three times of felonies, is one of 682 "habitual criminal" convicts at the state prison here who come under the provisions of the recently enacted sterilization law.

LAW UPHELD

The State Board of Affairs following a hearing at the prison designed as a test case of the act, in which Winkler volunteered as the defendant, ruled that the law was legal and constitutional and should be enforced.

Winkler said:

"When I have paid my debt to society I want to take up where I left off and make a home for my wife. And, believe me, if there is anything that will make a fellow go straight it is a little child.

"I have always loved children and I don't believe a home is complete without them. I would hate to go out of this place with the stigma of enforced sterilization."

WIFE VOICES PLEA

Winkler is due to be released from the prison next year. He was visited by his wife during the hearing. Mrs. Winkler said:

"It is our plan to re-establish our home and rear a family. I think it is most unfair to George after he has satisfied the law to have to face the humiliation of sterilization. It would be a crime to society as well as his family. I do hope and pray that he is returned to me without that stigma upon him."

Winkler, through attorneys engaged with funds raised by the prison convicts among themselves, filed notice of appeal of the board's decision to the District Court. The case is expected

NEW BOMBINGS ROCK AUSTRIA

By WADE WERNER

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

VIENNA, July 31.—New bombing outrages harassed Austria's Fascist government today as it moved toward stern punishment of revolutionary Nazis.

Their revolt all but stamped out, Nazis are replacing bullets with bombs in a renewed campaign of terror. Explosions were reported in the provinces and in Vienna.

The first decree of the new government headed by Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg aims a heavy blow at Nazis.

It orders them placed in concentration camps at hard labor, their property to be confiscated. The measure is more drastic than any used by Dollfuss in crushing Socialists last winter and spring.

A government communique says it is mopping up the revolt in the provinces, including Carinthia, where Nazis established a stronghold. Many are said to be fleeing into Jugo-Slavia. Italy's army is encamped nearby on the border.

The government sought to to strengthen its forces by naming Prince Ernest von Starhemberg, present vice chancellor and leader of the Fascist home guard, leader of the Fatherland Front, in succession to Dollfuss.

Stefan Tauschitz, who was recalled as minister to Germany by Dollfuss only three weeks ago to become undersecretary for foreign affairs, has been instructed to return to Berlin as minister. This is regarded as a peace gesture toward Germany.

FIELD MARSHAL VON HINDENBURG . . . . . SERIOUSLY ILL

Relapse Followed by Rally, but End Seems Near

FREYSTADT, Germany, July 31.—(AP.)—The condition of Paul von Hindenburg, 86-year-old President of Germany, grew suddenly worse today. Physicians said they feared the worst.

Von Hindenburg is at his summer estate at Neudeck, near here. He was reported yesterday to be suffering from an old disorder of the prostate gland.

An official communique said that during recent days a slight bodily infirmity had been noticeable, but that the President had recovered from this sufficiently to attend to business yesterday.

During the night, however, the communique added, his condition suddenly grew worse. The statement said:

"In view of the advanced age of the Field Marshal General serious apprehension is well founded.

"Physicians in charge are all present at Neudeck. A continuous bulletin service will be maintained."

Horse Theft Charge Against Mix Dropped

The charge, filed in 1914, involved a horse which Miller claimed Mix took from the ranch without permission, but which the cowboy asserted was lent and had to be destroyed because of a broken leg.

NAZI PAIR GUILTY IN REVOLT

Planetta, Holzweber First of Party to Pay With Lives

International News Service.

VIENNA, July 31.—Otto Planetta and Franz Holzweber were executed today.

They were hanged within three hours after a court-martial had found Planetta guilty of the murder of the late Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss and Holzweber guilty of high treason.

The men were hanged at 4:35 o'clock (11:35 a. m. Pittsburgh time). They had been found guilty shortly after 1:30 o'clock.

CLEMENCY DENIED

The sentences were carried out after President Wilhelm Miklas had refused their plea for clemency. Since there was no appeal from a court-martial verdict, a presidential pardon was their only hope for life.

Although Planetta and Holzweber were the first of the Nazi rebels to di, 153 other Nazis arrested since the beginning of the attempt to overthtrow the Dollfuss government by force, face trial by military tribunal. All Austria, and most of the rest of the world, was waiting to learn whether death also would be the fate of these other rebels.

Holzweber was the first to die on the hangman's gibbet. His death struggle lasted seven minutes. Planetta was hanged immediately afterward.

BRIEF FAREWELL

Neither of the condemned men made any statement as they went to the gallows. Each had been permitted to see his wife for a brief moment of farewell.

Only officials were admitted to the courtyard where the death sentence was carried out.

Planetta's wife was on the verge of a breakdown as her husband went to his death. From a room in the court building where the trial was held, to which she was escorted by Planetta's lawyer after bidding him farewell, her voice could be heard, crying hysterically:

"Why have you done this? Why do you make two families unhappy?"

The execution of Planetta and Holzweber climaxed a week of bloody strife that swept throughout all of Austria. As they went to their death Vienna and the country were quiet. Some thought the quiet ominously portentious of new trouble if the Nazis carry out their threats to revenge the deaths of their comrades.

WEEP WITH WIVES

Planetta's counsel, Dr. Emanuel Brauneggg, gave International News Service details of the last hours of the two doomed men. He said:

"Both Planetta and Holzweber were calm. Only when their wives came to the death cell both men broke down and wept together.

"Holzweber told his wife to give his son a good religious education and make a man out of him. When asked whether they wanted religious comfort before

STORM TROOPS' HOLIDAY ENDS

MUNICH, July 31.—(AP.)—After a conference with Chancellor Hitler, Viktor Lutze, chief of staff of the Nazi Storm Troops, announced today that his Storm Troopers will return tomorrow to duty after a month's holiday.

It was in the "blood purge" of June 30 that Capt. Ernest Roehm, then chief of staff, together with a number of minor Storm Troop leaders met death under the accusation of being a traitor just as the vacation, now closing, began.

For the last month, the Storm Troopers, who are permitted to wear brown uniforms, have been strikingly missing from the streets.

British Tennis Stars Retain Davis Cup

WIMBLEDON, England, July 31.—(AP.)—Great Britain today retained the Davis Cup, historic international tennis trophy, as Fred Perry, ace of the British forces, defeated Frank X. Shields, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 15-13, in a desperately fought fourth match to clinch the series with three victories.

In the last match of the series, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., playing listlessly, lost to Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, 6-4, 6-0, 6-8, 6-3, to make the final match score England 4, United States 1.

Perry won out in one of the longest and most bitterly-fought sets of cup play, the long fourth, to register Great Britain's seventh victory in the over a quarter of a century of Davis Cup competition.

They won the cup from France last year, halting a Tri-Color reign that had extended since 1927 when the United States lost the cup to France. It was the fifth time the United States had been in the challenge round since the cup was lost.

Both players were near exhaustion at the end as they alternated in breaking each other's service and then holding their own. The fourth was the second longest set ever played in the challenge round. The longest was the 17-15 first set Maurice McLoughlin won from Norman Brookes, of Australia, in the challenge round of 1914 between the United States and Australia.

Dollfuss on 'Long Trip,' Widow Sobs to Children

Then she embraced Signora Mussolini and thanked her tenderly with great emotion for having cared for the two children during the last few days of tragedy since their father was shot down July 25 in the chancellery in Vienna.

They went with her and Signora Mussolini, accompanied by a group of high local officials, to the Dollfuss' private villa of Santangelo.

Immediately after arriving there, the mother undertook the pitiful task of explaining to the children why their father did not come back with her. She told them he had gone on a long, long journey and that they could not see him for a very long time.

She told them they must pray devoutly for him during that journey and that they must remember his gallant figure always.

They sobbed and she sent them on to their nursery. She, herself, retired to her own apartment to pray.

'KINGFISH' CALLS OUT TROOPS IN 'WAR' ON WALMSLEY

VOTING LISTS SEIZED BY STATE

Huey Long's Foe Calls Move 'Opera Bouffe Of Mad Hatter'

NEW ORLEANS, July 31. —(AP.)—Senator Huey P. Long, directed a pre-election attack on the city administration today, his National Guardsmen holding the New Orleans registration office under partial martial law.

More than a score of guardsmen appeared at the City Hall Annex last night, battered in the door and took possession of the lists of names of qualified voters for the September congressional primary.

Gov. O. K. Allen, a Long supporter, issued a proclamation establishing partial martial law and explained that the action was taken to protect the registrar's office from "insult and intimidation."

MAYOR'S CHARGES

Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, bitter enemy of the Louisanna "Kingfish," sat in his City Hall office across the street at the time. He said:

"It is apparent that they want to scratch the names from the registration books under the protection of the militia. They already control the registration office here through state appointment of the local registrar."

The night raid—"it's just a tea party," said one of the militiamen on guard at the door—came suddenly.

A detachment of militia, under Adjt. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, moved up to the building quietly. They forced an entrance and the soldiers swarmed throughout the large unlighted room.

The building lights were not turned on and the guardsmen moved about silently all night, some of them using flashlights. Large crowds gathered outside.

In his hotel suite, from which he directs his political campaigns, Senator Long sat closeted with Gov. Allen and other state officials and directed the fresh attack.

The "Kingfish" has conducted a stern campaign against Walmsley for the last two weeks, charging that the city was a "cesspool of corruption and that the state would take a hand unless "gambling and corruption" were ended.

CHARGES DENIED

In the September primary, two Congressmen from New Orleans and numerous other officials will be nominated. Rival sets of candidates have been indorsed by Long and Walmsley.

Mayor Walmsley returned to New Orleans yesterday from a two weeks' vacation and issued a blanket statement denying charges made by Senator Long during the last two weeks.

Gov. Allen charged that the registration records were moved from the City Hall across the street yesterday in defiance of state law. Mayor Walmsley said the removal of the registration office had been accomplished "in conformity with the law."

He said that when the Long-appointed registrar, R. J. Gregory, occupied his new office yesterday there was a "joyous celebration, two kegs of beer being served."

LONG 'MAD HATTER'

Walmsley said:

"In my opinion, this proclamation is the most ridiculous and absurd thing that has transpired in the entire opera bouffe that has been staged by the 'Mad Hatter'."

The militia raid last night was the anniversary of a state of martial law declared just a year ago when National Guardsmen were called out by Long in connection with the investigation of charges of alleged fraudulent returns in the general election of November, 1932.

All gambling establishments in the city have been closed since Senator Long started his "reform" drive two weeks ago.

Leaders of the city administration today said they planned to protest to the War Department and possibly the United States Attorney General that the National Guard had been misused by Gov. Allen and Senator Long.

They also struck back at the governor's declaration of partial martial law by securing a civil district court order to prevent a new police board which Senator Long decreed for the city from taking office.

CONVICTS FIGHT STERILIZATION

to reach the Supreme Court for a final ruling.

LEGISLATION DENOUNCED

One of the defense attorneys, Claude Briggs, vigorously denounced the law, saying, "It would be inhuman and grossly unusual and cruel punishment to have sterilization forced upon a man and take away that hope and ambition which nearly every man has—a wife, children and a home."

Dr. D. W. Griffin, superintendent of the Central Oklahoma Hospital for the Insane, maintained the operation is painless and harmless, that it actually prolongs the sexual life of a person, the only result being that the patient is rendered sterile.

Anticipated unrest among the prison convicts as a result of the board's decision failed to materialize. The prisoners have been reading all medical journals and other periodicals available on the subject of sterilization and had as their immediate representatives at the hearing a committee of three fellow convicts—a robber, an automobile thief and a murderer.

Several operations already have been performed under the law on patients at the state asylum at Norman.

AND HE LIVES UP TO HIS NAME

FAIRFAX, Okla., July 31.—(AP.)—Rain Maker is a prophet with honor in his own country—the Osage Hills. The old Osage medicine man promised:

He went alone into the hills and murmured secret incantations over a curling wisp of smoke.

Death Takes 'Tobey', Champion Sled Dog

The dog, part greyhound and husky, was 9 years old, and was winner of about 65 medals and cups. Owned by Maj. A. Erland Goyette, of Peterboro, and driven almost always by Emil St. Goddard, of Le Pas, Manitoba, he has led his team to victory in nearly every outstanding dog race in America and Canada.

Divorcee Fights Child's Trip To France

TULSA, Okla., July 31.—(AP.)—Norma Smallwood Gilcrease, Tulsa's Miss America in 1926, won the first round last night in a legal battle to prevent her divorced husband Thomas Gilcrease, wealthy Tulsa oil operator from taking their daughter, De Cygne L'Amour Gilcrease to France. Deputies served upon him a writ from the State Supreme Court ordering him to produce the child before the court today.

Mrs. Gilcrease

Gilcrease was preparing to leave his mansion for the Union Station when a deputy sheriff brought him the writ which was obtained yesterday by Mrs. Gilcrease.

Gilcrease denied that he was taking the four-year-old girl out of the jurisdiction of the court without the knowledge of her mother. In a divorce decree granted Gilcrease in Pawhuska last spring Mrs. Gilcrease was granted custody of her child one day each week.

STRATO FLIER MAKING REPORT

WASHINGTON, July 31. —(AP.)—Capt. Albert Stevens arrived in Washington by plane today to report to Army Air Corps and National Geographic Society officials on the stratosphere balloon flight over South Dakota and Nebraska last week.

Stevens, one of the crew of three who had to take to parachutes to escape death in the gondola which crashed to the ground after the big balloon ripped 60,000 feet up, was called here yesterday by Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover for a first-hand account of the flight.

Arriving nearly an hour ahead of schedule, Stevens immediately began shuttling between air corps and geographic headquarters for conferences with officials of those agencies which backed the flight.

Their course of action as to an investigation of what caused the big gas bag to tear apart was expected to be guided partly by what Stevens reports.

His companions on the flight, Maj. William E. Kepner and Capt. Orvil Anderson, were expected to follow Stevens to Washington as soon as they have cleaned up loose ends at the Rapid City, S. D., starting point.

What Country Needs Is More Irish Cops!.

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP.)—What this country needs, if County Judge Martin has the matter diagnosed properly, is a good, old-fashioned Irish policeman.

His Honor, while refraining from saying anything calculated to offend the new-fashioned, non-Irish officer, let it be known today that for all-around kaypin'-of-the-payce none can hold a shillalah to the lads from the ould sod.

Judge Martin feels that such domestic disturbances as man-beats-wife, woman-beats-husband and spouse-comes-home-soused would never require a court's august attention if an Irish cop were only called in at the height of the melee.

The case of Thomas Soden was before him. Mrs. Soden complained that Thomas whacked her and the children, and then walked out on them. Judge Martin told her:

"You should have called a cop, preferably Irish. In the old days when wife-beating was a contest of skill and daring, there was nothing like an Irish cop to restore peace and tranquility to the neighborhood."

WRIT IMPOUNDS DILLINGER ACT RECEIPTS

Manager for Bandit's 'Stage' Family Faces Suit

International News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 31.—Box office receipts from a vaudeville act of John W. Dillinger and his family at a theater here were tied up by court proceedings.

The Dillingers were reported to have received $185 as their share of the Sunday theater appearances and attendance dropped on Monday.

The writ was served just as the elder Dillinger, his son Hubert, his daughter, Mrs. Audrey Hancock, and her husband, Emmett, stood back stage ready for an appearance.

Two deputy sheriffs shot in an appearance and read the legal papers. The writ was sworn out by Guy D. Sallee, a painting contractor, against the Dillinger family, Harry A. Casteel, their manager, and the theater where the act has been staged.

Sallee asserted that Casteel was indebted to him in the sum of $700 for painting two railroad locomotives several years ago. Casteel advertised a mammoth train wreck at the Indiana State Fair, but it was not staged.

After reading the writ the collectors permitted the Dillinger family to go on with their act, which depicted the private life of the late John Dillinger, United States Enemy No. 1.

Dillinger Captors Took No Risks, Says Sleuth

Universal Service.

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., July 31.—"We took no risks that there would be any orphans around here with a small pension fund to take care of them."

Capt. Tim O'Neill, of the East Chicago police force, unofficially advised yesterday that he and Sergt. Martin Zarkovich, his partner, will split $5,000 of the federal reward for capture of John Dillinger, told how only men without children were assigned to the fatal watch outside the Biograph Theater in Chicago. Capt. O'Neill said:

"You see our pension fund out here has been hit pretty hard. Dillinger caused three deaths himself.

"For five officers with families to go on a job against him was too risky. We couldn't tell what would happen in a case like that. So we took no risks."

At the same time Capt. O'Neill told what he expects to do with the reward money—"when I get it," but warned:

"We haven't got it yet. When we get it, then we can say something more."

N. Y. BODY BUYS CITY BONDS

After keen competition by eight bidders, an issue of $2,000,000 City of Pittsburgh bonds was today awarded to a New York syndicate which put in a high bid of 103.161.

About 40 of the more prominent investment firms, banks and trust companies were involved in the bidding.

The bonds, all 3½ per cent, 20-year bonds, represent $1,500,000 general improvement and $500,000 public welfare relief bonds. Rutter & Co., of New York, Roy T. H. Barnes Company and Lawrence M. Marks & Co., comprise the syndicate that won the award.

Probe of Dillinger Case Suicide Sought

CHICAGO, July 31. — (AP.) — James J. Probasco, 65, who plunged 19 floors from the Banker's Building where federal agents questioned him about John Dillinger, went to his grave yesterday as his sister, Mrs. Louise Hamilton, demanded further investigation of the death. She declared the agents treated Probasco roughly.

Gun Message Clue In Outlaw Search

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., July 31.—(AP.)—A tag with a cryptic message believed to carry instructions for a Chicago gunsmith, spurred Chippewa County authorities in their hunt today for George (Baby Face) Nelson and John Hamilton, Dillinger gangsters.

The tag was uncovered in a cottage owned by Chicago residents. Although the cottage was locked, a search revealed fresh milk and indications it had been used within the past day or two.

Maurauding Wolf Makes His Escape

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—(INS.)—The big bad wolf who went after the three little piggies was outsmarted, but the wolf, first one seen in this vicinity for 30 years who visited the Hancock Mountain farm of Richard Mangold, had more success, killing 40 of Mangold's pack of hares, and making his escape.

LINK HEPBURN, EX-HUSBAND IN NEW ROMANCE

Star Silent on Visit Of Former Mate to Summer Home

International News Service.

SAYBROOK, Conn., July 31.—Persistent rumors that Katharine Hepburn, stage and screen star, and her divorced husband, Ludlow O. Smith, may effect a reconciliation were heightened today when members of Miss Hepburn's family admited Smith had spent the week-end at the Hepburn summer home in Fenwick.

Beyond this, however, the family would make no further statements. Smith left for his home Monday.

Miss Hepburn, loquacious on stage and screen, remained her usual silent self when interviewed, dismissing all rumors with a terse:

"I have nothing to say."

At present she is appearing in a play "Dark Victory," presented by the New York players at Ivoryton. It is a tragedy purported to have been written by George Brewer, of New Haven, although its authorship for some reason is cloaked with mystery.

Mis Hepburn first started her stage career as a member of the New York Players who annually present numerous plays at Ivoryton for summer residents.

She had nothing to say about her plans for the future.

JUDGE 'CHASES' MINISTER

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 31.—(AP.)—District Judge W. W. McCrory said today he chased the Rev. William D. Welburn out of his office with a pocket knife when the former Methodist minister conferred with him yesterday on the divorce of Mrs. Wineta Long Welburn obtained recently on grounds of mental cruelty.

Explaining that sharp words had been exchanged, the judge added:

"I guess I got mad. He must have thought he could intimidate this court."

Judge McCrory declared he told Welburn:

Judge McCrory presided at the trial of the divorce suit at which Welburn denied the paternity of Mrs. Welburn's infant son as well as marriage to the child's mother.

The Grand Jury which indicated Welburn for perjury in connection with this testimony at the divorce trial was impaneled in Judge McCrory's court and this case is on the criminal docket.

The judge explained:

"I am unaware of the purpose of Rev. Welburn's visit unless he was under the impression that I was to try his case. As a matter of fact, I am disqualified since I'll probably be a witness. I administered the oath which he took at the trial of the divorce suit."

Welburn declined to comment.

YOUTHS HELD AS 'STRONGARMS'

Three men were held for court today on charges of robbery after they had been identified as "strong-arm men" by the victim who was robbed of two rings, one set with a diamond, and a watch. The loot, later recovered, was valued at $115.

Michael Scarpino, 20, 708 Wylie avenue; Paul Chirillo, 18, 96 Yuba way, and Fred Malerby, 18, 821 Lamont street, were held.

David T. Jones, of 1734 Barr avenue, Crafton, testified he was robbed by the three last night at Fifth avenue and Tunnel street. He identified Scarpino's picture in the rogues' gallery. The three were later arrested at their homes. The rings and the watch were recovered from Scarpino, police said.

Suspect Scarpino, 20, today with two others held for court after David T. Jones, a hold-up victim, identified them as three who strongarmed him downtown.

GRACIE ALLEN

International News Service.

Said Gracie seriously:

"Oh, yes indeed he is. He arranged the trip from New York to Moscow to see the theaters there, and when we arrived all the theaters were closed because of the summer and we had to spend all our time in the museums.

George

"Our guides paraded us in in front of an exhibit of the evolution of the U. S. S. R. In the first picture was a peasant without shoes, in the middle and last photographs the peasants were still without shoes, and then we went out into the streets and saw the same peasants still without shoes.

"The U. S. S. R. is no place for women. They do all the work. It's they who are building the Moscow subway knee-deep in mud without shoes and stockings. We saw a big building under construction. It's they who mix mortar and do the hardest labor. The American unemployed live like dukes compared to the workers in the Soviet."

Albany Police Ban March of Workers

ALBANY, July 31.—(AP.) — A heavy detail of police was thrown ardound the Workers' Temple today to prevent a parade of 150 or men and women demonstrators who intended to march to the capitol demanding unemployment insurance and protection against eviction of home owners.

Chief of Police Dave Smurl said a permit had been denied at city hall because the intention of the demonstration "was not legitimate."

INSULL READY TO 'TELL ALL,' PLEA SAYS

Fallen Utility King Makes Promise Asking Separate Trial

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull professed today to be ready to make "full and frank disclosure" of all the details of his business operations and asked the United States District Court to grant him a trial separate from the 16 others accused of mail frauds in the marketing of Corporation Securities Company stock.

In the petition for a severence presented by his attorney, Floyd E. Thompson, the elder Insull said he would be hindered in presenting his full statement and his defense if the record were cluttered with the evidence relating to his son and the other directors of Corporation Securities who were indicted with him. Insull said in his petition:

"I am now ready to make a full and frank disclosure of all the facts and details pertaining to my extensive business operations.

"These facts and details I stand ready to reveal to the fullest extent as soon as I am given an opportunity to testify on my trial."

Insull asserted that he accepted full responsibility for his acts and for the acts of his business associates who acted upon his advice, but he asked that this actions be judged free of the confusion of issues "certain to arise" if he were to be tried with the other 16.

The 74-year-old defendant advanced his age and infirmities as another reason why he should be granted separate trial. He contended that a joint trial would last from four to five months and that he would not be physically able to stand the strain. Such a strain, he said, would endanger his life.

Referring to his departure from this country in 1932 and his contest of evxtradition proceedings, he said the other defendants would suffer from the "erroneous impression" thereby created and that it would be unfair to them to be forced to stand trial with him.

175 POLICEMEN IN SHAKEUP

emphatic in denying that politics entered into the shakeup. They agreed:

"These . . . are for the good of the service."

FRIENDS FARE WELL

However, it was noted that friends of Dorsey, who has been acting as superintendent since the ailing Ben Marshall went on leave, had fared will in the changes.

SWEEPING CHANGES

The sweeping changes ordered in the motorized crews came after an investigation by Lieut. Albert Florig ordered by Dorsey.

Dorsey himself made a preliminary investigation of complaints that the radio crews were cruising outside their districts, were missing calls, were turning off their radios.

Apparently Florig's investigation bore out the criticisms. So today Dorsey was preparing to install new men on all cars.

Inspector Block was not only demoted, but his new sergeant's job was provisional—which means that he must again take a Civil Service examination and, failing that, probably would lose his job. Bishop faces the same test.

MALONE FOLLOWER

Inspector Charles, who was retired on pension, has been serving on the South Side. He is a political follower of James F. Malone, the former councilman who last week curtly repudiated Mayor McNair's nomination as a member of the Traction Conference Board.

Lieut. Jacks, assigned to the Traffic Division, succeeds Inspector Charles Dye, who was transferred to the South Side.

OTHER TRANSFERS

Then these lieutenants were transferred:

The other transfers consisted of shaking up the motorized crews and switching patrolmen from one beat to another.

News of the shakeup raced through the Police Department this afternoon. Veteran policemen observed that it was even more widespread that the shakeup effected shortly after the late Mayor Kline took office for his first term some eight years ago.

Hoover Now Historian, Traces World 'isms'

PALO ALTO, Cal., July 31.—(AP.)—Former President Herbert Hoover has turned author, it was announced today, and his book, "The Challenge to Liberty," will be issued in September.

The book will not discuss partisan political issues, Paul Sexson, secretary to the former President, stated.

Mr. Hoover, who has been at his writing task for about a year, will survey the situation of human liberty throughout the world. He will discuss Fascism, Socialism, Communism, regimentation and other systems' progress in the various countries.

TWO WOMEN ATTEMPT TO HANG SELVES IN CELLS

NOOSE FAILS ONE DRAGGED FROM RIVER

Police Matron Foils Suicides in Station On North Side

Two women attempted suicide within an hour today in North Side Police Station, police testified. One was fined $2 for disorderly conduct, the other was placed in custody of her husband.

It was the second attempt on her life for one woman. Dragged out of the Allegheny River, near the Sixth Street Bridge, she told police her name was Mrs. Maude Bell, 51, of Toledo. Arraigned for a hearing, she told police her name was Belle Craiger and said she lived at 1218 Resaca place.

She became hysterical while being questioned by Magistrate H. B. McNutt and finally, after she had quieted down, was persuaded to write down her correct name. Her husband was summoned.

Earlier in the day she tried to hang herself in her cell, a matron, Mrs. Jean Downey, testified. The woman told police she tried to end her life in the river because she disliked Pittsburgh.

Miss Betty Clark, 31, of 715 Moravian way, North Side, also tried to end her life by hanging, police say. Miss Clark, arraigned before Magistrate McNutt, testified she had a fight with her "boy friend" yesterday and proceeded to get drunk. When taken to the police station, she had a cut on her left hand which required three stitches to close.

At the Allegheny General Hospital, where police took her, it was reported that she had received treatment earlier for a fractured rib.

DIX, BRIDE PLAN QUIET AUTO TRIP

By HARRISON CARROLL,
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 31.—Finding Hollywood full of too many distractions, Richard Dix and his bride will slip away this week for an auto-camp honeymoon on which they'll make every effort to travel incognito.

Mrs. Dix

The newly-married couple have a plan all worked out. They'll motor until nightfall and then pull up at an auto camp. Mrs. Dix will register for them under Richard's real name, Ernest Brimmer, while the star makes himself as scarce as possible.

Avoiding the public eye, they'll journey leisurely up the Pacific Coast as far as Vancouver. Dix said:

"We're going to take it easy and do a lot of hunting and fishing. I like these sports and I am going to teach them to my wife, so she can go with me in the future."

The couple hope to make the trip a complete contrast to their voyage from New York around the Panama Canal, where Dix found dozens of fans waiting every time he got off the boat.

In his will filed for probate today he left $1,000 of his $18,500 estate to Dr. James A. Lindsay, of 3401 McClure avenue. The bequest is, the will explains, "in appreciation of his professional services to me during my several illnesses for which he would accept no compensation."

To his sisters, Mrs. Anna Y. Feisley, Mrs. Agnes Y. Wright and Mrs. Sarah Y. Baldinger he left two-thirds of the income of his estate, leaving the other third to his father, James M. Young.

TWO DOLLFUSS ASSASSINS HANGED

death, both accepted. Planetta was a Catholic and Holzweber a rotestant.

"Clergymen accompanied them to the gallows and stood beside them and prayed. I couldn't stand the sight and ran away."

The same court imposed the death sentence upon Franz Holzweber, a wiry, dark-haired electrician. Holzweber was found guilty of high treason. Both will be hanged immediately.

The death sentence was imposed by the court within a few minutes after attorneys for the state and for the defense had completed their summations of the evidence.

Even the summations were brief, requiring only about an hour and a half after the court had summarily halted the taking of evidence, declaring no more testimony was necessary.

CONFESSES KILLING

Planetta had confessed that he fired the shots which killed Austria's "martyred Chancellor." Before the military court, presiding over by Gen. Albert Oberweger, he claimed he had merely fired at a figure that "rushed past in the dark" as he was confronted by a "tall man" after the raiding Nazis had stormed the chancellery on July 25.

A police version of a confession reputed to have been made by Planetta declared he shot Dollfuss for revenge because he had been discharged from the army for his Nazi activities and that he fired at the Chancellor in his office "without exchanging a word."

LEADER OF REBELS

Holzweber was the leader of the group of 144 Nazis that entered the chancellery that fateful afternoon of last Wednesday in an abortive attempt to seize the government and establish a Nazi state in Austria.

Planetta and Holzweber were the first to be tried and the first to pay the penalty for the ill-fated attempt to drive from power the Chancellor who had fought the Nazis bitterly during the two years of his regime.

It is understood that the trial of 14 others will proceed immediately. There were indications, however, that Planetta and Holzweber might be the only ones to pay with their lives since the government was understood to fear the effect of "mass executions" on public sentiment, not only in Austria, but throughout the world.

Dr. Jerabeck, Planetta's defense counsel, attempted to call the Chancellor and the President of Austria as witnesses. He was ruled down.

Chancellor Dollfuss did not bleed to death, as Austrian officials at first reported. Either one of the revolver shots which struck him wounded him fatally and put him beyond the help of medical aid.

PHYSICIAN TESTIFIES

Dr. Szelkely, who conducted a post-mortem examination on the body of the dead chancellor, testified to that effect in the trial.

Policeman Johann Steinberger testified that he was forced to look out a window when the raiders entered the room and shot Dollfuss.

Maj. Pomerer, Austrian ballistics expert, identified Planetta's pistol as the one which fired the fatal shot, from microscopic examination of the bullets which killed Dollfuss and other bullets fired from the same gun.

Holzweber testified that the Putsch failed because after the taking of the chancellery they were to be met by a leader whom he was unable or unwilling to name. The leader was to appear unarmed, with credentials, and tell them what to do next. He never appeared and after waiting for him for hours there was nothing for them to do but to surrender to the soldiers and police who surrounded the building.

ITALY SOFTENS BERLIN ATTACK

ROME, July 31.—(AP.)—The Italian press put the soft pedal today on references to Germany.

It apparently was reflecting the desire of the government to refrain from heaping coals on the Austrian fire when it seems to be dying down.

Comment was in marked moderation to the bitter remarks of the past few days.

But a government spokesman made it clear that Italy does not intend to relax her vigilance.

Rumors were current here that Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia are urging France to try to prevent possible intervention by the Italian army alone.

Swiss Protest Arms Smuggling

BERLIN, July 31.—(INS.)—The Swiss Minister presented a note to the foreign office at noon today, protesting the smuggling of explosives across Swiss territory from Germany into Austria.

The explosives are assumed to have been for use by Austrian Nazis in last week's attempted revolution.

"The reich president this morning took breakfast outside his bed. As he did so, he showed a complete understanding of what was going on about him. After returning to bed he fell into a quiet sleep. His pulse was strong, although numerically higher."

"There is no change in the President's condition, at least no deterioration. He took a little nourishment at noon. No fever. Pulse satisfactory."

Should the President die, Dr. Erwin Bumpke, president of the German Supreme Court, situated at Leipzig, will become acting President until a successor can be elected.

This was provided in a special law passed December 17, 1932, to amend Article 51 of the Constitution.

As the special amendment was passed during the government of the late Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, before the Nazis assumed power, there is doubt as to whether the special law stands and whether Chancellor Hitler would take over the function of President.

The Nazi government has thrown many sections of the Constitution and amendments to it overboard.

After the death of President Ebert, it was recalled, Chancellor Luther temporarily took over the presidential functions until the Reichstag could convene to elect Supreme Court President Walter Simons president ad interim.

After the popular elections of April, 1925, von Hindenburg then became President for a term of seven years, which was extended for another seven years in 1932.

BRITAIN MUM ON NAZI MOVES

LONDON, July 31.—(AP.)—An attempt by Labor member Frederick S. Cocks to reopen in Parliament the question of alleged German complicity in the Nazi putsch in Austria was met by almost stony silence today from the ministers.

Today's sessions were the last before summer recess.

Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, answering Cocks on behalf of the foreign office, referred him to the statement yesterday by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, in which he said Great Britain had no intention of intervening to preserve Austrian independence.

Cocks asked if the foreign secretary's attention had been called "to recent seizure of a consignment of bombs and other explosives exported from Germany for use of unauthorized persons in Austria."

Ambush of Spanish Bank Chief Foiled

ZARAGOZA, Spain, July 31.—(AP.)—The courage of a chauffeur saved Daniel Riu Periquet, governor of the Foreign Bank of Spain, from assassins.

The assassins erected a barricade outside the city limits yesterday in an effort to stop his car, but the chauffeur drove through the obstruction and sped on under a hail of bullets.

RUSSO-CHINESE RAIL DEAL OFF

International News Service.

TOKIO, July 31.—Tension between Soviet Russia and Japan increased today with announcement that negotiations for the sale of Russia's interest in the Chinese Eastern Railway through Japan as an intermediary had collapsed.

The Soviet ambassador, Konstantin Yurenev, a foreign office announcement said, called upon Foreign Minister Koki Hirota yesterday, and made a trivial offer for the sale of the Russian share of the C. E. R.

The offer was immediately rejected and Hirota announced he would no longer act as mediary between the Soviet government and the government of Manchukuo in transactions for the sale of the railway.

Shepherd Could Have Started War If He Whistled

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Well, the war got away from us that time.

But we will catch it the next time around.

It was closer than chinch bugs on Indiana cornstalks.

Mussolini had his troops plump smack against the Austrian border. All they were waiting for was a signal.

If a boy had beaten his Christmas drum, the war would have been on. If a Tyrolean shepherd had whistled for his dog, two armies would have clashed.

GERMANY SEES AUSTRIA RIFT

BERLIN, July 31.—(AP.)—The German press predicted today that the new Austrian cabinet headed by Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg would not last.

It said another trouble may be expected before long in Vienna.

Conviction was expressed by the Hamburg Frembenblatt that jealousy between the Heimwehr (Fascist home guards) and the Christian Socialist party, of which Schuschnigg is a member, would result in a fight for power.

The cabinet, it said, stands on "weaker feet" than that of the late Chancellor Dollfuss. Trouble between the Heimwehr and the Christian Socalists, the newspaper asserted, has only been "delayed for a time."

(Prince Ernest von Starhemberg, vice chancellor and leader of the Heimwehr, temporarily headed the government following Dollfuss' death, but Schuschnigg succeeded him.)

MISSOURI MAN OTTO'S RIVAL FOR THRONE

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 31.—New life coursed through the dilapidated colony of Austrian monarchists today.

The royal refugees, who have come on evil days since the Hapsburg dynasty foundered, neglected their jobs as piano teachers, waiters, governesses, cooks, nurse maids, chauffeurs and bartenders to anticipate the return of the glory that once was theirs.

Toasts were drunk to the restoration. Court uniforms and laces were brought forth from dusty trunks. Intrigue was in the air.

There were two schools of intrigue. One supported the active claim of Archduke Otto, son of the former Empress Zita, to the Austrian throne.

PRETENDER ADVANCED

Cleveland has evidenced no enthusiasm for the royal call.

But a powerful group of Royalist Hapsburgs, led by Countess Maria Larisch, niece of Empress Elizabeth, wife of the late Emperor Franz Joseph, is urging Cleveland to bid for the throne.

The countess points out that Cleveland is the natural son of Crown Prince Rudolph, of Austria, and therefore direct heir to the crown. Otto is the son of Emperor Charles, who was only the nephew of Emperor Franz Joseph.

ROYAL ROMANCE

And the story goes—

Crown Prince Rudolph, the brilliant, handsome, uncontrollable, had a love affair with Princess Yourievsky, daughter of Czar Alexander, of Russia. The crown prince was married to Princess Stephanie, of Belgium.

Princess Yourievsky was forced to flee to the United States, where her son was born. She left him in an orphanage here and returned to the continent, where she died.

Crown Prince Rudolph committed suicide. This was more than two score years ago.

Now, Cleveland is a prominent citizen of his town. He has been a candidate for United States Senator. He married Jessie Perry and lives a happy American life.

Berlin, Vienna Fear Strokes Of Disaster

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER,
International News Service.

VIENNA, July 31.—Central Europe waited tensely today for a stroke of evil fate. Germany waits for the death of President Hindenburg while Austria waits for the Nazis' answer to the execution of Otto Planetta, the murderer of Chancellor Dollfuss, and Franz Holzweber, leader of the rebels.

In both countries there was an ominous feeling that the troubles of the last few weeks were heading up into a climax.

The death of Hindenburg can bring confusion and, conceivably, even revolution in Germany. In this country the Nazis have sworn to take ghastly reprisals for the execution of any Nazis.

Planetta and Holzweber were the first Nazis in Austria to be sentenced to death. Never before has the government had courage to face the threats of Nazi revenge.

Two of the principal and typical Nazi threats are to capture and kill 100 priests and to blow up five churches, beginning with St. Stephen's Cathedral in Vienna, when the government carries out the death sentences.

These threats are not taken lightly, especially inasmuch as the trial of the two men brought out indisputably, first, that two Austrian ministers, Fey and Neustaedter-Stuermer, did promise the rebels safe transit to Germany if they surrendered; second, that they promised this unconditionally and not, as the government announced afterwards, only if the Nazis had killed no one, and third, that the government knew Dollfuss was dead when it made its promise to the rebels.

MOSCOW, July 31.—(AP.)—Five Russian technicians were sentenced to death at Sverdlov yesterday for burning the forging plant of a machine building factory.

SLAVS OPPOSE INTERFERENCE IN AUSTRIA

By PIERRE HUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 31.—Germany saw the united front of nations which formed against her after the murder of Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria breaking up today as rival interests among them overshadowed their moral indignation.

The first open break in the ring of nations which have been watching events in Austria and then watching one another came in the release to the press in Berlin of a statement of the Jugo-Slavian government.

The statement which referred to Austrian events as "purely internal in character," said that any outside action was a League of Nations matter and warned against any "one-sided measure or intervention."

The warning, of course, was seen as one directed at Italy, whose troops have been massed along the Austro-Italian border since the day following the Chancellor's murder. The statement said:

"The attitude of the Jugo-Slav authorities toward the events in Austria is wholly correct. The strictest control has been maintained on the frontier, and there can be no suggestion of any incident or provocation.

"Up to now the 700 Austrian refugees, equipped with 200 rifles, one machine gun and some revolvers, have been taken along the line from Maribor to Dravonograd. They were immediately disarmed and interned. All the refugees were young men.

"Movements on the frontier are being watched with open eyes, and all authorities have been warned to remain calm. Every necessary precaution is being taken to preserve safety on the border and to correct relations with Austria."

M'NAIR SHOWS KEARNEY HOW TO BE 'JUDGE'

Mayor McNair today introduced his new magistrate, John B. Kearney, to the intricacies of police court.

Kearney learned quickly. In hearings at three police stations he discharged 15 prisoners, on one he reserved decision and one he fined $5.

The unlucky prisoner was a young man who peddled things he shouldn't peddle.

SOME FUN, EH BOSS

Kearney gave Robert Boyd, 43, of Oakland, another week to pay for an $8 canary which Boyd admitted taking from a home where he had asked for help.

His Honor frequently advised the new magistrate, who succeeds Theodore L. Moritz. Of Boyd he joked:

"He was working on the old axiom that a bird in the hand's worth two in the bush."

Eight of the discharged prisoners were drunks. Five were fighting drunks.

BALK AT HAND-SHAKE

One of the fortunates was Albert Brass, of Butler and Thirty-sixth streets. Mrs. Catherine McCullough, of Amity street, Homestead, testified she paid Brass $2 for a lucky lottery number, which proved unlucky.

Brass was charged with obtaining money under false pretense. He said he had been in, as Kearney called it, "this racket" for a year. He was discharged and Kearney told Mrs. McCullough she could make information against him if she chose.

After the hearings on the Hill and in Penn avenue, his honor suggested the spectators line up and shake hands with the new magistrate.

This went well on the Hill. But in the Strip the boys took no chances of getting on the wrong side of the rail and walked out.

DRUGGAN, BEER BARON, FREE

ATLANTA, July 31. — (AP.) — Terry Druggan, millionaire beer baron in Chicago during prohibition days who was sentenced to serve 30 months in prison for violating federal income tax laws, is a free man.

A. C. Aderholt, warden of the federal penitentiary here, said Druggan was released last Friday. He did not say how much of his term the former beer baron had served. Druggan was brought to Atlanta about a year ago from Leavenworth.

Druggan, before he was brought here from Leavenworth, was the center of a prison scandal. It was alleged he absented himself from his cell to visit his girl friends and live again the life of a playboy in Chicago.

SCHOOL 'LOSES' GRADUATIONS

There will be no commencement at St. Mary's High School, Webster avenue, for the next three years.

In place of the two-year commercial course a four-year academic course has been substituted. This summer saw the last of the two-year course students graduate, and pupils enrolled for the four-year course completed their first year. This latter group is the first class under the new system, and three more years of study are required before graduation.

So the next three years will be the first in which no one has graduated from the 40-year-old school.

Trustees Named to Pitt Vacancies

Dr. S. B. Linhart, secretary of the University of Pittsburgh, today announced appointment of two trustees to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of Dr. William J. Holland and Robert D. Campbell. They are the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, and Roy C. McKenna, president of the Vanadium Alloys Steel Company, Latrobe, and the McKenna Brass Company, here. They were chosen at a meeting of the trustees last week.

Mother Seeks Boy As Father Dies

Unaware that his father died since he left home two weeks ago with two companions, William Kinzek, 13, of 396 Spalding street, Aliquippa, today was being sought by the Missing Persons Bureau and county detectives.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Eva Kinzek, reported the boy was last known to be at Columbus, O. The father, Michael Kinzek, 46, died Sunday. The boy is 5 feet 2 inches tall and has a scar on the left side of his neck.

Fiance to Receive Renee Adoree's Ring

LOS ANGELES, July 31. — (AP.)—A 3½-caret diamond ring which Howard F. Nace gave his fiancee, the late Renee Adoree of the films, has been ordered returned to him by Miss Adoree's mother, Mrs. Victoune Adoree, of Braxton, England.

Nace was confined to the same sanitarium with Miss Adoree three years ago when the actress was seeking to recover from tuberculosis.

Moritz Gives Up 'Poo Bah' Role With McNair

THEODORE L. MORITZ

Quits Police Bench Job, So Now He's Just Secretary

His resignation as police magistrate has been accepted, and the Mayor has sent to City Council the name of John B. Kearney, of 3485 Milwaukee street, Democratic single taxer of the Fifth Ward, to fill the vacancy.

According to Moritz, his resignation was entirely on his own initiative. He indicated that the many jobs which the Mayor has handed him had become distasteful. He said:

"I had to beg and plead with the Mayor to accept my resignation. I remain as secretary—that's the title I take pride in. I wanted to avoid the multiplicity of jobs and, incidentally, to do some good for somebody else."

Moritz had drawn from the city only the secretary's salary of $3,600, and not that of a magistrate.

Mayor McNair had also attempted to make Moritz chairman of the Traction Conference Board at $12,000 per annum, but this move was blocked.

Moritz also is the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Thirty-second District.

Mayor McNair yesterday withdrew the name of James F. Malone which he had submitted to Council for the Traction Board position. Malone had requested that his name not be used.

TORTURE VICTIM IDENTIFIES 4 AT TRIAL

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP.)—Shaking with sobs as he recalled his torture by extortionists, Harry Welch, of Toledo, stepped from the witness stand in Criminal Court yesterday and tapped on the shoulder the four men accused of kidnaping him.

His identification of the four defendants climaxed their trial on the charge that may carry the penalty of death.

Welch, a Toledo clothing merchant, still bore on his face the red scars inflicted by hot irons.

The accused men—Allen Siegal, Arthur Sway, Edward Greenspan and Rudolph Pisani—sat unmoved as Welch walked slowly to each, placed his hand on their shoulders and called them by name, telling the jury briefly what part they played in the alleged plot to extort $2,000 from him.

The trial was halted for several minutes when he sobbed and nearly collapsed in his narration.

Welch said he had been lured to Chicago by Siegal last June 13 on a pretense of a good opportunity to buy clothing. Siegal then had taken him to a West Side basement where they were confronted by Sway and Pisani, armed with machine gun and pistol, he testified. They stripped him of clothing, he said, took his pocket money and demanded $3,000.

Welch related:

"The men threw me to the floor and heated pokers, curling irons and the head of a hammer in the stove.

"They held me on the floor and put the red hot irons on my face, my chest and my back. The pain was terrific. I went into a coma. Then they stopped torturing me for a while, and when I regained consciousness I agreed to get $2,000 for them. They accepted.

"They gave me back part of my clothing and took me upstairs."

proaching storms in time to seek shelter.

Also, the dolphin is supposed to love music, and the Greeks believed that Arion, sweet poet and musician of ancient Lesbos, was saved from the sea by a dolphin that admired his singing and playing.

HERODOTUS TELLS about that, and in these "pure movie" days, Nicholas Schenck, or some other genius, might make a good movie of it. Arion, wishing to shine far from his little island, traveled in Sicily, and other foreign parts, much applauded, well paid. He sailed for home from Tarentum with his gate receipts and the sailors, determined to get his money, ordered him to kill himself on the ship or jump into the sea. Arion decided to jump, but remembering his public, asked permission to sing one last song. Playing his accompaniment on the lyre, or cithara, he sang, played and jumped. Imagine the sailors' surprise when they saw a dolphin that had listened, entranced by the music, draw up alongside the poet, take him on his back and carry him to shore with the speed that lets a dolphin swim easily around a fast steamer.

NO ONE DOUBTS that Arion sang and played all the way to shore, or that his parting with the Dolphin was most affectionate.

In the movie, "Arion's Leap, or the Docile Dolphin," the love motive could be supplied by Sappho, greatest female poetess, who lived on Lesbos also, at about Arion's period. Sappho's fervor could be toned down, as a concession to modern movie purity. And what a shot it would be, at the end, when Sappho's love is rejected by the disdainful Phaon and she jumps to her death from the Leucadian promontory, only, of course, Hollywood would make it all end happily, with Arion, secretly in love with her, alighting from his Dolphin five hundred feet below just in time to catch Sappho's double as she fell.

AS A MATTER of historical fact, Sappho never jumped from that promontory. She married, respectably, and had a beautiful little daughter, named Clies, after Sappho's grandmother. A beautiful fade-out would show Sappho sitting in front of a tripod holding little Cleis in her arms, reciting her own beautiful poem, of which a few fragments remain, telling that she would not exchange Cleis for a whole kingdom.

APART FROM all that, it is certain that those two dolphins, swimming up for a friendly presidential "look-see," were bitterly surprised and grieved, when they felt themselves dragged up by a hook in the mouth; or was it a harpoon in the back? You could imagine one dolphin, if it had speech, saying to the President "Excuse ME, but have you never heard of Arion?"

AND APART FROM the Dolphins, it is interesting to know what President Roosevelt, as a farewell message part to the Hawaiians, assured them that their islands are "an integral part of the American nation." This means that all the native-born or naturalized resident of the islands are American citizens, including some two hundred thousand residents of Asiatic blood. They, and their probable millions of descendants entitled to full rights as citizens on this mainland. The Hawaiian Islands, fertile, prolific, might easily produce every year, fifty thousand hard-working, patient Asiatic-American citizens, that many employers would welcome on this mainland.

Jailed for a Principle

JACK DURHAM WESLEY CARTY

Reporters Durham and Carty, behind the bars at Danville, Ky., because they refused to tell in court what they knew in advance—and how they came to know it!—of the hanging in effigy of a legislator. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

TWO REPORTERS JAILED AGAIN

DANVILLE, Ky., July 31.—(AP.)—Two Danville newspaper reporters who have been jailed six times rather than disclose a news source to the Police Court had an associate today in facing contempt proceedings.

The reporters, Jack Durham and Wesley Carty, served six hours yesterday when they again declined to tell the court who gave them advance information about the hanging in effigy of State Representative Sterling Towles July 19. The hanging was in protest over Towles' vote for the state sales tax.

Victor Badner, a University of Alabama medical student clerking in a grocery store here during vacation, was the third witness in Police Judge Jay W. Harlan's inquiry to decline to answer questions.

Bodner was given until Wednesday to reconsider his stand.

Nab Youth Passing Counterfeit Bill

Ralph Petty, 24, of 1715 Cliff street, was being held for investigation today by Federal agents. The youth was arrested yesterday, according to the agents, when he attempted to pass a counterfeit bill in a Brownsville road beer parlor. Federal men also say that Petty has been under suspicion for the past few months as a counterfeiter of coins.

RAIL WORKMEN HIT BY AUTO

Two workmen today were recovering from injuries received when struck by an automobile last night at Forbes street and Craft avenue as they were cleaning a railway switch.

Oakland police arrested Edward Weber, 31, Negro, of 63 South Fifteenth street, South Side, at his home as the driver.

The men were Baptisto Lobozva, 69, of 69 Washington place, and Joseph Castiglione, 48, 3738 Orpwood street, both taken to Mercy Hospital by a motorist.

Police said the car driven by Weber was owned by William Alexander, 329 Grace street, Mt. Washington, and had been left at the Negro's garage for repairs yesterday.

Aged Couple Facing Charity Die in Pact

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP.)—"I would rather die than accept charity."

So Paul Ficher, 78, and his wife, Theresa, 67, died yesterday. They turned on all the gas jets. She lay in bed, as though to sleep. He sat at a table, writing notes and telegrams to his kin. Even so, they were not penniless, $17 remained.

RANK IN PARTY REGAINED BY M'FADDEN

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, has come back to life in the eyes of Republican leaders.

Late in 1932, when he had been stripped of patronage privileges because of his move to impeach Herbert Hoover as President, Senator David A. Reed said:

"We intend to act to all practical purposes as though Representative McFadden had died."

But today, as he returned to his home in Canton, Pa., the militant Representative said Reed recently had assured him they could now work together.

There was a glint in his eye as he said, too, that national party headquarters had called upon him to broadcast nationally next Tuesday on "the international situation."

He also made public a letter in which Bertrand Snell, House Republican leader, wrote:

"I have depended upon you for floor work about as much as on any other member and you have rendered very valiant service in that respect."

The record shows the discipline was meted out after McFadden's surprise attempt, in December 13, 1932, to have Hoover impeached "for high crimes and misdemeanors," in connection with the moratorium. The House voted him down, 361 to 8. He was the lone Republican to vote affirmatively.

House Republicans from Pennsylvania at once demanded his resignation as secretary of their delegation. He refused and was voted out of the post. Then his patronage prerogatives were removed, Senators Reed and Davis taking them over.

BELGIAN ENVOY DIES AT 61

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—Diplomatic circles expressed sorrow today over the death of Paul May, Belgian ambassador to the United States.

The envoy, who began his diplomatic career in this capital as attaches of his country's embassy in 1895, died last night in his sixty-second year. Physicans said gallstones, for which he had undergone an operation Saturday, caused his death. M. May was named ambassador to the United States in April, 1931.

Secretary Hull said he was "deeply shocked to learn of the tragic death," adding:

"He made a most distinguished place for himself in Washington and this country mourns his passing."

The ambassador is survived by his widow and three daughters.

RISING RED TIDE PERILING U. S., EDITOR SAYS

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, July 31.—A vigorous warning against the rising menace of Communism in America was voiced by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, in an address over a National Broadcasting Company network last night.

Col. McCormick, who spoke under the auspices of the Crusaders, at the same time appealed against election of another "rubber stamp" Congress" willing to pass radical legislation "without reading it."

Discussing issues raised in recent months, Col. McCormick declared:

"They are not getting the forceful discussion we have been accustomed to give our affairs because men have too much reason to be terrorized by the countless new and undefined charges that may be trumped up against them by new hordes of secret agents infesting the country.

"The risk must be taken, or our country will fall.

"The recent bloody murders in Germany and Austria point the inevitable consequence when people leave a government of laws for a government of men. Unwarned, we have started on that road. Now, finally warned, we must turn back."

BLAMED ON REDS

Col. McCormick asserted without qualification that many recent industrial disorders in widely separated parts of the country have been fomented by Communists.

As evidence, he cited a report made by William Green, president of the A. F. of L., to President Roosevelt, which was published in the Congressional Record of last June 27.

Col. McCormick quoted these passages from the report:

"On July 15, 1931, the dictatorship at Moscow issued instructions to the Communist party in the United States detailing the tactics of street fighting, the use of barricades, the methods of arming mobs, etc.

"The Communist International now not only sanctions, but orders violent operations in the United States.

"We know that we see a constant revolutionary menace."

LITVINOFF LINKED

Col. McCormick pointed out that Maxim M. Litvinoff, Foreign Minister of the Soviet, landed in America on November 7, 1933, and continued:

"On November 11, rioters at the packing plant of George A. Hormel & Co., at Austin, Minn., drove out company officials and seized possession of the plant.

"Ambassador Bullit from America took up his residence in Moscow on March 7. On March 21, street fighting in New York began."

Then commenting on a long series of industrial disorders in Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin, California and Washington, Col. McCormick said:

"So accurately have the conditions described in the Green report come to pass that no one can set it beside this series of uprisings, breaking out in regular order over widely spaced territory, and doubt the existence of cause and effect.

'CAPITAL SAFE'

"Experiments in radicalism may seem safe in Washington, may be safe in Washington, for the capital is no more on the firing line in the industrial war than it was in the World War.

"But the tragic result of trying to be a little red, colors the pavements of a dozen cities.

"In order to put over a program of 'peaceful revolution' and semi-Communism, the addled Brain Trusters have sought the political support of the Communists and have denounced American ways. The Communists have taken advantage of the discontent aroused and of the proffered allegiance to try to overthrow the republic."

Swinging into a discussion of the National Recovery Act, Col. McCormick declared it had resulted in the infringement of many individual and constitutional liberties.

CHIMNEY FALLS, BOY KILLED

SHARON, Pa., July 31.—Glen N. Vaughn, 13, died in Buhl Hospital today from injuries received yesterday when he, with two other boys, was caught by bricks from a 70-foot chimney which crashed at the Vaughn greenhouse after being struck by lightning. Vaughn and Abner Cole, 18, and Chester Cole, 14, brothers, were working in the boiler room.

The flying bricks smashed through the roof and carried them to the basement. Firemen worked more than two hours before they rescued the youths.

Plea of 'Fox' Lost In Ransom Hoax

WASINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—Norman T. Whitaker, sometimes known as "The Fox," yesterday lost his appeal against an 18-month sentence imposed after his conviction on a charge of conspiring with Gaston B. Means to steal $35,000 from Mrs. Edward B. McLean in her efforts to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Rope Too Long, He Fails to Hang Self

GLENVILLE, W. Va., July 31.—(AP.)—Aaron Critt, 36, is alive because a rope tied about his neck when he jumped eight feet from a tree limb was long enough to let his feet touch the ground.

He was found by neighbors who had followed him to the woods at his wife's request.

MRS. ALFRED ELLIOTT

MARRIED LIFE 'FREE FOR ALL'

They were married 10 days.

She said her husband choked her on her wedding day. Every day since, life has been just one big "free-for-all." Yesterday, she told Magistrate H. B. McNutt, he came home with a police dog and chased her through the house. All this after she had paid for the license and rented the room, she said.

He said he was drunk when he married her—so was she, he insisted. He said she married him for spite and ever since, he told the magistrate, she's been running around with another man. He bought the dog, he said, to protect himself while he got his clothes.

Magistrate McNutt listened to the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Elliott in North Side Police Court this morning. The husband was charged with disorderly conduct. The magistrate fined him $5 or 10 days in jail.

U. S. ARRANGING TO OUST REDS

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—The Washington Post says deportation machinery is being set up by the government to ship back to Soviet Russia all radical agitators hailing from that country as well as other Russian aliens here illegally.

It says Walter W. Husband, Assistant Secretary of Labor during the Hoover and Coolidge administrations, will be sent to Russia to negotiate terms on which persons considered to be undesirable Russians will be taken back by that country.

In some strike centers local groups have charged that trouble was fomented by alien Communists.

Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, recently answered a demand for deportation of alien agitators by saying appropriate action would be taken against aliens found to have violated the immigration laws.

There is at present, however, no way of returning Russian citizens because Russia has not been issuing the necessary passports, the newspaper says.

Shown Mercy, Skips Without Paying Fine

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 31.—(AP.)—Paul Crissey, of West Haven, has a strange definition of appreciation.

Arrested on five charges of violating the motor vehicle laws, he was shown mercy by the court, which fined him but $10 on all counts. Crissey then walked out without paying.

BLUE EAGLE'S FATE IN DOUBT AFTER YEAR

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—The Blue Eagle, one year old tomorrow, is at a crossroads. National Relief Administration's future still is to be determined.

Changes are in the making. Suggestions have ranged from Hugh S. Johnson's idea that a board, instead of one man, should manage his job, to a demand by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, that NRA be deprived of price fixing and other fair practice powers and placed under the Federal Trade Commission, with the anti-trust laws in full retreat.

The next Congress, which meets in January, will have the task of determining NRA's future.

The Blue Eagle is slightly younger than the NRA. It was born August 1, 1933, and quickly became the best-known emblem in America.

It started life as a merit badge to employers who signed President Roosevelt's re-employment agreement (PRA) for shorter hours, higher pay and no child labor.

Today, as it turns one anniversary, it symbolizes the vow of countless industrial code signers to comply with NRA'S rules of fair competition.

When the PRA was announced by Johnson to speed unemployed to payrolls pending more tedious code-drafting, he set up the Blue Eagle to guide the consumer in his buying.

An army of 1,500,000 volunteers—probably the largest volunteer host of history—joined in carrying PRA and Blue Eagle from door to door. NRA estimates that 2,500,000 employers signed.

The original PRA lasted from August 1 to December 31, but later was extended to allow more time for code-making. Today, all but about 100 pending agreements have been fitted into the code structure of nearly 500 industries.

Man Found Dead In Garfield Doorway

A man identified by his driver's license as Stanley Filipiski, 40, of 166 Forty-third street, was found dead today in a hallway at 4928 Penn avenue, according to a morgue report.

Morrow Quits Coal Code Authority

J. D. A. Morrow, president of Pittsburgh Coal Company, has tendered his resignation as chairman of the Coal Code Authority for Western Pennsylvania, it became known here today.

Mr. Morrow submitted his resignation by letter last Friday, it was revealed. The Code Authority, set up under the National Recovery Act for the governing of market price and fair practices, is meeting here today. It was not known whether the authority would consider Mr. Morrow's resignation or not, according to C. P. Hosford, manager of the local authority.

Mr. Morrow declined to discuss his reasons for resigning. It was understood, however, that he was in disagreement over price differentials between the Northern and Southern Appalachian fields administered by the authority. The Southern fields, it is said, have the advantage and are taking heavy tonnage business out of this district.

90 NRA CLERKS DISMISSED

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—The Washington Post says NRA has dismissed 90 clerks and stenographers in the Compliance division.

George A. Lynch, NRA administrative officer, is said to have ordered that no more help be hired from the outside, future vacancies being filled by transfers within the organization. An efficiency expert is described as having been active in work preceding the dismissals, which reduced the NRA payroll to 2,400 here and 900 in the field.

Black Cat Proves Fatal for Driver

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 31.—When a black cat crossed the road in front of his milk truck, it brought bad luck to the driver, Joseph de Bartolo, 32. In an effort to avoid striking the cat, he swung the truck off the road into a telephone pole and was killed.

TROOPERS' AUTO IN STRIKE ZONE KILLS MAN

MINNEAPOLIS, July 31.—(AP.)—One man was killed and four others were injured today when a National Guard squad car, running through a traffic signal to where strike pickets were reported dumping a farmer's truck, crashed into a small sedan.

Three troopers were hurt. Carl Wallin, driver of the sedan was killed and his companion, not identified, was rushed to a hospital with a possible fracture and internal injuries.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson, unaware of the accident, issued a statement saying the truck drivers' strike, which prompted him to place the city under military rule, represents "the struggle between recovery and the chiselers." He added:

"I shall expect every employer in the city who moves merchandise by truck to pay the wage scale determined by Father Haas and Commissioner Dunnigan to be a fair wage scale, for those affected by their proposal."

UNION VICTOR IN LEECHBURG

LEECHBURG, Pa., July 31.—The Leechburg Lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers today claimed to have carried 80 per cent of the offices in yesterday's primary election of collective bargaining representatives to deal with the West Leechburg Steel Company.

An official of the company conceded that the union won a majority of the votes, but added that only half of the firm's employes cast ballots. The general election will be held Friday.

'BLACK SHIRTS' HERE FACE PROBE

Working with police of Chicago and New York, Pittsburgh police and Department of Justice agents today began a thorough investigation of the Black Shirts of America, a new self-styled patriotic organization which planned to save America from "sinister influences."

Appearance of the organization in this district has been announced by a press agent who declared that 3,000 members had already joined in Allegheny County. Carl Beatty, of Somerset, wholesale meat dealer and former Ku Klux Klansman, will be one of the first to be questioned, police said. Beatty was announced as the "acting district commander in this district."

DOUBLE INQUIRY

The two-barreled investigation was started late yesterday afternoon when Department of Justice men conferred with Inspector of Detectives Samuel Wheeler.

Wheeler had already assigned four detectives to look into the organization, determine its purposes and find if there is any semblance of a "racket" in it.

The detectives learned that the organization had established headquarters in an office in Fifth avenue, between Wood and Smithfield streets. They also reported that instead of collecting "donations" of $3 each from the prospective members, as announced by the order's literature, the new members were charged $6 each.

'DIVIDEND' PROMISED

The money from new members is to be put into a fund and later to be split up and returned to members at the end of the year as a sort of dividend, Wheeler said his investigation had disclosed.

Other branches of the same order—which is not connected with any foreign Black Shirt order, according to its heads—have cropped up in Chicago and New York, Wheeler said. He has communicated with police heads in both cities to get full, detailed information in connection with activities of the groups there.

Wheeler said:

"The officials of this organization will have to prove to me that it is 100 per cent legitimate. If it is not, action will be taken against the officials."

The Department of Justice investigation will be made to determine if the group is violating the Constitution, and if the order's motives and objectives are against the government.

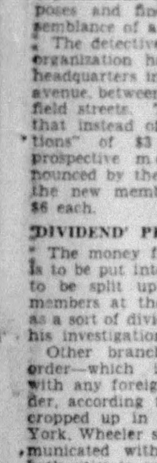
Literature of the organization stated allegiance to the Constitution and government was one of its main purposes.

Informed of the investigation, Beatty declared in Somerset:

"The order is able to withstand any investigation by police or Department of Justice men. I am going to be in Pittsburgh Thursday and will be ready to answer any questions police or anyone else might want to ask me."

DELAY TRACTION POST HEARING

Argument on quo warranto proceedings instituted by Theodore Moritz against Charles A. Finley to show cause by what right he holds the office of chairman of the Traction Board will not be heard in Common Pleas Court today.



Mr. Finley

Attorney C. Elmer Bown, representing Finley, is recovering from an illness and was not able to apoear in court. The hearing was postponed until August 15. Judge Samuel H. Gardner recently refused to enjoin Finley from serving as chairman of the board. At that time, John E. Evans, Sr., representing Moritz, suggested to the court that quo warranto proceedings should have been brought, and following Judge Gardner's decision in the first case, Moritz then brought the quo warranto action. The latter was appointed by Mayor McNair to the position occupied by Finley, but the latter refused to give up his office to Moritz on the ground that his appointment was illegal.

FATHER JAMES R. COX

FASCISTI DENY OFFER TO COX

There is confusion among the Black Shirts.

This confusion was reported by Hugh B. Cobb, national secretary of the American Fascist, Order of Black Shirts. Cobb explained this confusion was caused when Father James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, announced in Rome that he had been offered the leadership of the Philadelphia Fascist Council.

Cobb emphasized that his Black Shirts were not connected with the organization seeking Father Cox.

Truck Hits Girl, Police Hold Driver

Anna Lakes, 18, of 15 Penrod street, was recovering today in the St. Francis Hospital of a probable skull fracture, sustained when she was struck by a truck allegedly driven by Andrew Raspanti, 30, 3609 Dawson street, yesterday at Liberty avenue and Twenty-first street. Raspanti was arrested charged with reckless driving.

HUGE PETITION TO ASK CANAL BUILDING

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 31.—August 6 will be celebrated as Canal Day, it was decided here following a dinner last night dedicated to waterways.

Approval by United States Army engineers of the 102-mile Beaver-Mahoning Canal route to Lake Erie, it was asserted, ends a fight of nearly 50 years.

The next step must be decision by the federal government to set the work in motion by appropriating $128,000,000 in Public Works Administration funds.

PLAN PETITIONS

Two hundred thousand signatures to petitions asking the administration to go ahead with the building of the canal from Pittsburgh to Lake Erie are to be sought at once.

Boy Scouts, members of the Foresmen's Club working in the plants of the Mahoning district, and the Four H clubs in rural sections will assist in getting signatures, it was explained.

BENEFIT TO MANY

C. F. Hammond, chairman of the citizens' committee at Youngstown, said the Chamber of Commerce was giving the move every backing.

He added that the improvement, if accomplished, would directly affect four counties in Ohio and three in Pennsylvania, with a total area of more than 3,800 square miles and a combined population of more than 800,000 inhabitants.

The canal project, however, is national rather than local, since it proposes for the salvation of this industrial district and that of Pittsburgh, a direct route to lake ports and the sea.

Prisoner Escapes Rockview Farm

HARRISBURG, July 31.—(AP.)—John Wesolaski, 25, has escaped from Rockview Penitentiary, where he was serving a three to six-year term for breaking and entering and larceny in Erie County.

11,000 TO SIGN INCINERATOR PROTEST

Allegheny County Commissioners will soon be presented with a formal protest, expected to be be signed by 11,000 residents of the East End, against the construction of a city-owned garbage plant at the Brilliant Pumping Station, Mrs. T. C. Duff, chairman of the East End women's committee against incinerators, announced today.

Representatives of 174 organizations in the district have also signed the protest, Mrs. Duff stated.

In addition to the objections of the East End community, residents of Aspinwall, Verona and Oakmont have joined in the fight against the Brilliant Pumping Station site. Similar protests are made by inhabitants of the North Side district, opposing the Chateau and Reedsdale streets site, which is the other of the two sites proposed by the city for the plant.

The East End women's committee declared the incinerator of the Brilliant location would be a nuisance in the vicinity of the new $3,535,000 Allegheny River boulevard, and the Highland Park Bridge, which will be constructed soon through a $24,500,000 loan obtained from the Public Works Administration by the county.

The County Commissioners have promised to set a date shortly for hearing the protest, which has already been received by the City Council. The commissioners have final jurisdiction in the dispute because of a new state law which provides that they must approve all plans for incinerator sites.

WIFE DIVORCES RONALD COLMAN

5,000 CHILDREN ATTEND OUTING

Nearly all the freckled-faced boys and girls of Pittsburgh are at West View Park today, where the Sun-Telegraph contest to select the champions is being held as the high spot in the annual National Kiddies' Day outing sponsored by this newspaper. Participating are Quin Hall's Junior Patrol and the Sun-Telegraph wing of the Junior Birdmen of America.

At noon it was estimated that more than 5,000 children had flocked into the park, nearly 1,000 of whom were enrolled in the freckle face contest, which was to be held at the bandstand at 2 o'clock. The names of the champions, both boys and girls, will be announced in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

In the meantime the guests had been provided with strips of free tickets for the rides and attractions and these were kept going to capacity all the afternoon. The crowd was so big that the time limit for using the tickets had to be extended beyond 7 p. m., so that none of the children would be deprived of their day's enjoyment.

CUBAN TARIFF PACT NEAR

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—The Roosevelt administration's new tariff-bargaining policy is about to bear its first fruit in the form of a reciprocal treaty with Cuba.

The final draft, officials disclosed today, is being negotiated in Havana by Ambassador Jefferson Caffery and Cuban officials. Announcement of the finished document is expected early in August.

The last draft is said to be undergoing important changes because of information obtained during recent tariff hearings in Washington.

The new law gives the President a free hand to raise or lower tariffs 50 per cent in negotiating trade treaties. It also contains a provision, said to have been insisted on by some members of Congress that hearings must be held before tariffs are changed.

Landers and Addie Exum were tried jointly for the murder in Staten Island of Addie's husband, Irving Exum. Both were convicted, but the courts later freed the woman.

Landers' counsel said the young Negro once was selected as Fisk University's representative on an All-American Negro football team. The Governor was told Landers came "from the best Negro families" at Nashville, Tenn.

URGE LIEN SWAP FOR U. S. CASH

Representatives of the Progressive League of Pittsburgh will interview the County Commissioners and members of the Allegheny County Authority this week to urge a proposal to trade liens on delinquent taxes for that portion of the federal grant which is a gift to the county.

Under this plan, presented to Council last week, the Allegheny County Authority would turn over all the completed projects to the county in return for the county's bonds and liens on delinquent taxes.

DALLAS, Tex., July 31.—(AP.)—"If Fred loses it will kill me," 75-year-old Mrs. W. J. Patrick had said.

Yesterday she picked up a newspaper and read that her son, Fred Patrick, was trailing in the county clerk's race. She fell to the floor and a few minutes later was dead from a heart attack.

QUINTUPLETS TO HAVE NEW WINTER HOME

CALLANDER, Ont., July 31.—(AP.)—A modern residence will be started within a few days to give comfort and convenience during the cold winter months to the Dionne quintuplets.

The new building, which will be erected on higher ground directly across the road from the old frame farmhouse, will be of brick construction, heated with a furnace and supplied with water and light from a small power plant.

At a roadside nearby a booth will be constructed where Oliver Dionne, 67-year-old grandfather of the babies, will sell photographs of the five little girls. The nurses' cabin will be moved across the road to a site near the new home.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician attending the quintuplets, advised Junior Chamber of Commerce of Mayfield, Ky., that it would be impossible at the present time for Mrs. Elizabeth Lyon, only living mother of quintuplets in the United States, to see the five baby girls.

He added, however, that at some date in the near future she would be welcomed. A telegram from the chamber said if Mrs. Lyon could visit the babies she would make the trip by airplane.

BUREAUS FIGHT OVER BIRDS

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—Birds and beasts became an issue today between two government bureaus.

The Bureau of Biological Survey accuses the Reclamation Bureau of "senseless destruction" of areas that afforded shelter for wild life.

Survey officials said the Reclamation Bureau has drained lakes and marshes, taken water from streams indiscriminately for irrigation projects, and destroyed vast wild life areas.

J. N. Darling, chief of the bureau, declined to talk about the mater, but other officials condemned a system which they said had made large areas useless for either agriculture or wild life.

A report is being prepared for Secretary Ickes in an effort to obtain co-ordination of work of the two bureaus.

Refuse on Beach Routs Socialites

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—(AP.)—Socialites, going down to exclusive Bailey's beach to swim, put their noses a little higher in the air when they found the shore covered with refuse. It was apparently washed in from Navy vessels anchored in the harbor. Civil and authorities were notified.

MARCONI INVENTS NAME

Universal Service.

ROME, July 31.—Guglielmo Marconi can invent more things than radio developments. He has invented a name for his secretary.

Some time ago he engaged a young student in whom he was interested as his secretary. The young man's name, though he was no relation, was Marconi.

This soon became confusing. Letters got mixed up. Telephone calls for the master went to the and everybody is happy.

man and vice versa. Marconi the inventor and Marconi the secretary got all tangled up, said Marconi, the inventor.

"There are too many Marconis in this house. I have been Marconi longer than you so I will continue to be Marconi. From now on you will be Di Marco."

TOKIO PREMIER DENIES SEEKING NAVY PARITY

TOKIO, July 31. — (AP.) — Japan does not expect America and Great Britain to reduce their naval armaments to Japan's level, Premier Keisuke Okada told foreign correspondents today.

Japan is undecided, he added, whether to abrogate the Washington treaty of 1922, by which the United States, Britain and Japan established a 5-5-3 ratio for capital ships.

At his first meeting with representatives of the world's press, the new premier expressed confidence the 1935 naval conference would succeed, saying:

"In order to reduce the burden of taxation borne by peoples of the world, naval armaments must be reduced to the smallest proportions possible. Such naval limitation must come from reductions on the part of the heaviest armed nations."

Premier Okada was asked whether this means Japan would demand parity with America and Great Britain, requiring them to reduce to Tokio's level. He answered:

"It is not in my mind to expect such radical changes as that so suddenly."

DRYS TO BACK RUM CONTROL BY CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—A move to rally support back of the Sheppard resolution to return to Congress power to control the liquor traffic was announced today by the Anti-Saloon League.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, called a regional conference for August 28 and 29 at Winona Lake, Ind., to provide for "unified action in support" of the Sheppard proposal.

Other subjects to be considered, he said, were "state dry legislation and the organization of young people against the use of and the traffic in beverage alcohol."

McBride announced the Winona Lake conference would be the first of a series to cover the entire nation "for the consideration of post repeal conditions and the formulation of Anti-Saloon League programs and precedure in each section of the country."

Those invited to the conference, he said, include state superintendents and other league officials from Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Kentucky.

Buyers Asked To Aid Drive on Illegal Rum

PHILADELPHIA, July 31. — (AP.) — Some bootleggers' customers of America's night club era are being asked to step up to Uncle Sam and quietly whisper what they know about the bootleggers of today.

F. W. Wills, of the alcohol tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, has directed letters to several hundred persons asking them to tell how often they are solicited by illegal salesmen, whether by telephone or in person, and what prices are being offered.

Wills gained his experience in rum control as an agent of the Bureau of Prohibition, and some of the "representative citizens" he is asking for information, it is understood, were on the lists of bootleggers' customers of several years ago. He stumbled upon them in his prosecution of pre-repeal rum rings.

BEAMISH SEES TEMPERANCE

EMAUS, Pa., July 31.—(AP.)—Declining income from Pennsylvania's liquor store system, blamed for the state's jobless relief plight, is cheered by Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, as a sign of returning temperance and prosperity.

Pennsylvania is leading the nation in control of its alcohol appetite, Beamish told devout Moravians of this historic little town as they opened celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the borough's charter.

Not only does falling liquor revenue constitute "one of the most heartening signs of the times," but a renewed interest in homes and churches indicates a spiritual uprising in the American people, he said.

Suicide Succeeds On Third Attempt

BURLINGTON, Ia.—(INS.)—Unable, twice, to kill himself, Sam Black, 32, committed suicide on his third attempt. He first slashed his wrists. Drinking poison did not bring death.

Choir to Feature Last Tech Concert

SAVANT URGES TREATY NAVY

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A seven-point world peace program, topped by expansion of the United States Navy to treaty limitations, is proposed by Dr. Herbert Wright, professor of international law and head of the department of politics at Catholic University of America.

The six other "planks" in Dr. Wright's program outlined before Catholic students attending the Columbia University summer session, were:

Government control of the manufacture and sale of munitions.

An embargo on munitions to any and all belligerents refusing to submit their controversies to arbitration or other peaceful settlement.

Prohibition of loans to all belligerents refusing to submit their controversies to arbitration or other peaceful settlement.

Fleet Ordered To Observe Navy Day

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—Naval commanders afloat and ashore were instructed yesterday by Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, to cooperate with the Navy League in observance of Navy Day, October 27.

The celebration will have as its slogan:

"A Treaty Navy Fully Manned, Backed by an Adequate Merchant Marine."

In informing Secretary Swanson of plans to commemorate Navy Day on the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, Nelson Macy, league president, said the day would mean much this year to every patriotic American because:

"We have started an orderly, systematic naval-building plan, thanks to the President's wise policy and the passage of the Vinson bill."

BRITAIN VOTES BIG AIR FORCE

Approval of the expansion program was voted overwhelmingly by the House of Commons after Stanley Baldwin, acting prime minister, expressed belief Germany may greatly enlarge her armaments in the air.

A Laborite motion to censure the air plans was rejected by a vote of 404 to 60.

Distrust of Germany's plans was indicated by the statements of Baldwin and Sir John Simon, foreign secretary. Opponents of increased appropriations for aircraft did not press their fight.

A charge that Germany "in violation of the peace treaty has created a military air force now nearly two-thirds as strong as our home defense force" was made by Winston Churchill, conservative member of Parliament.

3 Held in Robbery Of Gas Station Man

Three men were held without bail in county jail today accused of the holdup of Joseph Saix, Sr., gasoline station owner, of 639 Cypress street, Glassport.

They were Bud McNeilis, 22, of 601 Allegheny avenue; Frank Roscewski, 23, Summit street, and Walter Melczarski, 30, Indiana avenue, all of Glassport.

RAILWAYS OPEN FIGHT AGAINST WAGE BOOST

If the 1,800 operators of the Pittsburgh Railways were well advised they would consent to a reduction in pay rather than demand an increase, Attorney Carl E. Glock, counsel for the Railways, contended today.

An increase, he said, might lead bondholders to foreclose on the property and institute further drastic economies.

Glock carried on the railways' side of the dispute as hearings were renewed before an arbitration board in the City-County Building.

He said the company's financial condition was sad, that it was existing only because of the "indulgence" of bondholders, and equipment companies which were owed money. He denied that the new speed cars endangered the health and nerves of the operators.

The union is asking a wage increase to $1.10 an hour from 74 cents, and a six-hour work day, in addition to readjustment of working conditions.

COUNTY FIGHTS BIG LEGAL FEE

County Solicitor J. P. Fife testified today in Common Pleas Court that he believes Attorney Archibald W. Powell is entitled not to a $12,500 fee, but to $1,000 for his services to the Allegheny County Employes' Retirement Fund. Powell, who is also solicitor for Controller Robert G. Woodside, is sueing the County Commissioners for the larger figure.

Woodside testified he was surprised by his solicitor's demand, explaining Powell drew a $3,800 salary.

County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield and three members of the pension board, W. H. Frasher, A. E. Anke and Edward H. Simon, also testified they wer surprised when Powell specified a certain sum, saying he had promised to ask the court to fix the amount. Powell explained this by testifying Judge Samuel H. Gardner had asked him specifically what he thought his services worth.

Powell represented the pension fund in its successful fight to compel the Commissioners to appropriate $75,000 for the fund.

U. S. IN NEW WAR ON 'LEGGERS

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP.)—Before thinking of slashing liquor taxes to drive out the bootlegger, Secretary Morgenthau wants to see whether the full police powers of the Treasury cannot do the trick.

Disclosing plans to go after the illicit liquor men hammer and tongs, Morgenthau said yesterday that he wanted to see 'whether the government can clean up what we inherited from the last 12 or 14 years."

There have been suggestions from observers that a way to make the bootleggers' road hard was to cut taxes so the prices of legitimate liquor would be lowered.

In the alcohol tax unit's new drive against bootlegging, Morgenthau has chosen the Chicago district as a laboratory. This comprises Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. The results of the comprehensive campaign there, he said, will be used as a basis for work throughout the country.

Lawton to Play 'David Copperfield'

HOLLYWOOD, July 31.—(AP.)—Frank Lawton, young English actor, was selected today to play the lead role in the forthcoming M-G-M picture "David Copperfield."

Lawton's most conspicuous role since coming to Hollywood was that in "Cavalcade."

Feels Fine... Never Tired

"My four children were born close together. I lived on a farm with lots of work to do and I got all rundown so I could hardly go. Four bottles of your Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully. Twice since then I had to take several bottles to regulate and strengthen me. I take care of my house and children, do all my laundry and do home work for a garment factory, and I feel fine and never get tired. I have also used the Sanative Wash and it relieved my trouble."—Mrs. Chas. S. Pittinger, 55 Conklin Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

BOY POET SLAIN PENNING LAST 'LOVE NOTE'

International News Service.

WOODLAND, Cal., July 31.—District Attorney Chester MacDonald declared today that his case was "practically complete" against Judson Doke, 33, San Leandro City official, who surrendered to police after he shot and killed Lamar Hollingshead, the youthful poet-lover of the beautiful and vivacious Mrs. Doke.

While preparations for the coroner's inquest, which will be held today went forward, the district attorney declared:

"Before Hollingshead died he told me that he had turned over to Doke the letters written by him by Mrs. Doke and in return, Doke gave the boy the letters he had written to the woman."

FINAL LETTER

Confessing to authorities that he shot Hollingshead, 23-year-old junior student at the University of California, Doke declared that he sought the return of his pretty wife's letters to Hollinshead and then demanded that the collegian write a letter to his wife saying their love affair had ended. MacDonald continued:

"Hollingshead said just before he died that he sat down at a table in the cabin where the shooting took place and began to write the letter demanded by doke—a message to Mrs. Doke declaring that all was over between them.

"Hollingshead said he wrote the date on the sheet of paper—July 26, 1934—and then hesitated.

" 'Hurry up or I'll plug you—my finger is itchy,' the boy quoted Doke as saying.

" 'I'll be damned if I will,' Hollingshead replied.

PILLOW UNDER HEAD

"Doke then fired and Hollingshead fell to the floor. Doke went outside, brought back a can of water to the wounded boy's side and placed a pillow under his head. He told the men waiting outside the cabin, 'You'l better take that boy to a doctor.' "

MacDonald declared he has a "surprise witness," Bill Blossom, ranchman, who will corroborate much of the youth's deathbed statements.

The burning lovel etters which passed between Mrs. Doke and the college youth will be introduced in evidence at the murder trial "to show the motive," MacDonald declared.

Doke's attorneys indicated an "unwritten law" defense.

London Holds Mass To Honor Dollfuss

LONDON, July 31.—(AP.)—A requiem mass for Engelbert Dollfuss, Austria's slain Chancellor, was held at noon in Westminster Cathedral today. Among those attending was United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham. Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, was the principal British official present.

'Chute Jumper To Attempt New Record

Earthward ho!

With those two words Capt. R. E. (Garry) Garrison will plunge from the sky nearly 2 dozen times at Bettis Field Sunday. It will be his endeavor to break his world's record for successive parachute jumps, established Sunday at the Latrobe Airport.

'Chuter Garrison

He made 20 jumps in 12 hours and 45 minutes, breaking the record recently set by Otto Hover, of Latrobe, by one leap.

The veteran air performer also broke Hoover's time record of 17 jumps in 12 hours. He made 17 leaps in 10 hours.

Garrison will make his first jump Sunday at 8 a. m. He said he hopes to make 24 'chute jumps, adding:

"Though the air currents at Bettis are rather treacherous for parachute jumping, I think I can do it."

LABOR LEADER QUIZZES MAYOR ON UNION FIGHT

NEW Y... Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 31.—Hospitals are struggling with the greatest emptiness in their history. Another year such as the past and many private institutions will have to close. Thousands who would patronize them under ordinary circumstances cannot afford to now and remain home.

The expensive sanitariums whose patronage is largely rich hypochondriacs, are dying off like flies in the winter time. Much of New York's oversupply of hospitals is attributed to the vast Medical Center which opened just as the depression was getting under way.

The medical profession generally is also affected by the continued slump. Several buildings whose offices were tenanted by specialists have undergone wholesale exodus. Specialists have returned to the outmoded system of having offices in their homes.

Even the great surgeons whose incomes often totaled $200,000 a year have had them more than halved. But the greatest dilemma is faced by the young medical graduate whose first step is an internship. There are hundreds for every job. And no jobs.

Dorothy Parker, leaving the enormous Medical Center, which is by the way, on the outskirts, sometime ago was asked her impression. "It's all right for a visit," she is reputed to have generalized, "but I wouldn't want to live there."

The irrepressible Gene Fowler is on the loose again. He has been in Hollywood long enough to decide on a topic for a book. This time it will be biographical and concern the life of Mack Sennett, once dubbed by Rob Wagner Dean of the Custard College. The tome will be called "Father Goose" and a special edition for the movie set will be morocco tooled and goffered, with gilt edges. Fowler, as he does most of his books, will go into seclusion and turn it out, biff, bang, bing in 10 days.

Most authors who turn out unpredictable books buckitty, buckitty are afflicted with writing seizures as definite as an epilepsy. I have heard Sinclair Lewis swear he would never write another volume. With a hand skyward, he was through. Charles G. Norris has sabbatical years punctured with vows of total literary abstinence. Arthur Somers Roche once swore he would never turn out another tome. But the fever assails them, lightning like. They can't sleep or eat. And if the distemper is allowed to continue they are liable to drink. So they sit before blank white paper with the sheepish look of "I simply had to." It is as though they had been laid upon by a dreadful curse.

On a Forty-eighth street Broadway corner once a week a meek band of salvationists make a pitch to salvage souls, if possible, from the swift currents of the hard-boiled tenderloin. There is a sweet-faced blonde whose sugared choplogic seems especially appealing to pert hussies, mobsters and do-nothings of the parade. The other night, with her arms in a monitory gesture, she was making a beseechment. Suddenly she stopped, paled a bit and stepped back into the semi-circle. A rat-faced fellow with a leer, ground his heel in a tossed away cigaret and with a shrug walked away. The most surprising bit of curb drama I ever saw.

Lately Harlem has become conscious of the too short-lived Paul Lawrence Dunbar, Afro-American poet. I notice a Paul Dunbar sidewalk cafe, the first up there, a Paul Dunbar's Boys Club and a Dunbar bank, although the latter may be coincidence. One of my first newspaper jobs was on the Dayton, O., Herald, which Dunbar quitted as a copy boy and general roustabout. The staff used to read his attempts at sonneteering with giggly tolerance. Not one sensed greatness.

This story comes second hand but authentic. A dapper fellow stood at the Southampton dock watching friends on an American liner slip off into the mist that is ever the chalgy bourne of England. When the vessel vanished, he sighed deeply, passed his kerchief across his eyes, plunged his hands into his pockets and slumped. The fellow was Jimmy Walker.

BENJAMIN BENSON

'Coast Kid' Rides Rods to Meeting In Ohio

Pittsburgh may be host to the 1935 hobo convention.

This information comes from Benjamin Benson, 51, former Pittsburgh newsboy, publicity agent for the Hoboes' Union.

Passing through today—via box car—to attend this year's hobo jamboree, opening next Tuesday at Cincinnati, he said:

"Pittsburgh has good facilities for our hobo convention and I'm going to bring it here next year. Besides we got lots of friends here who'll back us."

The "Coast Kid," as Benson is called by "knights of the road" everywhere, doesn't want the "folks" here to get the wrong slant on the possible '35 convention. He stated:

"Tell them that a hobo is not a bum, but a migratory worker. Take me for example. I'm a five-cent sketch artist. I don't do anything fancy but it pays my way—except on railroads."

At the Cincinnati meeting, he said, the hoboes are going to demand a dollar a day in government camps and board or else:

"We are going to Washington 10,000 strong. It will be another Coxey's Army."

And besides, he added, a boycott will be declared on Uncle Sam's transient camps.

Appellate Judge Dies in Montreal

AUGUST SALES OFFER BUYERS BARGAINS

Prices Are Low, Values Sound, Mercantile Leaders Say

With the August sales at hand, a survey of Pittsburgh stores shows a prospect of extensive business. Prices are such buyers are assured of making no mistake in doing their purchasing next month, mercantile leaders of the district say.

Although prices are low, values are sound, they add. Prices may go higher, but they are not likely to go lower, for the commodity market is far more stable than it was last August, and if there is any price fluctuation it is more likely to be upward.

Much depends upon the future course of the federal government, upon public works employment, upon industrial payrolls, they explain.

BETTER POSITION

People of the Pittsburgh district are in better position to take advantage of August buying opportunities than they were a year ago, according to one department store head, who said:

"They are clearer of debt than they were. Last August, no matter how tempting the bargain, they couldn't buy it.

"Many were unemployed or on relief. Since then they have had more employment, and the money has gone into immediate circulation.

"The character of the people has been shown in the way they have first of all attacked their debts. They are in position today to buy sanely at low August prices."

Another merchandising man added:

"It is obvious that if people do spend more money in August that it will have a stimulating effect upon retail trade and re-employment of others. But that is less of an argument for August spending than the plain truth that August values are as sound as they can possibly be offered and that to move the merchandise the prices have been pared to the point of minimum profits."

CLEAR TO INVEST

The manufacturing phase is in far different shape than it was a year ago, and this also is seen by one store manager as an inducement for August spending. He said:

"As everyone knows, manufacturers' stocks have been disposed of, and orders are filled only as the demand arises. This has left the average store clear to invest its funds to the best advantage in finding values for its customers."

Some lines which concentrate upon the August market offer values this year which are not likely to be possible later, it is pointed out. Among these are furs and furniture.

One fur man said:

"August fur offerings always are wider than those in fall or winter for the reason that the fur market has had time to prepare for August showings. The August selection is not only more varied, but furs are apt to be better too. The mannfacturer invariably uses his finest skins first, and these are all available in August, the big fur month of the year.

"While furs are somewhat higher than last August, when distress sales were in evidence, furs are still underpriced. There may be a definite advance—particularly if the season proves successful. I believe prices have been marked closer than at any previous time—especially in the case of fine minks."

TEXTILE FIELD

What is happening in the field of textiles is a subject of some slight disagreement. Cotton, some feel, is not likely to rise rapidly, although it is as low as it is likely to be for a long time. Others predict definite advances because of the short cotton crop.

The federal processing tax on cotton, effective in advancing prices last year, is no longer a factor, but the 25 per cent curtailment of cotton crops is decidedly a factor to be taken into account, they assert.

On the whole, the concensus of opinion agrees that money spent

MISS JEAN HARLEY OF EMSWORTH . . SHE PICKS UP TO REDUCE—

Forty matches and a good healthy will are all you need in this newest wrinkle to burn up that avoirdupois.

Some people call it fat, but no matter what you call it, the match trick is said to take off from 10 to 12 pounds in 12 days.

All you have to do is to buy a penny box of matches. Rather, you have to buy four boxes of matches. They come about 40 matches to the box.

Scatter the matches from one box on the floor, then pick them up one by one, without bending your knees, and put them on a shelf that you can barely reach standing on your tiptoes.

Do this for three days. Then repeat for three days with two boxes of matches. Repeat for three days with three boxes and finish off with three days of picking up the 160 matches contained in four boxes.

If the matches have been heavy enough and your avoirdupois is the giving kind you will have lost some pounds, or something.

M'NAIR WARNS SAFETY MEN ON AFFILIATION

Organization Menaces Property in City, Fagan Told

Mayor McNair today advised police and firemen that the way to improve their economic condition is through politics, not union organization.

He made the statement to a labor delegation headed by P. T. Fagan, president of the Central Labor Union. The delegation had called on the Mayor to inquire into the city executive's attitude toward labor organization.

Fagan led the quiz by asking the Mayor if he was opposed to the National Recovery Act.

The Mayor replied:

"I'm not for it, nor against it. I think it's a lot of useless stuff."

"You're in the middle of the road, then?"

"No; I'm not."

Fagan voiced the sentiment of the group and announced:

"What we are here for is to find out what your position is toward organized labor. Are you for us or against us?"

McNair replied:

"You can't answer that yes or no. A thousand and one questions enter into that."

The mayor and various members of the group got into a discussion of general strikes and the mayor demanded:

"If you called a general strike and called out the firemen . . . the city would burn down . . . that's what would happen."

He insisted that if ever the firemen went on strikes he would replace them with volunteers.

Fred Meyer, representing the carpenter's union, asked why mail carriers were permitted to belong to a union. McNair replied:

"The mail is more important than fire."

STATE WARS ON AUTO VIOLATORS

State highway patrolmen and local police are arresting motorists at 10 specific places for violating "stop" signs, the Pittsburgh Motor Club today warned.

The club listed the following enforcement areas where most of the arrests have been made:

House on Boulevard Fired With Gasoline

Police are investigating a fire in the gasoline-soaked vestibule of a two-family dwelling at 1825 Boulevard of the Allies early yesterday. Louis Napoleon, residing on the second floor, told police he had heard no one on the lower floor, which is unoccupied. Police reported they had a clue.

RWD FUND CUT MAY COST JOBS

Officials of the Relief Works Division in Allegheny County today said they feared curtailment of the RWD program here as a result of a reduction in allotments for this district.

A sum of $417,000 for August, compared to $672,000 for July, formed the basis of their fears.

The county's share was part of a $2,250,000 allocation distributed throughout the state.

The program here, unless additional funds are forthcoming, will mean that approximately 12,000 men will be thown out of employment by the middle of the month, they said.

Hope for additional work was foreseen in the new government job-giving program, effective about September 1. This will supercede the present organization.

Under plans of the new program, one job will be available for every worthy family in the district, whereas, under the RWD setup only men on relief rolls were used.

Boy Kills Brother Playing 'Cowboy'

HUNTINGDON, Pa., July 31.—(AP.)—A too-realistic game of "cowboy" has claimed the life of Boyd N. Wright, 10, of Henderson Township.

Boyd and his brother, Buell, 9, took rifles from their home while their mother was out of sight. They pointed them at each other in play. Buell pulled the trigger of his gun and Boyd fell dead.

A. V. Davis Shares In Wife's Estate

Davis, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the board of the Aluminum Corporation of America, according to an Associated Press dispatch from New York. The remaining half goes to a step-daughter, Dorothy A. Davis, of New York City. Mrs. Davis died intestate November 1, 1933.

CHIROPRACTORS OPEN MEET

Charges that little advance has been made in the treatment of disease during the past 6,000 years were made today at the opening of the annual convention of the National Chiropractic Association in the William Penn Hotel.

The charges were made by Dr. Ruland W. Lee, of Newark, N. J. The first civilization, he declared, drank gall obtained from animals. Today we are vaccinated with serum taken from sick animals, he said.

Chiropractors, he declared, must concentrate on public education. Medical men are in a much better position to influence public opinion, he said.

Boulevard Crashes Lead Accident List

Seneca street and the Boulevard of the Allies takes first place in the list of most dangerous street intersections during the first six months of the year, according to a report issued by L. W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer.

The boulevard intersection led the list with 14 accidents. Next came the South portal of the Liberty tubes at the intersection of Saw Mill Run boulevard and West Liberty avenue, with 12 accidents. The Boulevard of the Allies ramp at Forbes street had 11 accidents; Bigelow boulevard and Herron avenue, nine; and Baum boulevard at Liberty avenue, nine.

Broken Legs Bring Death to Woman

Pneumonia that developed after an unusual fracture of both legs caused the death of Mrs. Anna Yassem, 62, of Ford City, last night in the Allegheny General Hospital.

The fracture occurred as Mrs. Yassem was being carried down the stairs of her home, July 12, by a son, Michael. The woman was an invalid, and the weight of her feet and limbs caused the fracture, according to the morgue.

PLACERVILLE, Cal., July 31.—(AP.)—Fear and shock which overtaxed a weak heart were blamed today for the death of Erna May Allen, 18, of Berkeley, who fell into Lake Tahoe while aquaplaning. An autopsy disclosed there was no water in her lungs.

SUSPECT SHOT IN CHASE

One youth was wounded as East End police early today chased two suspects in the Garfield district in connection with the robbery of the Schiller & Davis drug store, 5401 Penn avenue.

The wounded youth, hit in the left elbow, was Eugene Martin, 22, of 4601 Choke way. He was treated at the Homeopathic Hospital. Martin with Clyde Elliott, 17, of 4922 Broad street, was being held for hearing tomorrow in Morals Court.

Patrolman Oliver K. Patton discovered the two youths in the rear of the store. After a short chase, they evaded Patton, who notified the East End police station. A police squad responded and discovered the youths at a parked car nearby. Again fleeing, the youths were captured at Dearborn street and Millvale avenue. A quantity of cigarets, fountain pens, two watches and $1.13 in pennies were found in the rear of the store.

Police said the youths admitted stealing a car from Cypress street and are checking for the owner.

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick's mansion can't be used as a tea room, so now her executors want it to exhibit bathtubs and radios.

The Zoning Board forbade its use as a swanky restaurant, so the executors asked permission yesterday to hold a six-day exhibition of industrial wares tracing progress in the manufacture of sundry bathroom fixtures, glassware and radios.

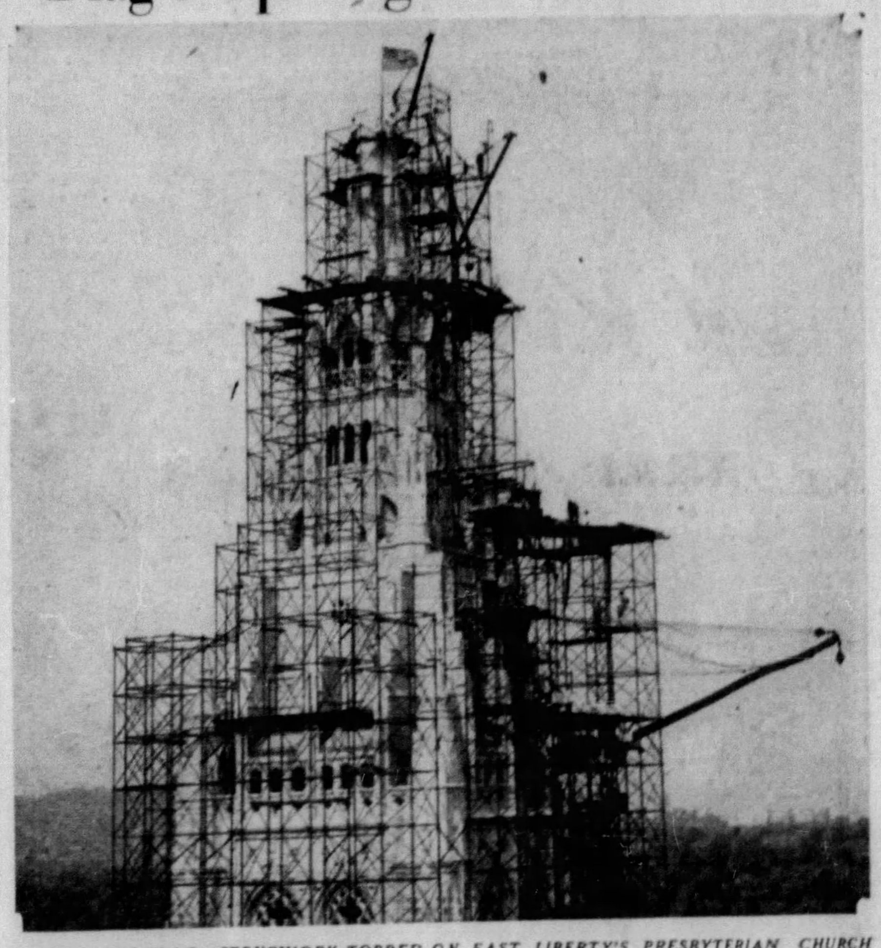
Flag's Up! Highest Stone's Set!



RAISING THE FLAG: STONEWORK TOPPED ON EAST LIBERTY'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The lofty scene on the tower of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church as workmen unfurled the flag announcing the setting of the highest stone—not quite the last. The church building's at Highland and Penn avenues, a Mellon gift. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

New Speedy Air Service Ignores Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh will not even be a flag stop on Transcontinental and Western Air's new and speedy 18-hour coast-to-coast flight.

Scheduled for inauguration tomorrow The Sky Chief flight will by-pass the City-County Airport as an answer to Commissioner C. C. McGovern's charge of "bluff."

As the huge airliner passes over here at 6 p. m., headed west, the county's $4,000,000 field will be completely ignored, according to new TWA time schedules just released.

McGovern, announcing a public hearing for the airlines who have complained against existing rates, declared he did not believe anybody except "officials commercially interested" are behind the movement to reduce rates. He said:

"At the present time there is carefully stimulated propaganda to force the moulding of public opinion against the county. I don't believe that anybody in Allegheny County except officials commercially interested are behind this movement. At the present time this airport, the greatest in the country, is only a stopover station. The records of the air office will show the amount earned in fares out of Pittsburgh and the amount the county receives."

Leslie P. Arnold, assistant to the president of the airline, told the County Commissioners, July 10, that unless the present airport charges were revised to a more equitable basis Pittsburgh would be eliminated from future schedules.

McNair Finds 'Dignity'; Credits His Mustache

His honor, with some trepidation, awaited the return of his wife from vacation.

He allowed the adornment to sprout unmolested while she was on vacation and he fears she will order its destruction when she returns late today.

The Mayor, however, is hoping for the best. As he put it today:

What Makes Good Radio Music?

By HENRIETTE WEBER
(Pinchhitting for Alexander).

What kind of music does the radio public want? Far be it from me to try to answer that question. I know what I think, but my thought is no better than the next man's guess.

Lately though, I've been grazing in radio pastures for the first time in my life, and I've discovered that that question of "what music?" is answered by every individual in a way that exactly reflects himself.

The symphony orchestra conductor will tell you the public wants just what he's giving it.

The tenor who can melt your heart with old Irish ballads, that's what the public loves best.

And Broadway is so sold on its red-hot hits, which are "composed on Tuesday, plugged on Wednesday and a hit on Thursday," that you couldn't make it believe that Mugville (that being the rest of the country) can want anything else.

FUTILE SURVEY

WEAF and WJZ recently came out with the results of a solemn survey covering 22 states, in which persons of all classes and habits were asked what they preferred. The concensus, according to the report, was for "better" music. One of the music trade papers wisely remarked "we could have told them that in two minutes and saved them much time and money."

One of the successful radio conductors, whose heart beats exclusively on the "pop" side, said to me, re the report, when I asked him, "Pooh! what the people mean by 'better music' is a popular hit played slow!" And there you are.

Now how are we going to get at this thing? Paul Whiteman has done pioneer work in plugging for certain native composers who have to say.

PROGRESSIVE VIEW

Then there's Frank Black—a man with a real musical mind—who can see all around music, pick the good from the pish-tash, and using the powerful medium of radio for spreading not only the best of the old, but the best of the new. His is a thoroughly progressive point of view. And gosh how we need it!

Modern music is the natural expression of our gifted youngsters, and in the hands of some of them the outstanding points of our true popular music (the kind that is real) is being treated in a serious way as a true expression of modern American feeling. Here again radio, better than anything else, can make known the musical revolution that is going on.

It's the so-called hits which are ground out by the bushel that the general public gets tired of.

It's because there's nothing real behind them!

Now, I ask you, why doesn't real music die? Why do people everywhere (Times Square excepted) clamor for the old songs, the hits of a generation or more ago, the "popular" music as well as the classics? Why doesn't that die? Because it starts a vibration, a thrill, an emotion. It's something to take hold of!

Radio, being all things to all people, has a weighty problem on its hands when it comes to "what music?" But radio is too big, too influential, too wonderful, to remain anything but open-minded regarding music.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The thought that I tried to express in yesterday's column about free speech and the Federal Radio Commission was not clearly set forth due to the lack of space, the last paragraph, the one which brought out the point of the article, being omitted.

So that you all won't think that I was suffering from a mental abberation (you probably will anyway) I want to repeat in short that there should be no cause for concern over free speech restriction with the new Communication Commission.

Two members of the abolished Federal Radio Commission are appointees to the new bureau and inasmuch as the law provides a sub-committee of two and the chairman to specifically pay attention to broadcasting no doubt the same feeling in regard to freedom for radio stations will prevail as heretofore.

The new act, which specifically profides that nothing in it shall be regarded as a hindrance to freedom of speech also provides penalties for the use of any obscene and indecent language over the air.

Big news for those who'll drive for miles to see a horse show.

Greensburg will have one this fall.

Greensburg horse shows, before the depression came along to spoil so many good things, were always a high, high point in the fall season. For several years there has been no show in Greensburg.

MISS COULTER AND DOGS

But now the committee has decided to have one—on Saturday, September 15, on the polo grounds in Greensburg, of course.

Greensburg horse shows have always attracted exhibitors galore and veritable hordes of spectators. They come from Greensburg, from Pittsburgh, from Sewickley, from Indiana, from out of the state.

Miss Margaret Coulter Is on Committee

The only woman on the committee arranging the horse show is Miss Margaret Coulter, master of fox hounds of the Westmoreland Hunt—or the Greensburg Hunt, as it's called sometimes.

Former Greensburg horse shows were two-day affairs, but the committee decided on a one-day show for the first post-depression event.

Heat Wave Bad For Horses, Owners

It will be a few weeks before any pictures can be taken of Greensburg exhibitors-to-be jumping their horses in preparation for the show, for all the horses have been turned out in the fields. And so are out of training.

What's more—the heat wave is bad for horses, too, as well as their owners. So training will have to be concentrated in the final two or three weeks before the show date, September 15.

Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

Hot shots . . . three of them before we have a chance to catch our breath! The original "hot numbers" when it comes to bargain toiletries . . .

Manicure Sets being one. Regular $1.00 sets including a bottle of polish, of polish remover, and cuticle remover . . . the three boxed as a set . . . 18c!

Velour Powder Puffs being second. A large package of them . . . 5 in all . . . in graduated sizes and colors . . . cellophane wrapped . . . of fine velours . . . costing 24c the set. A powder puff to suit every need apparently—from your back to your nose!

And raincoats bringing up the rear! The whole town's been out buying rain capes and rain jackets with skirts . . . and will be glad to hear about the COATS that are here now for $1.00! Nicely "tailored" (CAN you tailor rubber?) . . . in black, blue, red, brown, green, and the much-wailed-after white! Small, medium, large. Plenty of gals are buying them to wear over bathing suits when they "come out of it"!

We've been listening to the dopesters again! Hearing the voices! Watching the passing show of new fall suits and coats as they were unpacked in the receiving room of one of the stores. And we have felt peace steal over our harried soul!

For they're so infinitely RIGHT! So "there" when it comes to chic, with enough restraint in their daring to keep them from being a little TOO fractious! Suits that are the offspring of Martial et Armand's fertile brains . . . suits that claim Lelong as parent . . . suits that look as if they JUST backed off the boat from France. (Of course, most of them are copies . . . we're concerned with telling you the "what's-what" angle, mainly.)

Nice bits to them—like slot seaming down the back. Like tucks on top of the shoulders. Like patch pockets of fur! And the fabrics are the most important of all. Every fashion note of the season admonishes one to watch her fabric! Jacquards are in . . . with all the glory of their diamond patterns, the intricate weaves that almost make you get down and squint to really see them! But they're there!

The below-hip-length is the new length for suits. Also many of the new ones are choosing full length coats to go with them . . . that may be worn as topcoats with other frocks. Many are in reality, coats with matching skirts.

We choose this one for ours—a military cut "topcoat" with a skirt and gilet to wear under it. You can do a "marche militaire" in it with no trouble at all. Brown worsted-like fabric that is really softer than worsted. ONLY $29.75.

Others in English tweed . . . nice loud patterns, almost bugle-like in fact! With that loose English swagger that is so appealing when en-wrapping feminine shoulders! These are $39.75.

A group of coats leading off with a rust-colored number. A smart new weave . . . . like so many of the latest ones—with a detachable dyed squirrel cape (nice for ladies with backaches!). And yet another one with a dyed white fox collar that is nothing short of remarkable for its quality at such a price. $59 is the sum that buys either of these.

* * *

And they're but a very, very few of the oodles that have galloped gaily into stockrooms 'round the town. "Swellish," is putting it mildly!

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

DRAMATIC EVENING WRAPS FOR SUMMER NIGHTS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

This department is pretty much wrought up over the explosion of midsummer evening wraps of full length, in stunning contrast to the useful little wraps we have been dancing on the back of our restaurant chairs these al fresco nights. The new numbers are no better and no more attractive, perhaps, but they offer a welcome protection and a new effect which is exalting to the morale.

Gorgeous colors—flaming jewel tones, the same that flash in tropical birds and fishes are used for them. A woman who must ride through dewy country roads from her home to her hostess, or her country club, can pull one on, and arrive in stunning, apple pie order.

One of these wraps sketched—the center model—shows the platter collar which is an instance of international styling of the sort which comes along every so often to prove that you are more or less rumbling in your hat when you check off the gadget as "American," that as "Hollywood" and the other as "French." Two French couturieres and three American designers this month brought out their "original" versions of it, simultaneously, which proves they were original, and that if there is anything new under the sun, telepathy will take the edge off it.

* * *

It is granted that high colored, unusually designed garments of this sort may pall on one very shortly; on the other hand, there is no particular contemporary fashion to them, so that they can be kept in the wardrobe and worn when they fit the mood until they drop to bits.

Miss Christy Will Study Camps

Miss Jean Christy, formerly on the staff of the Allegheny County Girl Scouts and director of Camp Redwing, who is now on the national staff as regional camp adviser, will be in Pittsburgh on Friday. Miss Christy comes to study the local day camps and will visit the Crafton camp, which is the only one operating on Friday.

Many of the day camps are running on the unit plan this year, that is, they are arranging their activities according to age. Many, also, have taken themes, the Crafton unit, for instance, specializing in Charliers Valley history and the Mt. Lebanon basing all its dramatics and other activities on Greek mythology.

Volksfest Plans Are Made for Saturday

The German American Federation, Allegheny County branch, will hold its annual Volksfest at Linden Grove, near Castle Shannon, on Saturday.

Preparations have been made by the executive committee, headed by Reinhard Ullrich, Henry Meunchke, Louis Marhoefer and the various sub committees.

Festivities will begin at 2 o'clock, and include a field meet, athletic contests for men and women, dancing, prize waltz, an exhibition of gymnastic by the German Turners and a concert by the United Singers.

Arrangements For Meeting Planned

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Already news is beginning to filter into this end of the state concerning plans for the annual convention of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, dated for October 15 to 19, at Harrisburg.

Invitations have been received here for the motion picture dinner to take place October 16 at the Penn-Harris Hotel. Speakers announced are Dr. C. F. Hoban, one of the six representatives appointed by President Roosevelt to the Rome, Italy, Congress, and Saul Reenblatt, of Washington, administrator of the NRA motion picture code.

Dr. Hoban's subject is "The Important Features of the Rome Congress of Educational and Instructional Cinematography," and the second speaker will have "The Motion Picture Code and the Public Relations to It" for his topic.

As an added attraction, at 11:30 that night in the ballroom of the hotel, a typical preview will be shown of a "family night program," such as the federation has been sponsoring and encouraging for months.

Dog Kills Rattler, Saves Young Master

UNIONTOWN, July 31—(AP.)—"Boy," just an awkward Airedale pup, was the bane of the Tenman family at Chalk Hill, chewing up slippers, ripping pillows and making a general nuisance of himself in his playful antics.

Now he's the pride of the house, rating a comfortable bed in the basement, and the choice bones left over from dinner.

"Boy" redeemed himself yesterday for all his previous mischief. Accompanying his young master, Charles Tenman, 6, on a hike into the woods, he discovered a coiled rattlesnake in their path. Dog and snake fought a half-hour battle, with the former finally victorious.

Members of the family, searching for the youthful pair, found "Boy" standing between the dead reptile and the lad.

PARIS, July 31.—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lawrence Gillespie, whose daughter, Eileen, is in France with them to forget about her brief romance with John Jacob Astor, are going to deprive the Newport colony of an embarrassing situation, which would have been without precedent in American social feuds.

Gillespie indicated over the telephone from Aix-Les-Bains that when they return to America they will NOT occupy their Mid-Victorian home at Newport, which is within yoohooing distance and only four doors from the chateau where Astor is "newly-wedding" with a bride who was to have been Eileen's bridesmaid.

If they return to Newport at all this fall, it will merely be to visit relatives (who live at a "safe" distance from the Astors), he disclosed.

"Ask John," is the mystifying reply of Mrs. John D. Crimmins, of New York, to friends who can't help asking, in view of her long separation, if and when the legal knot that binds her to her husband may be untied.

He has been in New York since Christmas while she has been at Cannes. She is the former Marjorie Josa, daughter of the English archdeacon.

LIBERTY AT OLIVER

Mama's Boy Wont Give Wife Home of Own

Betty's good friend writes for her . . . She tells a domestic happening in which Betty is the abused one . . . Going to work every day, and then back to her mother's domicile, where friend hubby is indifferent to any future home-making . . . An extravagant boy, who wants everything to be a bed of roses for himself. That's the sort of a fellow Betty's husband is . . .

And can you blame her for wanting someone to FILE a KICK for her?

Dear Miss Brunot:

One fine thing about your column is when one writes for advice there is a chance of helping many others at the same time. I hope this letter does that.

Miss Brunot

I want help for my friend, Betty. I am single, but she has been married for three years, and had worked until May. Her reason for quitting was because friend husband didn't take any interest in trying to make a home of his own. He was so extravagant, too.

HOUSE DINGY

They have stayed with his people. She has put up with more than most girls would. Her father-in-law drinks, and can't keep a job. Then there is a lack of modern conveniences in the in-laws' house, which makes work very hard. Everything there is dingy. It would cripple anyone who had dreams of their own.

Betty has bought furniture with her own money, and it has been stored all this time. She has tried to reason and to plead with her husband to get a small place of their own. They could manage it on what he makes. Previously he has given the reason, he was afraid to leave his mother alone. But knowing her, I think she is able to take care of herself. She has money enough of her own to live on.

Now he openly admits he has no intentions of ever going into a home of his own.

His mother has babied him, and never has allowed him any responsibility. He spends money freely and thinks only of pleasure.

BETTY DISCOURAGED

And poor Betty is plenty discouraged. She's at the point of leaving him, and yet doesn't want to see her marriage break up. Her husband really has many fine traits, if he only had the courage to prove them.

Betty has failed in one way, she is getting careless in her appearance. The husband also has gone down hill a little. I argued with her, and said when we want anyone to do the right thing, we've got to keep up our end of the bargain.

Yet I truly believe all this friend of mine needs is a cozy home of her own where she can plan her own plans and carry them out.

It is very hard to get a man away from his mamma's apron strings after he has made a thorough contact in that direction. Years have gone into the making of a mamma's boy, while a poor wife has only a short while to her credit.

However, Betty will have to stand firmly, and also she must perk up a bit in appearance. A slovenly woman never gets any man's real respect, and it takes respect for Betty to make this young husband go forth, and with no one but her. . . . He has become a coward, all mamma's boys are that. . . . And that cowardly instinct must be erased.

GO BACK TO JOB

Tell Betty to praise him, tell her to refer to his manliness and strength even if such does not exist . . . It takes a lot of coddling to become the rival of a pampering mother. Also tell Betty to go back to her old job, if she can, and refuse to do housework and be a drudge for her in-laws.

When they see she is being no help whatsoever to them, and that all the weight of their son's family is upon them, they are likely to let them go to themselves.

By telling Betty to take up her old job, I am not suggesting she pay her own expenses. Instead she can say she is saving her money for a home of her own . . . and keep saying this so often that it takes root in all the minds about her . . . Remember, she must not nag her husband. She must try in every way to do the humoring of him before mamma does . . .

Three years have been already wasted . . . and in that time, having given in to the in-laws all the time, she has weakened instead of built up her own position. Don't let her consider leaving her man yet . . . Make a BIG TRY for her own happiness FIRST . . .

ANOTHER CHANCE

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 16, and a blue eyed brunette. I am very much in love with a certain young man who is 18. Last year I went with another fellow. There were other girls and fellows and we had a gang.

This present fellow of mine went with another girl. I had known him earlier and it wasn't until I saw him with the other girl, that I knew I wanted him back. Yet now that he goes with me, he doesn't seem to care as much as I do. I wrote him a letter and told him to meet me a certain place, and he did not come. Do you think he has quit even pretending to care? SALLY LOU.

Maybe he didn't get the letter in time to keep the appointment...Give him another chance, Sally Lou . . . Be your own sweet self, and not too aggressive and the chances are he'll come back into the fold . . . and maybe stay there . . . Yet if he doesn't, you are so young that you are likely to have a change of heart, anyway. . . .

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

It is nice to match costume jewelry to the frock. A charming frock of brown faille, with tiny embroidered motifs in white is worn with bracelets of brown beads and white beads on either arm.

Out of the garden are many of the new prints, with their colorful floral patterns. An evening frock of crepe in a lovely field flower print has a side train and a lei of poppies, cornflowers and daisies—the blossoms of the print.

All the world seems to be making a bid for those lovely plaid and check taffeta frocks that are so flattering. A charming model is in red, black, blue, yellow and white and has a large pleated self-ruffles on each shoulder. A small collar with a self-bow and a pleated ruffle is at the hemline.

An interesting announcement by the shoe industry tells us that brown suede is to be very important for autumn wear. A lovely sandal is of brown suede overlaid on one side with bands of copper gold kid; the other side completely of the metal leather, while the top is also of the kidskin.

PERFECTION, SAYS FAY KING, IS OBTAINED BY WEEDING OUT FAULTS

By FAY KING

Elimination is the most important factor in attaining perfection.

In every contest we see how elimination plays its part until in the finals only the best remain.

In those who have achieved outstanding success, we can trace the elimination of this or that flaw or hindrance as they climbed.

Now we are not all ambitious to excel before the world, or to woo the applause of the fickle public, but nearly all of us would like to be at our very best for some one we wish to please.

And for this we, too, must take into consideration the fine art of elimination. If we eliminate one fault, and failing which makes us less than we might be, we have taken a great step forward.

If it is only to please ourselves we should improve.

Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Trapping Your Opponents

In previous hands I have shown how players very frequently get away with unmakable Slams by bidding a suit in which they have a doubtful holding and thus stopping the killing Opening lead in that suit.

In today's hand, the South player, on the way up to a Small Slam contract, bid a three-card suit headed by the Ace. The way the cards lay, seven-odd was absolutely sure against any Opening. However, South's bid paid heavy dividends in another way. It gave the West player an entirely wrong impression of South's holdings and trapped him into making a most unwise Double. South very promptly redoubled, and picked up an extra 910 points.

North, Dealer.

North and South, vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 6 5 ♡ 10 6 5 ◇ 8 ♣ A Q 6 3 2
♠ K 7 ♡ 7 ◇ K J 9 7 6 ♣ J 10 9 5 4	North West East South	♠ 8 4 ♡ Q 9 8 4 ◇ Q 10 5 3 ♣ K 8 7
	♠ J 10 9 3 2 ♡ A K 10 3 2 ◇ A 4 2 ♣ —

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠ (1)	Pass
2 ♠ (2)	Pass	4 ◇ (3)	Pass
4 ♠ (4)	Pass	5 ♣ (5)	Pass
6 ♠ (6)	Pass	Pass	Double (7)
Pass	Pass	Redouble (8)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1. South does not jump the bid even though he holds three-plus honor-tricks, because he is blank in his partner's suit and cannot at this stage tell that the hands "fit."

2. A slight underbid. The North hand has the distribution for a Double Raise, but the sparsity of honor strength causes North to choose the more conservative course.

3. Despite the void in clubs, South, after partner's spade Raise, is interested in a Slam. Three hearts would be an inferential force showing a game. Four hearts, however, is the correct bid, showing the second biddable suit, and by jumping showing Slam possibilities. South decides, however, to be a little bit fancy and bid diamonds, the suit which he does not want led.

4. North is again slightly conservative. After his partner's very strong bid of four diamonds, North should probably immediately accept the Slam try and bid five spades.

5. South still likes his hand. The immediate spade Raise seemed to South to fill the one weak spot in his hand. He bids only five, however, to give North a chance to pass with a minimum hand.

6. North, of course, cannot fail to respond to South's second Slam try.

7. West has fallen for South's bid, hook, line and sinker. Deciding that South's four-diamond bid was made on a legitimate diamond suit, West feels that his diamond strength in back of the bid, together with the King of spades, will enable him to defeat the contract. I do not think I need go very deeply into the foolishness of West's Double. Even assuming the diamond bid was not psychic, West had no reason to believe he could defeat the contract more than one trick at best, and the percentages were definitely against the Double, particularly since the West player knew that North and South were both expert players who were never very far off when they reached a Slam.

8. South has a strong suspicion that West's Double was partly predicated on the King of spades and the expectation that this honor would be behind the Ace. South, of course, now knows that his partner's spade strength is favorably located, and accordingly that there should be very little difficulty in fulfilling the Slam contract.

Actually, the North and South hands fit perfectly, and since both the spade and heart finesses worked, seven-odd was made—720 below the line and 400 above the line for the overtrick, plus the rubber and Slam bonus—a most pleasant interlude for North and South.

(Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your question to Josephine Culbertson, in care of the Sun-Telegraph.)

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Prepare to Carry Off Bound Men

The brick-red flush on Hank's face deepened as my father said that he did not need to tell him to hurry.

"No, no, sir," he gulped. "And I'll tell Bob to bring you the word back. He's a cross-country man and even faster than Ron over this sort of ground."

He turned and scuttled for the path without waiting for an answer, and my father sent an amused smile in my direction.

"He's certainly fussed," I said with an answering smile.

"But functioning," he returned dryly. And then we waited, silently and with growing tension, until Bob appeared at the turn of the wood road, shot a swift look up and down and, finding no one in sight, loped toward us with the beautiful, apparently effortless stride of a track man.

"Everything oke so far, sir," he reported when he reached the car, his easy, assured manner in striking contrast with Hank's diffidence. "Jim sure did a good job tying those Chinks up. But would we all be dead if looks were fatal! I never saw so much concentrated venom before except in the eyes of the cobras in the zoo."

STANDING GUARD

"Where is the small car?" my father asked.

"Almost at the entrance to the glade, sir, just a few feet in. Nobody can see it from the open space, and it's turned around headed this way."

"Where are the boys?"

"Good!" My father's monosyllable managed to convey enthusiastic approval. "Now, will you go back to the opening through which you just entered this road, and take the role of a human semaphore. If the road is clear both ways, signal Otto to come ahead, but the instant a car appears in either direction, signal him to stop, and you take cover in the underbrush.

"Be especially alert when he is about to turn into the wood road. Nobody must see that big car turn in there. It would arouse comment, and that is what we do not want. Do you understand what I want?"

Bob shot at him the quizzical glance of an alert youngster who considers the older generation a fussy lot, but who is willing to put up with their vagaries, partly because he has been trained to courtesy and partly because of a genuine admiration and regard for his elders when they are worth while. But his reply was suavely courteous.

"I think so, sir," he replied. "Just let me run it over. I'm to stand at the junction yonder, with one eye on both sections of the road and the other trained on Otto. I'm to signal him to come ahead if theres nobody in sight, stop him if somebody appears, and be especially careful when he's ready to turn. Is that right?"

"You're letter perfect," my father said smiling. "Tell Otto your directions as you go."

"Aye, aye, sir" Bob's tone held enough sincerity so that his flippancy did not become burlesque, and the next instant he was outlining to Otto with much gesticulation just what the chauffeur's part was to be.

"Hes a flamboyant lad," my father said, when Bob was sprinting down the road again. "But he's an able citizen, although personally I think I prefer Hank's diffidence. Why is that?"

A jerking of my nerves at the sudden sound of Otto's horn echoed his query. Then, as I saw Otto looking in his mirror and Bob slowing down to a walk, I realized that Otto was giving Bob warning of an approaching car.

"Car coming from the rear," I said, when I had twisted around and looked back down the long stretch of road, along which a car was looming larger and larger.

TROOPERS CURIOUS

"I think I'll be gathering autumn leaves," my father said, getting out of the car with alacrity. "Please lean out and direct me. I hope that lad will have sense enough to keep on walking past the road."

"He will," I returned with confidence, which was justified when Bob nonchalantly strolled past the opening as if he did not know it was there. I could steal only an occasional glance at him, however, so intent was I upon giving a convincing performance in my role of nature lover directing the gathering of autumn leaves.

I did not get a good look at the passing car until it was well in advance of us. Then, with panickly little feeling, I realized that it was a state trooper's car, and that the officer who was not driving had turned around, and was giving us what Lillian would have called "the once-and-twice-over."

Neglected Insect Bite May Lead to Infection

Although a mosquito bite is an annoying and painful affliction it rarely results in anything more than temporary discomfort.

Dr. Copeland

But there are several insects, the bites of which cause severe reaction and in rare instances, prove fatal.

A bite from a spider is the most painful and dangerous of all insect bites. Of course, not all spiders are poisonous, but in certain sections of the country spider bites may cause severe poisoning. In many instances the poisoning may be so great as to require treatment in a hospital.

The "black widow", also known as the "shoe button" spider, is the most dreaded. The female of this species is more dangerous than the male. This particular spider has a poison sac which contains a large amount of venom. This is capable of doing as much harm as the venom of a rattlesnake.

When bitten by this insect the victim complains of intense pain all over the body. This may be so severe as to arouse great anxiety. In unsuspected cases of spider bite the diagnosis is often difficult to make. Though death may follow such a bite, recovery usually takes place within three or four days.

Another annoying bite is that of the "red bug". This insect is more commonly known as the "chigger". Chiggers are small and inconspicuous, usually found in damp and moist fields, along streams and river banks. They are rarely encountered in an open field or a closely cropped lawn that is exposed to the rays of the sun.

A chigger bite is indeed a painful affliction. Red blotches appear on the skin. These may reach the size of a half-dollar silver coin. At the site of the bite a blister forms. This soon breaks and care should be taken to prevent infection.

A chigger bite differs from the bite of a black spider in that the pain from the former is purely local and rarely spreads to other parts of the body. A spider bite may be so severe in its general symptoms as to result in delirium and convulsions. Deaths have been reported from the bites of the black spider, but a chigger bite is rarely serious.

Insect bites should never be neglected. What may appear as a trivial wound may ultimately result in severe infection and body poisoning. A sterile gauze bandage should be placed on all open sores and a healing ointment applied. In severe cases, as in the case of a bite from a black spider, medical attention is imperative.

The black spider is found in more than half the states of the union. It is not as common in the east as in the west. This poisonous spider is usually seen during the summer months, as well as the early fall. As a rule, it is found around barns and out-houses. Every precaution should be taken to guard against the attacks of this dangerous insect.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

It will be a fine thing when women learn to stand on their own feet—all of their feet instead of on their toes with heels up on stilts.

Foot ills will practically vanish. Give the toes a chance to spread. If you can't wriggle them, their living quarters are cramped. Wrong shoes set nerves jangling, ruin posture, cause frown lines.

When using the dark crayon on eyelashes, apply only to the upper lids. There is always a certain amount of skin moisture on the lower ones, and it will make the crayon soft and liquid, to trickle down upon the white skin. And isn't that a sorry mess!

Black crayon is a mistake, even on the black-eyed beauty. Use dark brown instead. If mascara is you favorite, use just enough water on the brush to pick up the substance. Hold the lashes over the finger edge when applying.

Instead of powdering the eyelids, use an eyelid cream, or vaseline. The dull finish does not bring out the orb sparkle as does the glistening epidermis. Creaminess preparations are kind to the eyelashes. They aid the growth of silky fringes. Lashes shouldn't ever be rubbed vigorously. They haven't much of a hold, fluff off almost at a touch.

No matter how glamorous a gal may be if she plucks from her purse a soiled powder puff her attack crashes down to zero.

Why bother with the various face cleaning chores, then rub in atmospheric dust with a pad? Doesn't make sense, that idea. Pores are containers of oil, oil catches dirt, holds it. Blackheads form. Pimples burst forth. Then there's the dickens to pay.

Using a clean pad, on a clean skin surface. A lot of doffing is unnecessary, twice a day is often enough to make a new face.

'Dress Up' the Plain Dishes

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

HERE IS a batch of miscellaneous hints that should prove useful to cooks. First we give some routine relievers that will add to the appeal of the regular menu. If you serve casserole dishes, use biscuits as a top layer, adding a new zest to the food. If the children or even the adults won't eat their spinach, try a liberal sprinkling of grated cheese over this valuable vegetable. For a good entree, fill noodle nests with peas and corn, and serve with a butter sauce. Another nice dish that should increase complements, is lima beans baked with strips of bacon and marshmallows. Men frequently refuse to eat salad, but one that is always a success consists of orange and onion slices with French dressing. Likewise pastourized dates also go well in a salad and are good as a tonic in spring.

Here is a suggestion for a delicious and healthful spring salad, nice as a main course at luncheon. Wash and hull one pint of strawberries, sprinkle with powdered sugar and let stand in the refrigerator until thoroughly chilled. Peel and halve three fresh pears, allowing half a pear for each serving. Fill hollows with shredded pineapple which has been mixed with French dressing and place a ball of cream cheese (rubbed to paste with cream) on top of each pineapple-filled pear and serve on lettuce leaf. Surround with a ring of strawberries and radiating sections of oranges and grapefruit.

Jumping from salads to steaks covers a lot of ground, but although this is salad and vegetable time, many housewives serve steak once a week until the absolutely boiling weather arrives. A famous chef suggests that the steaks be given a bath before broiling to make them tasty and juicy. Marinade the steak for half an hour before broiling. A marinade is a combination of oil, lemon juice, with salt, pepper and a dash of sugar.

Here are some suggestions for spring suppers that will nourish without placing too heavy a load upon the digestive apparatus, something that is very important when the weather becomes warm. Broiled tomatoes with cheese sauce, assorted dainty sandwiches, cold tea or coffee. Canned vegetable soup, crackers, frozen fruit salad, coffee. Gingerbread with whipped cream, a fruit salad, iced coffee. Creamed dried beef on toast is another nice supper dish.

Using Left-Over Dressing

The left-over dressing from chickens or turkeys need not be lost. It can be served as a delicious course. Roll it into balls, wrap bacon around it, attaching with a toothpick if necessary, and then bake or fry. It makes an excellent dish for luncheon or a light, hot supper.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

'My Husband'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When should you refer to your husband as "Mr. Smith," as "my husband," as "John"?

2—Is it correct, when telephoning to an acquaintance toward whom you feel friendly, to call yourself Gertrude Smith, when she addresses you as Mrs. Smith? READER.

1—A woman refers to her husband as "Mr. Smith" when she is speaking to servants and to tradesmen. It is a terrible breach of form for her to speak of her husband as "Mr. Smith" to a friend or an acquaintance . . . it means that she considers the person to whom she is speaking is beneath her in station.

In talking with a stranger, Mrs. Smith would speak of her husband as "my husband." To a friend she refers to him as "John."

Doctor Dilemma

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My cousin is engaged to a young man who is a physician. The members of my cousin's family address and speak of her fiance as "Doc," which, I think, is not correct. They also think that their friends and relations should address him as "Doc" or "Doctor." Their argument is that he has gone to school so many years to get his education and become a doctor, that he should have the title. I asked them what about the attorneys, pharmacists, civil engineers, teachers and many more professional people who have received degrees, and they did not know what answer to give.

Will you please tell me if I am wrong in speaking to him and addressing him by his given name? In speaking of him to our friends and relatives, I also speak of him by his given name. In speaking of him to people who do not know him very well, I speak of him as Doctor Jones. In introducing him it is as Doctor Jones or Dorothy's fiance, Doctor Jones. How shall my cousin's friends and relations address and introduce her fiance?

CONSTANT READER.

You are thoroughly right, in your general point of view, and in every detail about the form of address and the form of introduction. To address a doctor as "Doc," as a nickname, is, as you think, provincial and definitely unattractive . . . Very smart-alecky. And people of taste never use the title of Doctor without the surname of the doctor, any more than they would use Mr. without the surname. Friends who know him well enough to call him by his first name, call him by his first name, and those who do not, call him Doctor Jones. When speaking of him to other people, they refer to him, as you do, as Doctor Jones. In introducing him they introduce him as Doctor Jones.

The argument of your cousin's friends, that they should address him as Doc or Doctor . . . "he has gone to school many years to get his education and become a doctor" should work in reverse. Because it is that he has gone to school for so many years, and because he has won this important title, is the reason why the education should be remembered and why that title should be so respected that it should be used with dignity and reserve. To have won the coveted honor of being nicknamed by the nick word "Doc," and have his surname immediately clipped off his title—is to a well-bred physician, a terrible reward, socially and professionally.

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(Ma, that man's here, again!)

The first journalist in America, Richard Pierce (Boston, 1690) had an idea which would be a feature for any newspaper today. He proposed to publish regularly a list of the liars of the town, but the authorities put a stop to it. (He lived 244 years too soon.)

The Arkansas Gazette was founded when there were only 10,000 people in the entire State, including the Injuns.

Horatio Alger was a graduate of Harvard.

There is no stage censorship in Ireland. But performances are subject to police supervision. They prosecute if you're offensive.

Among other superstitions is the one that a bride should never walk into the groom's house. A relative is supposed to carry her through the door. (That's why Kate Smith is single!)

When I first got the following item, oh, months ago, Harrison, N. J., with a pop. of 15,000, hadn't a movie theater!

Hollywood is running true to form. Phil Regan, who was signed by a firm a la Crosby, had a songless part for his first role!

You cannot sell or have a black automobile in India, because that color is considered unlucky there. (Such a thing!)

One indication that business is better is attested by a Memphis hospital surgeon, who says more people are having their appendix removed, and that for two years there were very few cases.

Shakespeare used the phrase —"done me wrong."

The biggest selling song was "My Blue Heaven," the biggest dance record (Whiteman) was "Whispering."

A Quincy (Mass.) fire department recently got a call by phone advising them there was a fire in their yard!

If you wash your car in Fall River, Mass., on a Sunday, I am informed (or misinformed?) you may be pinched!

A Hawaiian says the original Hula was done sitting down.

If you're late with your income tax in Rumania they jail you. (Over here if you're a millionaire you simply don't pay!)

In South Sudan (Africa) the most serious of the tribal dances —is practically the Charleston! (How the cake eaters loved it!)

An eighteenth century Frenchman, whose servant girl had been executed for theft—had a pair of pants made—of her skin!

Part of the Pacific Ocean is east of New York.

In a press conference with the President you mustn't quote him. You merely say what he says without quotation marks. (It is Mr. Roosevelt's own rule and all the boys abide by it.)

It gets 30 below zero in Florida—which is in N. Y.

If you want to strum a ukulele on the beach of Coney Island—you first have to get a permit from the Boro President.

Killing a robin in several states brings a fine of $50. (Killing pedestrians via the hit and run manner is cheaper.)

Socrates it probably was who said that it is knowing so many things that are not true that makes people so dumb. (Who? Me?)

The city we know as Hong Kong is really named Victoria. It is on Hong Kong Island—and somebody got it mixed up, etcetera.

When a man dies (according to old Hindu legend) his widow is disgraced and must live with her maw-in-law.

In a town called Socoro, New Mexico, there's a sign reading: "Indian Trader—Irving Epstein, Proprietor."

Xmas cards were originated in 1846 (On what day? Why, Christmas Day, you silly!) by a London artist named Joseph Cundall, who got up a batch of 1,000. (Nice cool item for today, at any rate.)

Lockyear's Business College, of Evansville, Ind., gives a free course to cripples, because the founder was a cripple.

The "Royal Family" of the U. S. does not mean the Barrymores, but the du Ponts. There are 74 of them in Wilmington, Del.—and most of them are millionaires. (There's money in munitions—no matter whose son, brother, father or husband serves as the target!)

The authorities now come forth with the report that it is possible to live without a brain. (As if we didn't know.)

Hit Signal Points to Wilccxon

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 31.—Hello! The pulses of Paramount executives went soaring to new leaps and bounds immediately following the preview of "Cleopatra." Every critic, every reviewer put in bids to interview this new English chappie, Henry Wilcoxon — and that, according to the studio bosses, is a sure sign, a signal that something is doing.

And so . . . Henry Wilcoxon will replace Edward G. Robinson as the star in "Shoe the Wild Mare." Gene Fowler's often-postponed yarn. Paramount believes in cashing while the "rave" is on—and, of course, they can always find another yarn for Robinson, who was doing the film as one of the two "outside" of his Warner contract.

CHANEY AND DRESSLER

When Lon Chaney was gathered to his fathers, it marked the passing of the screen's greatest character actor. That is, the "man of a thousand faces" was the greatest character player of them all up until the time death removed him from the Hollywood scene.

That Chaney mixed trickery with histrionics to gain his immortal niche in motion picture history we all know. His legerdemain with makeup still stands in the memory of those millions who saw "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Phantom of the Opera" and "Mr. Wu," to mention a few of his triumphs. On the other hand, Chaney was a straight actor of surpassing ability.

Offhand, I can think of "The Miracle Man," "Tell It to the Marines" and "The Unholy Three" as three oustanding examples of Chaney's acting ability in which he resorted to no fantastic facial adornment to put his roles across. I think it is safe to assume, then, that when Chaney died after making a talkie version of "The Unholy Three," the greatest of the male screen stars passed along.

Of Marie Dressler there can be no question. She was, and will probably remain for a long time to come, the outstanding single individual of motion pictures. The Chaney and Dressler appeal to screen fans at large was alike and yet unlike. The use of romance, in the common meaning of the term, was practically unknown to each of them.

DID LON GREET MARIE?

It is not my intention to question the infinite wisdom of the Almighty. But, if it isn't heresy, why do the real actors die and so many of the hams live on? In the past few years death has marked Milton Sills, Dustin Farnum, Alec Francis, Ernest Torrence, Robert Williams and Robert Ames. While, in the Family Theater at the moment, you may see in what appears to be the best of health, the late Louis Wolheim in a revival of "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Death was kind in some respects to a few of these players who have gone. Chaney's fame was secure and Marie Dressler's is more than that. Milton Sills had come back to screen glory with his thundering rendition of Wolf Larsen in the oral film of "The Sea Wolf," while Ernest Torrence, after many silent successes, had just created something akin to a mild sensation with his role of the smuggler in "I Cover the Waterfront."

It is too bad there was never a Chaney-Dressler co-starring picture, and we can consider ourselves fortunate that we have seen the late actress and Wallace Beery together in several films.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The first performance of a two-night presentation of "First They Wisper," a comedy, will be given in the Arnold School Theater tonight by the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse. Harold Rosenblatt and A. Montague Ash wrote it and Madge Blount MacQueen directed a cast more numerous than any other seen in a Civic Playhouse production this season.

"L'Aiglon," which was a Maude Adams triumph 34 years ago, will be revived by Eva Le Gallienne as the first play of her Civic Repertory Company season in New York next season. Incidentally Miss Le Gallienne and her company will pass from her own management to that of Arch Selwyn and Harold B. Franklin. The latter has been associated with movie theater chains in recent years, but early in his career he was a producer of dramatic and musical stock. Mr. Selwyn has long been affiliated with the legitimate theater. For Miss Le Gallienne's use a new adaptation of the Rostand play has been made by Clemence Dane, with whom Miss Le Gallienne is now in conference in London. She will return to New York in August and rehearsals will begin in September, the play to open the first week in November. In it Miss Le Gallienne will have to wear breeches since the central and title role is that of a young man, the Duke of Reichstadt, son of Napoleon.

Billy Rose is planning to take a huge canvas theater on the road next season. It will be neither a circus nor a tent aggregation of dramatic rep players, but, according to Rose, a combination of circus and musical comedy. He says a syndicate will furnish backing of $500,000, but, pooh, what is that, since Billy expects to take in as high as 250 grand a week? He talks about 200 dancers, 200 ballet artists, 100 show girls and 250 persons in a choral group.

* * *

Frank Craven, stage comedian, who appears to have become a permanent Hollywood resident, will figure as actor, author and director of a film version of his own play of a few seasons back, "That's Gratitude," Arthur Byron, Helen Ware and Blyth Daly, all formerly of the stage, will be in the Craven-directed cast.

Singer Solist In 'Pop' Bill

Tonight's "Pop" concert on the Hotel Schenley lawn will feature Suzanne Seiger, soprano, as soloist with the Little Symphony Orchestra, under Victor Saudek. Miss Seiger will sing an aria, the mad scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor," by Donizetti. The orchestra will play the following numbers:

Overture—"Ruy Blas"	Mendelssohn
"Der Rosenkavalier" waltz	R. Strauss
Melodies from "Roberta"	Kern
Fantasy from "Faust"	Gounod
"Street Scene," a modern suite	Alfred Newman
"The Pompadour's Fan"	Cadman
Serenade	Brosky
"Marche Slav"	Tschaikowski

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"I NOTICE you go in for many gambling stories," writes "Buggy," "and that you are especialy fond of Nick the Greek. Well, here's another Nick the Greek yarn to add to your collection. And I can vouch for the fact that it has never been in print before.

"A few years ago Nick went broke in one of the watering resorts in the East. He borrowed $1,000—chicken feed for the Greek—from a local hotel man, and hastened to the nearest dice game. Ordinarily Nick would bet the grand on a toss of the cubes. But money was short, and this $1,000 had to be nursed.

"Some six hours later word reached the hotel man that Nick had run the borrowed $1,000 into $7,000. Whereupon the proprietor grabbed his hat and raced over to the gambling house to see what was going on.

"The story was true. Nick was in the middle of a fine streak and the thousands were accumulating rapidly. When he saw the friend, Nick took him aside.

"'Look, Joe,' he said, 'I feel very lucky. I'm giving you back the thousand you gave me, and I want you to play along with me. Follow me, you understand. Play as small as you wish—but just follow me. You understand?'

"The hotel man nodded and he began to play along with the Greek. He followed Nick on every bet, and he never made a move without watching the Greek's play. It wasn't long before Nick was ahead $40,000—and the hotel man had $10,000 in his possession.

"The game went on and on and on. Meals were served at the table—and the men played for two solid days. And when it was all over, sad to relate, Nick was completely broke. The hotel man had not only lost the original $1,000, but he had gone for $6,000 more that he hadn't intended to use. And all because he had followed Nick on every play.

"The two men walked into a restaurant for a bite to eat. Both were glum and both were tired.

"'I'll have a nice piece of bluefish,' said Nick to the waiter.

"Nick reached over and tapped his friend's arm.

"'Don't quit me now,' he murmured softly. 'You've been following me so long that you might as well go all the way. You take fish, too!'" . . . .

"DEAR Mr. Hellinger," writes William Hedrick, of Albany. "Four young people were discussing the state of matrimony at Newman's, in Saratoga Springs, the other night. There were varied opinions as to the benefits to be derived.

"To settle a minor point the venerable Leon K——, dean of the Saratoga headwaiters, was called in. Leon, by the way, outdoes the chap who played the lead in 'Green Pastures' both as to color and dignity.

"He listened to the argument for a few moments and then shrugged his shoulders.

"'My friends,' he said gravely, 'in discussing the sacred subject of matrimony I can give you only my own experience. And I must tell you immediately that my experience with marriage has been one of unmitigated happiness and complete satisfaction.

"'Yes, gentlemen. Marriage, to me, is a beautiful thing. I have never regretted the step I took in leading to the altar—thirty-three years ago—the little woman who died just two years ago!'" . . .

Lost in Washington? USIS Will Give You Guidance

(Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon.)

WASHINGTON, July 30. — If anyone supposes that only the stranger coming to Washington is unable to find his way about in the bewildering multiplicity of government departments, bureaus, administrations and commissions, he has only to ask the United States Information Service to be disabused of such a notion.

This service was set up several months ago to answer questions, foolish and otherwise, about where to find this or that agency, whom to see when you get there and which agency to seek on any specific errand. It was intended primarily to meet the needs of the public outside the capital and those who came here on business with the government or even seeking a job.

As it has turned out, the bureau has been extremely useful to the outside public, but, strangely enough, half of its business is in supplying information to persons in the government about some branch of the government, with which they are not connected or with which they are unfamiliar.

Those in official places don't know their way about. The government machine was already vast and intricate before the advent of the New Deal, but, with new commissions and administrations being set up almost every day—there have been between 30 and 40 new ones—it is impossible to keep printed directories up to date, and, without some central clearing house of information, it would be a hopeless task to try to run down the habitat of some of the fledgling creations.

For days certain of them were unhoused and went about hunting for a home. In these circumstances the information service itself has to do a lot of scouting to keep up with the procession and be able to justify itself.

UNREST

Since his return from Europe, Ambassador-at-Large Norman Davis has several times publicly expressed his belief that there was no immediate danger of war in Europe, but the reasons for this conviction only became known on his visit here.

Mr. Davis reported that there is deep social unrest in all countries, but so far from this making international conflict probable, it is just the other way around.

The disgruntled and disaffected peoples are not angry with their neighbors and have no wish to fight them. They seem to realize that they and their neighbors are all in the same boat and that their troubles are economic, not political or racial. Hence, the anger that is in them is directed against their own governments and not against the foreigner.

Another check on war moves is the fact that the various governments are quite aware of this feeling among the people. They know the masses have no stomach for war and, if one were undertaken, they could not be sure the people would not change the direction of it.

A good illustration of this state of affairs is the behavior of Hitler. This dictator has had two big frights within a month and he is now crawling under the bed. The first was at the end of June, when he discovered that a large element of his supposedly devoted followers in the Storm Troops thought that he had sold them out to the big industrialists and were weakening in their allegiance.

He was so scared that only the wholesale murder of the alleged ringleders steadied his nerves a bit. With the domestic situation so unsettled and precarious, he desisted for a time from meddling in affairs outside the Reich.

But the agitation in Austria, which he and his followers had so long aided and encouraged, had gone so far that there was no stopping it, even if it had been so ordered.

The Austrian Nazis, emulating the gangster methods of their German prototypes, organized and accomplished the assassination of Dollfuss.

The effect on world opinion was the same as that of the bloody purge which Hitler had administered a few weeks before to his own people. It alarmed Hitler, who intrinsically is a timid soul, into various propitiatory gestures.

So, instead of precipitating clashes between nations, as was at first feared, the Austrian incident, like the earlier German one, is likely rather to cause Hitler to stay at home and mind his own business.

AGED ATTORNEY 'HENPECKED'

International News Service.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 31.—After 44 years of turbulent wedlock, Francis D. Weaver, Camden attorney and president of the New Jersey State Board of Tax Appeals, today was hoping for a "break."

The 73-year-old attorney told his tale of long suffering in Camden Chancery Court Jr., an effort to combat his wife's suit for separate maintenance. Weaver related how he had been beaten by his "masterful, unreasonable and domineering" wife. Once, he said, Mrs. Weaver twisted his hand and wrist so badly with a jiu jitsu hold that he couldn't use it for two weeks. On another occasion, she choked him until he was "blue in the face," he testified.

After a housekeeper had testified that Mrs. Weaver was the aggressor in all the Weavers' arguments, Advisory Master William J. Kraft decided to hold the case under advisement until next Monday.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Redland Bucs' Best Spot. • Senators to Be Rebuilt.
Lucas May Be Missed. Haley's First Black Eye.
No Retirement for Mack. Pros Bid for Randour.

The Cincinnati series at hand would appear to be a promising spot for the Pirates to pick up some ground and get started again in earnest, for they have been more successful in Redland than in any other National League city visited this year. Up to today, the Bucs had won four games in a row at the home of the Reds, losing only in their first appearance of the season there. Pittsburgh's record against Cincinnati for the campaign to date is seven victories in 10 engagements, a better percentage than has been made against any other club.

Red Lucas

Red Lucas, who has been complaining of a sore arm, will be missed particularly in this series if he is unable to pitch up to his usual form, as he has been more valuable against his old mates than against any other club. Red has won only six games all season and half of those victories were scored over Cincinnati, only six runs and 19 hits being allowed in the 27 innings. Larry French, Ralph Birkofer, Bill Swift and Hal Smith each defeated the Reds once. Swift formerly was Pittsburgh's most successful pitcher against the Reds but this season he has fared more poorly than any other Pirate flinger, being charged with all three of the defeats suffered at the hands of the tailenders. The Cincinnati hurlers to win decisions over the Rovers were Allyn Stout, Benny Frey and Paul Derringer.

MACK LOOKING AS FAR AHEAD AS 1936

Connie Mack getting ready to quit? Not that you could notice, according to inside family information. The annual yarn that the venerable manager of the A's is preparing to retire from the game gets a jolt from Connie's son, Roy, who is secretary of the Portland club in the Pacific Coast League. Roy receives a letter from his father each week, and reveals that in the latest one the vetran pilot, far from intimating that he is thinking of withdrawing from the diamond sport, wrote about his plans for the 1935 and 1936 seasons. Probably Connie will talk about 1937 in due time.

Roy expresses the belief that his dad never will quit the game as long as he is able to walk to his old seat in the Athletics' dugout; that baseball is his life and that he is looking forward to the day when he can build up another championship club. Connie himself is hopeful of doing that within two years. He wrote his son that he has the foundation for a great club in Foxx, Johnson, Higgins, McNair and Cramer, adding: "Give me a second baseman, another good outfielder, a capable catcher, and a couple of winning pitchers, and we'll be right up in the thick of it in 1936." And if he runs true to form "The Old Man" will dig them up.

MANY CHANGES IN SENATORS PLANNED

Clark Griffith and Joe Cronin finally have given up on their Washington club for this year and are laying plans for a big reconstruction job for 1935. Though injuries to star players admittedly had much to do with the slide of the Senators, the work of several other members of the team has been very unsatisfactory and it is intended to make many changes in the outfit. One of the first to go in a trade next winter will be Pitcher Earl Whitehill. After winning 22 out of 30 games last season, Whitehill became only a 50-50 hurler this year. He is said to be dissatisfied and will be swapped to any club that will take him on reasonable terms.

Earl Whitehill

Pitcher Walter Stewart also is slated for release, and Pitcher Crowder's job is none too safe. Manager Cronin intends to give Ed Linke and other youngsters plenty of work during the remainder of the season, with a view to developing new hurlers, and hopes to add some experienced men by trades. The changes will not be confined to the slab department, and several other veterans will be discarded.

OLD BOXER GETS FIRST BLACK EYE ON MAT

Patsy Haley, veteran New York ring official, bobs up as an exhibit in support of the statement that referees sometimes have to take more punishment than the contestants. Imagine a boxer going through years of fighting without getting a black eye, and then receiving his first shiner while refereeing a wrestling match. That was Haley's experience. Patsy never had an eye discolored during all his days as a fighter. Even against such a terrific puncher as Terry McGovern, by whom he was knocked out twice in 1899, one bout going 18 rounds, Haley escaped getting a black eye.

But today he is sporting one handed to him by one of the wrestling mammoths. Patsy was overzealous while refereeing a grappling match at the Coliseum in New York and got tangled up with a pair of giants who were violating all the rules of the game. The result was that when they managed to extract Haley from the scramble he had a mouse over his left optic.

PRO GRID CLUBS FIGHTING FOR RANDOUR

The heated rivalry between the Pittsburgh and Philadelphian clubs, of the National Professional Football League, is not confined to the squabble over the services of Dick Matesic, former Pitt halfback. The owners of the Pirates and Eagles are now engaged in a spirited bidding contest for George (Whitey) Randour, McDonald athlete, who graduated last month from Villanova, where he gained distinction as one of the greatest halfbacks in the East. As the competition for Randour's signature to a contract now stands, Philadelphia is said to have topped Pittsburgh's latest offer by a margin of $25 more per game.

Paul Cuba

President Bert Bell, of the Eagles, expresses the opinion that Pittsburgh wants to sign Randour only for the purpose of trading him to the Eagles for Matesic, but says he is determined to have both players on his club. He charges that after protesting the action of the Eagles in invading Pirate territory to get Matesic, the Pirate management is breaking into Philadelphia territory in trying to sign Randour. President Bell and Coach Lud Wray declare that if Matesic plays with any club in the league it will be with the Eagles. They say Dick was recommended to them by Jock Sutherland, Pitt coach, and accepted terms immediately, and their stand is that the case was closed when League President Joseph Carr awarded the player to the Eagles on the ground that his acceptance of terms preceded his reported signing of a Pirate contract. Another former Pitt gridder who will be in the Philadelphia lineup again next season is Paul Cuba, husky tackle, who has just signed a new Eagle contract.

(Reg. by U. S. Patent Office)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A ONE-BERRY CAKE—The single strawberry large enough to make a shortcake measure 8½ inches in circumference weighed 17-10 ounces and was the result of a botanical malformation known as "fascination." The stems and fruit of three flowers, instead of separating in the normal manner, grew together to form the abnormal berry. T. H. Risinger, its grower, presented the berry to the Botany Department of the University of Oklahoma.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions?

1—How many consecutive years did Walter Johnson win 25 or more games?
2—Which American League club holds the record for runs scored in a season?
3—Which regular player led both major leagues in fewest strikeouts for three successive seasons?
4—Who was the pitcher who delivered the first no-hit, no-run game in the major leagues?
5—What was the makeup of W. & J.'s most famous backfield?

Seattle, Canadian amateur champion who paced the field yesterday with a 71, one under par, was among the late starters today, as was Gordon Denney, of Louisville, who was only one stroke behind Campbell with 72.

The 64 low scorers will begin match play tomorrow, at which time those who failed to qualify will engage in a one-day consolation tourney at North Park. The championship will be concluded Saturday. Four prizes donated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will be up for competition in the 36-hole medal play competition at North Park.

The heavy rain of last night had softened up the course more to the players' liking. The wind still was keen, but was not strong enough to cause trouble with iron shots to the green.

Greenskeeper Walter Snee and Professional Al McBride, of South Park, went out on the course early this morning and moved the markers to the back of the tees, which added at least 90 yards to the yardage total. The flags were placed in tougher spots, and many of the players are finding themselves shooting over sand traps if they want to take the short line to the flag.

Tomorrow, at North Park the non-qualifiers will engage in a 36-hole medal play tourney for the four prizes donated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. It is likely that all of the players failing to make the title flight will stay over for this event.

The game in detail:

FIRST INNING

CINCINNATI — Piet singled to left. Slade lined to P. Waner. Piet, who thought it was a safe blow, was doubled off first, P. Waner to Suhr. Koenig beat out a slow roller to first. Bottomley flied deep to L. Waner. Two hits.

Speigal Reveals Year-Old Wedding

The heavy rain which caused postponement of the Hickey Park boxing show last night also delayed a wedding announcement party arranged by Joey Spiegal, Uniontown boxer, paired with Tiger Joe Randall in the 10-round main bout. The affair will go on following the battle tonight.

A year ago today, Spiegal was secretly married to Miss Margaret Stefanik, of Uniontown, at Washington, Pa. No public announcement ever was made. A group of friends will share in the anniversary celebration tonight.

Mike Bario boxes Johnny Durso in another 10-round bout and Jimmy Belmont meets Jack Dalcherone in an eight-rounder, while Nick Malloy and Chuck Mullins are in a five-rounder.

Hawaiian Golfer Prefers Pigskin to Putter

By JESS CARVER

Meet Arthur Armstrong (10-30—68), of Honolulu, H. I., star left halfback on the Kamehame High School football team, Honolulu's lone entry in the National Public Links tournament now under way at South Park. He can run and pass and kick, knows how to take an end, work on a tackle, likes to play a man-for-man pass defense and . . . but wait a minute . . . this is a golf story, not a football game. Pardon us!

The 17-year-old Englishman, born in Honolulu and bronzed to a turn by 17 years under the broiling Hawaiian sun, presents somewhat of a problem. He's a fine golfer (any one who can drive the eighteenth green at South Park has to be just that), but get this—he does not like the game. He plays it because his folks and friends insist, but he'd rather be out there running the ends and tossing passes.

FORCED TO QUALIFY

When it came time to qualify for the national tournament this year, the slender youngster was going to pass up the test, but Bill Peet, former sports editor of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, now sports editor of a Honolulu paper, ol' Treat 'Em Rough himself, insisted that he compete. His parents put on the pressure, too, so Arthur went out and beat Charley Wilson, who represented the Islands in the tourney at Portland last year.

Armstrong started out as a caddy at the tender age of 12. A chap is a lot more tender at 12 years of age in Honolulu than in the States, Arthur will tell you. He began to play about the same time and from the very first, evidenced great promise. He weighs about 140 pounds and does not appear to have much power, but there are few competitors in the field who get the ball away from the tee any neater. He plays his irons well, but of late, his putting has been decidedly off. In fact, if he could have controlled his putter yesterday, he'd have matched Scotty Campbell's 71. As it was, his 78 wasn't so bad. A round as good today and he'll be safe.

PEET SAYS HOWDY

The great Peet, by the way, sent am arm load of regards to various and sundry Pittsburghers via his protege. Arthur passes 'em on in this fashion:

"Mister Peet wants to be remembered to all the boys in Pittsburgh. He says to tell them to save their dough and come out to the islands, where he'll teach 'em to eat poi and sing 'Aloha.'"

Ask if Treat 'Em Rough was as peevish as ever, Armstrong smiled and said:

"Listen, they still are taking group pictures of that man."

PARKER FAILS TO JUSTIFY RANKING

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 31, (AP.)—The experts are beginning to wonder when—if at all—young Frankie Parker, the 18-year-old Lawrenceville student, is going to justify this season his present national ranking at No. 3.

In two skirmishes tournaments, the last one at Shoreright, Parker has been eliminated by Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., who's name doesn't appear until No. 23 on the national list. Today Frankie was in the second round of the forty-fourth annual invitation tournament of the Meadow Club, but only after a stiff 8-1, 8-6 battle with Elmer Griffin, veteran Californian.

In the second round today Parker was matched against Donald Budge, of Oakland, Cal., No. 1 among the juniors and with Parker, one of the three youngsters upon whom high hopes for future Davis Cup teams have been placed. Gene Mako, intercollegiate champion from Los Angeles, third of the young trio, played E. Ramey Donovan, former Fordham star.

Medicos Shoot Tie In Seniors' Tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 31.—(AP.)—The field for the sixth anual Virginias' amateur golf championship opened yesterday and two West Virginians, Dr. Cherry Hogg, of Lewisburg and Dr. J. S. Compton, of Bluefield, led the way with 78's in the first round of the 36 holes of medal play. There are 85 entries.

New Owners Loom For Scranton Club

SCRANTON, July 31.—(AP.)—Ownership of the local New York-Pennsylvania baseball league club is expected to pass into the hands of a new group of Scranton sportsmen today.

P. B. Farrell, president of the league, has conferred with numerous prominent men in the hope of interesting them in the team, and after a meeting yesterday afternoon it was reported the deal will be completed today.

FERRELL PROVES OF GREAT VALUE TO BOSTON RED SOX

STAR PITCHER HURLS NINTH TRIUMPH

Associated Press.

Judging by results so far, the purchase of Wesley Ferrell, who refused to play this season for the salary Cleveland offered him, was about the best stroke of business the Boston Red Sox have put over.

With Lefty Grove still disabled and other flingers not going so well, Ferrell's arm has been an important factor in keeping the Sox in the American League's first division. Boston was safe in fourth place today and only 2½ games behind the Indians despite Cleveland's recent spurt which has netted 14 victories in 18 games and Ferrell's record alone showed triumphs enough to keep the Sox away from the second-division leaders.

GETS NINTH WIN

Since joining the club at the end of May, Ferrell has appeared on the mound 15 times, starting 12 games, and yesterday's 8-0 triumph over Washington was his ninth of the season against one defeat.

It was a bit like picking on cripples when Wes blanked the Senators, although he was touched for 10 hits. With a makeshift lineup, resulting from injuries, Washington failed to offer a real threat until the ninth inning, then Ferrell finished the game by whiffing Ossie Bluege with the bases loaded. Three Senator regulars, Heinie Manush, Joe Kuhel and Johnny Stone, were missing and as a result the utility infielder, Red Kress, was in right field, Rookie John Gill in left and a catcher, Luke Sewell, on first.

The defeat returned the Senators to sixth place after they had advanced to fifth Sunday. The St. Louis Browns, with one of the late rallies that have marked their progress under Rogers Hornsby's management, came from behind to whip the White Sox, 4 to 3, and take fifth by a full game.

BROWNS BEAT SOX

Trailing 3-1 after Chicago had nicked Dick Coffman for three hits and as many runs in the fourth, the Browns tied the count when Sam West socked a home run with one aboard in the eighth. The winning counter came as a ninth-inning gift from Luke Appling, who fumbled Oscar Melillo's bounder with the bases loaded.

The other American League clubs and the entire National League had a day off.

By HONUS WAGNER.
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

I've been traveling around the circuit and it suddenly dawned on me that I never knew where many of the states in which our team plays got their names. Of course, everyone knows that Pennsylvania got its name from Admiral William Penn, father of William Penn, founder of the province. Ohio comes from an Iroquois name, meaning "great." New York was so named in honor of the Duke of York, of 1664. Illinois is from an Indian name meaning "The River of Men." Missouri was the name of an Indian tribe. Massachusetts is an Algonquin Indian name from Massadch-es-et, meaning "great - hill - small-place." The class in geography will now go home.

EDGEWORTH NET PLAY TO OPEN TOMORROW

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The first annual Edgeworth Club invitation clay court men's doubles net tournament will get under way tomorrow afternoon with 30 or more leading combinations of the district enrolled for hostilities. Chairman Charles A. Woods, Jr., has announced that the making of the draw will be held over till late this afternoon or early this evening, the closing of the entry list having been delayed until today.

Some crack outfits will square off for the start of play. Though no seeded group has as yet been compiled, it is safe to conjecture that the favored quartet or octet, as the case may be, will be composed of pretty nearly the strongest set of teams that can be drafted hereabouts. Dr. Dave O'Loughlin and his brother, Billy, entered in tourney action together for the first time since they won the Pittsburgh Golf Club indoor event in the winter of 1933, will be at or about the top of the contingent, while Dr. John O'Loughlin and Sam Harbison, a new and formidable alignment, and Frank Broida and McCook Reed, a duo of tremendous possibilities, must be conceded positions in the upper four.

Eddie Alcorn and Russ Unger, Mount Lebanon outfit that came through a conclave replete with surprises at Fox Chapel a fortnight ago, are in the runing, as are Paul Barber and King Moore, a Sewickley combine that will be tough to stop short of the final. The University Club veterans, Frank McClintock and Frank White, will be on deck, as will that other highly experienced coalition, Howard Burgwin and Bob Schmertz. Finally there is the crew that eliminated Dave and John O'Loughlin at Fox Chapel in the season's most astonishing dope reversal—Neal Rumsey and E. A. Knocho of Stanton Heights.

Meanwhile, Cy Boggs writes to remind us that the fourth annual DuBois Country Club tourney will begin next Monday on the excellent club courts.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association has been called for today to decide upon such matters as wind-up of the Inter-Club League campaign, entries in the National Junior and Boys' championships, and likelihood of arranging a fast exhibition tilt at Edgeworth late next month.

VISITING GOLF STARS LAUD HOSPITALITY

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

"We've been around some in these national tournaments, but we've never been treated like this before."

That was the tribute of several state delegations as they gathered around the festive board of the banquet for the Public Links golfers held in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night.

They had in mind the welcome that has been given them since they set foot in our fair city, the efforts of the committee to anticipate their every wish, the fine golf course that had been prepared for them, the floor show that accompanied the banquet—and probably the briefness of the speeches that were served up.

FINE BUNCH OF PLAYERS

They're a fine set of athletes, gathered from near and far. Most of them are youngsters. Here and there is a veteran along the lines of Carl Kauffmann, our own three-time winner of the competition. Few of them are blessed with worldly goods. They're all in there playing for the love of the game and a chance to make a name for themselves. There's a certain wistfulness about some of them. A few of them already have reputations to sustain.

Scotty Campbell, of Seattle, who led the first half of the qualifying round with a fine 71 yesterday, is one of these. He's the Canadian amateur champion. After the banquet last night he said:

"They told us before we left that if we don't make good here we'll have to come in through the back way when we get home."

HAVE RESPONSIBILITY

Every city entered is banking on its delegation to come through. Most of them had a tough time raising the funds to send the players here, and the players realize their responsibility. They started off yesterday with hopes as high as the treacherous winds that were blowing over the course. Some of them will be out of the running by nightfall today. For them there will be nothing left but the consolation round at North Park tomorrow—and then the sad trip back home. Others will carry on and try to justify the hopes of their sponsors. Remember how it was with us when we had Kauffmann and Walter Phillips and those other fellows playing for us in distant cities?

Ganson Depew, nephew of the great Chauncey Depew, was the principal speaker at the banquet. Others included J. Denny O'Neil, local representative on the Public Links Section of the United States Golf Association; Theodore Moritz, secretary of Mayor McNair; County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and Chester L. Smith, speaking for the newspaper boys. William S. Haddock was a good toastmaster. A varied entertainment program, with Walter L. Heimert as master of ceremonies, enlivened the early part of the evening.

Eighteenth Division Vets to Stage Bouts

LEW RAYMOND CHRIST C. KRAMER DR. W. D. M'CLELLAND GEN. ADELBERT CRONKHITE

A boxing show will be one of the features of the annual reunion of the Eightieth Division Veterans' Association to be held at Conneaut Lake Park, August 16-17-18-19, it was announced today.

Preliminary arrangements were made at a meeting held at the resort by Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, wartime leader of the Eightieth Division men; Christ C. Kramer, Dr. W. D. McClelland, State Athletic Commissioner, and Lew Raymond, who will serve as matchmaker for the show.

SECOND PLACE BATTLE ON

With the Zanesville Greys safely entrenched in first place, the center of interest in the Mid-Atlantic League has shifted to the warfare being waged for second place.

Johnstown seemed set in the runner-up position until the Beckley Black Knights came along, and now the Jawns are down to fourth, with Charleston having succeeded them behind the Greys.

Charleston took a 7-2 decision from Wheeling, while Beckley was downing the Jawns by a 6-2 score.

Bob Parham's homer in the third with two men on bases was the highlight of a four-run rally which gave Huntington a 5-4 verdict over Springfield.

In the Penn State Association, McKeesport walloped Greensburg, 8 to 0; Jeannette downed Monessen, 6 to 2, and Charleroi won over Washington, 5 to 2.

MRS. CAMPBELL WINS

Mrs. Frank Campbell, of the home club, posted 42-47—89 to pace a field of 80 women golfers in an invitation tournament yesterday at the Stanton Heights Golf Club. Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, had a 91. Mrs. W. F. McCrady, of Edgewood, had low net with 96-15—81, and Nina Browning, of Highland, won in the second division with 108-30—78.

for cotton goods; men's shirts, women's dresses and similar apparel will not be regretted if it is spent during August, for the values are there, profit margin low, and small probability of a price drop visible.

FURNITURE VARIED

Furniture offerings are exceptionally varied this year, and since furniture is one product always advantageously bought in August, the prices set for this month have been gauged not to recoup losses but to stimulate buying. As one furniture man put it:

"The retail furniture market is delicate, but wholesome. We know that prices have to be low if the merchandise is to sell, under present conditions. There is a good chance that the industry will improve if furniture continues to sell. Obviously we are not risking that chance by marking up prices."

So far as shoes, leather goods and similar products go, market conditions are so uncertain that few would predict for fall or winter.

One shoe man put it this way:

"I can say this—that manufacturers' stocks have been exhausted, and that our buyers have been told that we can expect no guarantees on future deliveries. That would indicate fear of higher future prices. I do not believe August prices will be beaten."

PRICES REDUCED

Prices on almost all goods sold in department and retail stores have been materially reduced for August, one merchandising head said. He added:

"Prices have been moved upward in the year under the NRA, and costs for labor and materials are fairly stable. The only reduction possible has been of the item of profit. This has been shaved so thin that the line between a profit and a loss is a very fine line. Yet this is being done—to stimulate August spending and to keep the market active through fall and winter. It is a healthy condition—and one of great interest to the wary spender."

According to statistics by the United States Department of Labor, the general index of cost of living for families of wage earners and lower-salaried workers show an increase of 1 per cent during the six months' period, ending with June, 1934. The survey covered 32 cities.

Food increased 2.7 per cent, clothing 2.1 per cent and household furnishings 1.8 per cent between December, 1933, and June, 1934.

In the 28 cities where the cost of living increased, the greatest rise occurred in Detroit. Pittsburgh showed the second largest gain with 2.1 per cent. Clothing showed an advance in all cities.

BANKER JAILED IN BOND THEFT

BUTLER, July 31.—(AP.)—Charged with theft of Liberty bonds from the closed First National Bank of Bruin, James N. Long, major conservator of the institution, is in the Butler County Jail in default of $2,500 bond.

United States secret service agents arrested Long yesterday in his home above the bank. Arraigned before Alderman E. P. Peffer on larceny charges filed by District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, Long was remanded to await hearing on August 9.

John L. Kettle, government operative who led the probe, said his investigation disclosed that Long entered the bank's safe deposit vault and removed $1,500 worth of bonds owned by Mrs. Laura Fletcher, of Bruin, and $1,000 worth of bonds owned by F. L. Hawk, of Petrolia.

Long denied the charges.

MRS. DALL FREE, KEEPS SILENCE

MINDEN, Nev., July 31.—(AP.)—The future plans of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, the President's only daughter, were clothed in secrecy today following her divorce from Curtis B. Dall, New York broker.

Whether she would return to the east or go northward to join her mother, now en route to Portland, Ore., to meet President Roosevelt upon his return from Honolulu, could not be ascertained.

The proceedings, severing her eight-year marriage, lasted less than 25 minutes. Her complaint alleged mental cruelty based on "incompatible relations."

A written agreement fixing custody of the Dall children, "Sistie" and "Buzzie" was approved by Judge Clark Guild, who declined to make public its terms. It was ordered sealed along with the transcript of Mrs. Dall's testimony.

After the trial Mrs. Dall conversed briefly with Judge Guild, who only a year ago granted Mrs. Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt a divorce from Elliott Roosevelt, Mrs. Dall's brother.

'Roosevelt Tap' Owner Likes Name

QUINCY, Mass., July 31.—(AP.)—A hundred indignant citizens have petitioned President Roosevelt to make Max Bernstein change the name of his "Roosevelt Tap" to something else.

But Max, not dismayed, says he is such an admirer of the President that he is thinking of asking the court to change his name to Max Roosevelt.

VACATION END NEARS FOR PRESIDENT

International News Service.

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, July 31.—President Roosevelt was nearing the end of his Iona vacation cruise today aboard the U. S. S. Houston.

Three days out of Honolulu, the cruiser swung into the North Pacific Ocean steamer lane today, approximately 1,000 miles off the mainland.

The President has temporarily turned his thoughts from a vast amount of first-hand information regarding the economic, military and naval needs of the Hawaiian Islands to the inspection trip of federal projects which he will make during the overland journey from Portland to Washington.

The Chief Executive has been kept advised through radio reports of all domestic and foreign developments and two of his secretaries will meet him at Portland with detailed reports of federal activities.

The Houston is expected to reach the mouth of the Columbia River Thursday and then proceed up the river to Portland, where Mrs. Roosevelt will greet her distinguished husband and two of their sons who accompanied the President on the long cruise down the Atlantic, through the Panama Canal, half-way across the Pacific to the Hawaiian group and thence back to the mainland.

First Lady Motoring To Rejoin President

EUREKA, Cal., July 31.—(AP.)—Like any other tourist on a vacation, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt motored leisurely through Northern California today.

Her vacation as a "private citizen" seeing America will end Friday in Portland, Ore., when she rejoins her husband and again becomes "the President's wife."

Still just plain Mrs. Roosevelt, she spent the night in secluded Benbow Inn, following a 200-mile drive from San Francisco in a little coupe.

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Everyone seems to be "up in the air" over our summer drive for new members and for more flight squadron units!

Everyone has rallied to the call, Group "A" and Group "B" members. They have all heeded that cry, "Double the membership mark by September!"

I have received encouraging reports from flight squadron captains and new memberships sent in by individual members. The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing covers a wide territory and every city and town, neighborhood and district is going to help in the campaign.

PURSUIT SQUADRON LIST

So many are going to take part in the drive that I have decided to create an honorary group—A PURSUIT SQUADRON unit.

I will create an Honor Roll to appear in the birdmen column. It will list the names of every boy or girl who brings in five or more recruits up until the end of the campaign, September 1.

Who will be the first Junior Birdmen to belong to this PURSUIT SQUADRON—who will be the first to bring in the five necessary new members?

If you have not as yet taken up the "joy stick" and started on your membership cruise, start to work at once.

In a few days I think I will be able to announce some daily prizes for you members who bring in recruits. Maybe we will call this special group of prize winners, who bring in, say, 10 members, our Bombardment Squadron.

Map out your neighborhood region. Make a list of your neighborhood friends who do not yet belong to our organization. Then go to each of them and get them interested in reading the daily column and in becoming members.

Become a Pursuit Squadron member! Don't confuse this special group, however, with our Ace membership, which I will tell you more about tomorrow. You have to pass an aviation test to become an Ace member.

BUILD A FLIGHT SQUADRON

Remember, too, that it takes only seven other Junior Birdmen members, in addition to yourself, to organize a Junior Birdmen Flight Squadron.

Then you will receive your own charter, bars for your captain and commander and a book of rules and regulations, as well as official report blanks for the minutes of your meetings to be sent to Birdmen Headquarters.

But even if you organize your unit and receive your charter, don't stop with membership there, and there.

Keep adding new members to your Flight Squadron each week, but remember they must all first be members of the Junior Birdmen and you must report the new member immediately to local headquarters, so that it may be recorded in your Flight Squadron records here. Otherwise the new membership will not be recognized.

The slogan of the Summer Flight Squadron campaign is "Every Member a Flight Squadron Member." If you can't organize one yourself, then join one in your neighborhood that is already chartered.

If you run into any difficulty in obtaining enough boys and girls to build a unit of your own, and you are still determined to have one, just drop me a line and I will do all I can to assist you.

Whether it's in Ohio, West Virginia or Pennsylvania—or any other territory within our Pittsburgh wing—don't hesitate to call for help.

[AN OLD GOLD SMOKER SINCE 1932]

See James Cagney
Starring in Warner Bros. Picture
"HERE COMES THE NAVY"

"Sailor, Beware! Too many fags are bad for your throat!" warns Gloria Stuart.

"Not these throat-easy Old Golds—they are as easy on the throat as a South Sea Breeze!" says James Cagney.

"IF AN ACTOR plays a few two-fisted characters on the screen, some people get the idea that he's hard as nails all through.

"But that's not always true. Take my throat, for instance. I have to watch it like every other movie star who works in front of the 'mike.'

"That's why I'm for Old Golds—they never rasp the throat. And what's more, your taste tells you that they're pure tobacco—plenty aged—and not 'fancied-up' with artificial flavors.

(Signed) JAMES CAGNEY

STOCKS HEAVY IN SLOW TRADING

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP.)—Most financial markets today were inclined to tread lightly on tiptoery trading highways.

Although close watch was being kept on both domestic and foreign developments, news from these sectors apparently was not of a character to stir Wall street out of a summertime lethargy.

Stocks were rather soft from the start, as several of the leading rail issues stumbled into new low ground for the year. Notwithstanding the fact that sagging tendencies were general, the volume of transactions was quite low.

Profits-taking in grains at Chicago reduced prices a cent or more a bushel at one time, despite the continued prevalence of pessimistic drought forecasts. Cotton, firm at the opening, yielded more of its advances. Moderate improvement was shown by rubber and silver. Dullness enveloped bonds and prices here were mixed. The dollar was up slightly in terms of leading exchanges.

New 1934 bottoms were recorded by shares of Santa Fe, off around 3 points, and New York Central and Northern Pacific, down a point or more each.

Renewed selling of the rails was said to reflect further fears that car loadings and net earnings were in for another period of recession due to abnormally short crops, seasonal business conditions and exceptional higher operating costs.

While considerable European war talk continued to be heard about the boardrooms, the consensus seemed to be that, for the moment, the situation was not nearly so tense as in the past week. Several commentators, however, felt that the real crisis has been merely postponed and that final settlement of pending problems may not be entirely peaceful.

Many of the usually active operators were reported to be on the sidelines waiting for the return of the President from his Hawaiian trip. There was a difference of opinion as to whether the Chief Executive, upon his arrival, would say anything that will affect securities one way or the other.

Recent cooling of inflationary psychology was attributed in a few commissions houses to the growing belief that whatever speculative profits might accrue from a drastic expansion of the currency would be taken back by the government as part of a tax plan to liquidate the debt which has arisen from heavy emergency expenditures.

WHEAT VALUES TAKE DROP

CHICAGO, July 31. — Unexpected downturns of wheat quotations at Liverpool led to lower prices early today for all grains here. The Liverpool setbacks were ascribed to liquidation in that market.

Group Protests Heater Trustee

A hearing on the appointment of two permanent trustees to serve in the reorganization of the Pittsburgh Water Heater Company was to be held today in Federal Court.

A petition urging the court not to appoint John C. Baird, a temporary trustee, as a permanent trustee was filed yesterday by Grant Curry, Dean B. Copeland and W. P. McJunkin, members of the bondholders' protective committee.

The petition says in part that Baird has conflicting business interests.

RECOVERY HELD DEPENDENT ON ECONOMICS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

This being my last "column" until September, I want to say "so long" and in doing so to be a bit more personal than usual.

I have always given careful consideration to the letters I get, whether they are for me or against. Now I ask my readers, and particularly the critical ones, to consider carefully the following statements of the principles and motives which guide my thought.

First, I belong to no political party. I am not interested in politics, except that I would like to see some way devised to put more efficient and honest men in office. (No "deal" is going to work as long as ordinary American politics and the spoils system are with us, as I believe is the case today.)

Second, I am absolutely free in expressing opinions. Mr. Hearst has never even suggested what I should say. I am retained as an economist to tell the truth as I see it. And that is what I do.

Third, my whole background and interest are those of a scientific economist, and the foundation of my professional life is a belief in economic law.

ECONOMIC LAW DENIED

Long study of history, and particularly the history of economic thought, has convinced me that the average man has certain instincts and physical characteristics which are practically unchanging. I see man's natural environment as an important factor, and one that is governed by law in the scientific sense.

I find that human arrangements must deal with these elemental realities as they are, or fail. Man-made legislation which tried to run counter to economic laws, fails. Thus prohibition, price-fixing, fiat money ("greenbacks") and all attempts to "create a purchasing power" which is not earned by producing real values, prove to be futile.

That is why I am opposed to most of the New Deal because it is based upon a denial of economic law.

Fourth, I am critical, and am generally writing in opposition to some proposal or other, because so many unsound proposals are being made. In a period of distress, the New Dealers came into power by promising to "do something." They have proceeded to do many things which are counter to economic law, and are futile or worse.

My first duty as an economist, therefore, is to show why they fail. By warning of dangers, I hope to help toward avoiding them.

Fifth, I write about political matters because politicians are dealing with economic matters. The government has entered business, and most legislation is economic. Today, a scientific economist can not tell what he knows without running into an unscientific politician.

HOLDS "ISMS" FUTILE

Sixth, I am often told that I am bold—even daring. Why? Just because I frankly say what every liberal economist knows.

It is the strongest indication of the danger to freedom of speech that the application of economic laws to our social problems should be considered by anyone to be daring.

I criticize the gold-buying "policy," processing taxes, NRA codes, price-fixing, growing government deficits, etc. Then I am told that I should not do this, but should "get behind the President." My answer is that no President can override economic laws.

We have ideals aplenty. Everybody wants "a more abundant life" and "social justice," just as we used to want a "full dinner pail" and a "square deal." The practical question is, what to do about it. All agree that human happiness is the goal. But how get it?

A few say that I am a "tool of Wall street" and a "capitalistic minion." Well, two years ago a Republican paper in New York published an editorial calling me a menace because I was disturbing confidence in Hoover's policies. I have always attacked trusts, corporation abuses and financial manipulations, and have stood for labor organization and collective bargaining. Anyone who has read my book, "Economics in a Nutshell," cannot believe that I am the "tool" of any interest.

The only reason I oppose Socialism, New Dealings, or any other "ism" is because I don't believe it will work as a practical method of attaining social welfare.

Hoe Gets Permit To Alter Set-Up

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP.)—Federal Judge John M. Woolsey has granted the petition of R. Hoe & Co., printing press manufacturers, to seek relief from equity receivership through reorganizing under the recently enacted section of the federal bankruptcy law.

Judge Woolsey appointed the Irving Trust Company, which has served as equity receiver, as temporary trustee, and scheduled a hearing on appointment of a permanent trustee and acceptance of the reorganization plan for August 24.

Rumor Rails Plan Battle on Pensions

NEW YORK, July 31.—A group of railroad laywers held a lengthy conference in the offices of the New York Central Railroad late yesterday which led to reports that they were preparing to challenge the constitutionality of the recently enacted railroad pension law. No statement of any kind was obtained from the conferees. As the law now stands, the pension provision will cost the carriers an estimated $66,000,000 in its first year of operation and will expand from year to year.

STRIKES HELP TO CLARIFY ISSUES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The recent epidemic of strikes, though extremely harmful to immediate recovery, has perhaps helped to define the issues.

Mr. Rukeyser

I gather that some employers have welcomed the testing of power and the clarification of the atmosphere.

It is regrettable that some of the issues could not have been settled in a more orderly manner.

In general, progressive minded employers liked the formula which President Roosevelt enunciated in connection with the dispute in the automobile industry. The President, carrying out the provisions of the NIRA for collective bargaining, indicated that bargaining might be carried on by outside unions, by company unions, or by groups of individual employes. The President's plan provided for proportional representation of minorities in such bargaining. Employers liked this arrangement because it did not provide for the closed shop.

REACTIONS CITED

My esteemed friend and former teacher, the late Henry R. Seager, of Columbia University, used to describe the role of the economist as that of social interpreter.

Perhaps management and organized labor do not make sufficient efforts to understand the viewpoint of the other.

With this in mind, I shall formulate some of the typical reactions of present day employers. Many of them feel that Congress and the administration made an error in not providing for codes for labor, as well as for industry, in the National Industrial Recovery Act. They feel that allowance must be made for the human element in labor unions as in other organizations, and that without regulation there might be oppression, even racketeering. Of course, in the spirit of self-regulation, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, recently disavowed the general strike in San Francisco.

Specifically, numerous spokesmen for management lean to the view that codes should be set up for labor unions under federal supervision. They would include in such codes a provision to give unions a corporate status, so that they could be readily sued, in the event of a breach of contract or other alleged infractions. Secondly, they would impose publicity as to trade union finance. Thirdly, they would provide against coercion of workers by walking delegates or others when it comes to selecting representatives of their own choosing for collective bargaining; and fourth, they would provide immunity from violence for so-called loyal employes who wish to remain at work when strikes are called.

SUPERVISION HELD NEED

Some abstract students of the labor problem think that the history of trade unionism in Germany and elsewhere points to the need of public supervision.

Some within the labor movement think public regulation is ultimately in the cards.

From one viewpoint, the large number of strikes may be regarded as a symptom of recovery. Men, who go out, at least are more hopeful. At the nadir of the depression, working men were without hope or courage, and tended to submit.

This time, the government, establishing minimum wages and maximum hours, tended to assure the workers some of the benefits usually fought for through unions. But the governmental intervention did not lessen worker interest in unions. On the contrary, the 7-A clause in the

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER X.

The sun was getting high and they went back to the house. Again they failed to find a path.

"Strange that there's no trail up to the plateau," Jerome said. "I should say he had got his building stone from the old ruins. But there's no sign of where it was hauled down. However, the jungle would soon grow over."

"The food here won't last forever," Linda said. "The staples, I mean."

Jerome had thought of that. They had inspected the garden. There were beans, onions and yams, a stand of maize and a sort of squash.

"With the chickens and the fruit and these green vegetables we can't starve."

When the sun got lower they went down to the beach to look for signs of a sail. The shimmering expanse was empty of life, except for the pelicans diving into a school of fish a little way out. Some porpoises were rolling and that was all. When it grew dark they went in and lighted a lamp and overhauled the bookshelves.

The books were all of natural and other sciences and travel. There was an encyclopedia published 10 years previously and several works on anthropology. Also a number of volumes of a metaphysical sort and some atlases. But there was no fiction nor were there any histories.

Student Recluse

"Everything here indicates the retreat of a student recluse."

"And a few tools, especially knives."

"We've absolutely got to do something about sleeping, Jerry. I'm apt to wake up with the pattern of that cane-bottomed bed stamped on me forever."

"I've been thinking about that. It's one thing to sleep like babes in the wood when you're scared or cold and another to make a practice of it."

"Everything," she complained, "seems combined to rub it in for our disgust of too much luxury and close contact with each other."

"Yes," he agreed, "there's a sort of irony about it. From being cuddled in the soft lap of comfort and under no compulsion to fight, here we are pitched practically naked."

"That's just it. The bed in itself is bad enough, but better than the bare floor or these miserable wicker things. Besides it gets darned cold before morning. If I roll up, cocoon-like, in that sleeping mat you're apt to get a chill and fever maybe."

May 'Go Native'

"I'll crash a chest. It's all wrong. We're being silly. A few clothes would keep us civilized."

"There's something in that," she admitted. "Two or three more days and nights like the last would send us native."

"When we wouldn't care anything about anything. If we were married it would be different."

"If we were married," she said, "the fights would start again as soon as we got out of this. Even before perhaps."

"I wonder why. We started fighting on the yacht before we were 12 hours out."

Linda nodded. "I decided you were too lazy and unambitious and fond of flopping when you felt like it to stick on as a naval officer. So you chucked it and used going into business as a pretext to loll about."

"You were right. I got fed up on Navy routine. I figured a boat building business and my small income would give me about what I wanted—then."

Money All Gone

"No. Business dead—dividends stopped."

"So have ours . . . and worse. Dad told me a few days before we sailed that the only chance he saw of my ever having anything again was to marry it."

Jerome was silent for a moment; then said, "I wish you had told me that, Linda. I'd have been less rotten."

"Well, Tommy told me that you were flat. That's one reason I was sore with you."

He nodded. "Little brother to the rich. You were right. And now here we are both flat, castaway, and without the makings of a suit of clothes between us. Another reason for not getting too . . . chummy."

She said hotly, "It's not chummy to want to keep from dying of fright. Nobody can call me a coward, but there's a limit to what my nerves can stand."

She was interrupted by a strange hollow thumping sound from just outside the house. It was followed by a deep muffled bellowing. No familiar comparison describes it. Something between the gruff angry challenge of a bull working itself into a rage and the preliminary coughing of a lion before it begins to roar. . . .

Not Baboon

Neither was it like the harsh guttural screech with its mocking note that they had begun to get used to.

It stopped in a gurgle and series of grunts. The abysmal stillness that weighted the place after the trade-wind had died out of the tree tops hung heavily again.

"God help us poor sailors on nights like these," Linda said. "What next?"

"This joker is grown up." Jerome gripped the oar butt he had carried all day and went to the door that he had shut and bolted.

"Keep still. Whatever that noise came out of is nothing to tackle with a club. What could it be?"

"Howling baboon?"

"No; we heard those things in Lake Maracaibo. This was different and first it pounded on a hollow tree or something. Leave it alone."

"As long as it leaves us alone."

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young shipbuilder, and a lovely society girl, named Linda, escaped in a skiff from a yacht held in quarantine off San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda dislike each other; but, nevertheless, are willing to risk being mutually bored rather than endure an indefinite stay aboard ship. From the moment they land on a strange island, queer happenings occur. Their boat is set adrift, their clothing stolen; yet there is no other sign of a living human, except periodic cries from the jungle. Exploring, they come upon a small plantation and house having every appearance of being well tended but vacant. In it they find some priceless Spanish chests, a heavy whip, plenty of food, but no clothing. The cruel whip worries them. Suddenly a bell clangs and again weird screams are heard. Darkness falls and still no one arrives. Dozing on the porch, Jerry awakens with the creepy impression that something had brushed his face. Soon Linda shrieks—her slip had been torn off her by unseen hands in the dark. Then comes a slithering sound at the end of the verandah and again that mocking cry. Terrified, Jerome and Linda lock themselves in the house. Next morning, Jerry finds Linda's shoes hanging from the limb of a tree, the laces knotted—evidently the prank of some mischievous youngster. Later, they locate a decaying monastery and the bell heard the previous night. Attached to its clapper is one of Jerry's shoes! No human could have reached the clapper and no monkey had the strength to jam the shoe on it.

City Slickers -:- Daily Short Short Story

By OTIS ADELBERT KLINE

John Marlow, crook de luxe, straightened the lapels of his immaculately tailored mess jacket, twirled the pointed ends of his tiny black moustache and permitted his gaze to wander languidly over the assemblage of diners and merry-makers at the Ivermoor.

His roving glance stopped suddenly—focused on the brilliant tell-tale sparkle at the throat of a stout, middle-aged woman who dined alone at a table edging the dance floor. Her ample figure was richly and modishly gowned in a creation that bespoke the genius of an exclusive Parisian modiste. And as she raised her glass of sauterne to her full, rouge-reddened lips a diamond of rare beauty sparkled on her plump hand. Marlow noted that the table next to hers was unoccupied.

"Sorry, sir, it's reserved."

"For what time?"

"Ten o'clock, I believe."

Marlow drew out a fat wallet and extracted a $5 bill.

"It is only 8:30," he said, "and I shan't need it for more than an hour."

Marlow leisurely selected a cork-tipped cigaret from his case, lighted it and glanced casually at the necklace which glowed so alluringly on the ample bosom of the dowager.

She consumed the souffle to the last fluffy spoonful. The waiter brought coffee and lighted the cigaret she produced from a jeweled case. Then she looked up for the first time full into the eyes of Marlow. The orchestra began to play.

Marlow sprang to his feet, brushed past a couple headed for the dance floor, and, stopping at the lady's table, bent gallantly and asked:

"May I have the honor of this dance?"

She fingered her lorgnette for a moment as if undecided. Then she looked up with a coy, kittenish smile and answered:

"Yes, Mr. ——?"

"Of the New York Van der Bies?" he asked.

A waiter came quickly at his signal.

"A bottle of champagne," he ordered.

Marlow drank sparingly and saw to it that his companion got most of the champagne. But she didn't seem to mind. On the contrary, she disposed of it so swiftly that he marveled at her capacity—and began to grow worried about the prospective costs of the evening's "job," for he had only $20 left in his purse in real money. The bills which gave it so opulent an appearance were stage money.

Soon he found it incumbent upon him to order a second bottle of champagne.

In the cab he contrived a bit of love making, to which his companion responded most appreciatively.

The next morning he passed up his breakfast, so eager was he to reach the shop of Uncle Moe, the fence.

Uncle Moe screwed his glass into his eye and squinted at the stones for a moment. Then he passed them across the counter.

"You meaan they're paste?"

"Oh, they're pretty goot imitations."

Marlow dropped the necklace into his pocket and walked out. A few moments later as he was hurrying up State street a lively little Scottie dashed in front of him, entangling his legs in its leash. He looked up and recognized the dog's mistress with a start of surprise. It was his companion of the night before.

"You!" he exclaimed. Then he dipped his hand into his pocket and produced the necklace.

"Here's your phony necklace!"

While carping critics deny that it is good practice for the Administration to depend upon the so-called Brain Trust, defenders of the Administration declare it is very good practice. The Old Tommytroller Days

We piped the boy marble champions doing their stuff on the municipal green and was amazed when the winner got a gold watch.

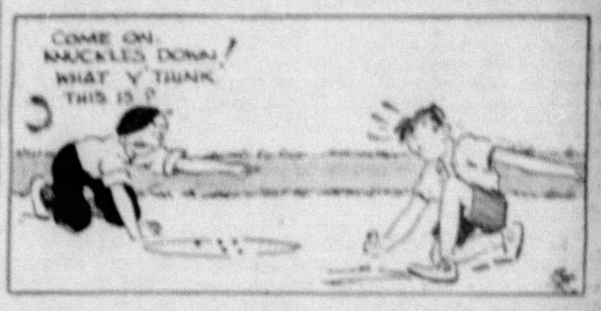
When we were kids the only thing we got for that was chased.

We concede that our marble popping was noisy, loud and argumentative.

There was no such thing as losing a shooter in fair play. If a kid didn't pull off his opponent's ears by the roots, we figured he had lost his competitive spirit.

Another strange thing about the nerdle champs of today is that they have clean faces, their hair is brushed with the grain and they play in their best go-to-meeting clothes.

Would a mother of 1893 let you do that, me lads? Not if a father of the same chronological vintage was alert and powerful enough to boot you around a 60-acre lot. You could shoot agates, but you did it attired in the best corduroy or burlap that twine could patch together. Those were the old knitting days when you dropped two and purled one. And nobody ever got rich doing that.



The nomenclature has changed all around since then, and maybe O. O. McIntyre might straighten us out on that. He was an established authority on marbles when the writer was still a springer.

How is it that there ain't any more stonies anymore? where are the nerdles? What's become of the tommytrollers?

We have asked a hundred 1934 kids about tommytrollers, and nobody knows a thing about them. They were about the size of a grape fruit. When you dropped one on a clay nerdle it acted like a depth bomb in the North Sea.

They still have the moonies, the glassies, the milkies and the cats'-eyes. But our outdoor weapon was the tommytroller. When you smacked them from taw, they stayed smacked. And the kids don't seem to play pots anymore. In 20 years in Central Park we have seen only one game of pots with its spans, its edgings-ups and its knuckle-downs.

And what became of that old battle yell, "fen histings?" Histing was the crime unforgivable in oldtime nerdles.

It meant lifting the knuckles off the turf and getting an illegal follow-through transmitted from the body to the shoulder, through the elbow and the wrist to the propelling thumb. It wasn't cricket. Yet, when we look over the records of business, crime, politics and diplomacy, we find there has been a lot of histing going on since those tommytrollers days.

Where Salvation Lies

Mr. Ford, Too, Thinks Old-Fashioned Americanism Will Cure Our Ills

The appeal of William Randolph Hearst in a recent editorial, to re-affirm our loyalty to American traditions and American institutions and fundamental American principles, concluded with the expression of his belief that "therein lies our salvation in any and every emergency."

The same thought finds expression by Henry Ford, whose simple and homely words, uttered from time to time, are read and pondered with respect throughout the country, because they are backed by experience, practical success and a vindicated and life-long confidence in the American character.

In an interview a few days ago, Mr. Ford expressed his conviction that plain old-fashioned Americanism is the force that will save the nation from its economic and social afflictions.

He believes that the real foundation of the country's greatness has been its ability to solve problems "that didn't have any answer in the back of the book."

Is this a fling at the professors and the brain trusters, of whom, by the way, we seem to hear less as the days go by?

Perhaps Mr. Ford also had them in mind when he spoke of the futility in much of our education system which turns out so many graduates looking for a job, who are "not fitted for any job in the world unless it be lecturing."

The thesis that "America must choose" between a surrendered freedom and a life of bureaucratic regimentation, so volubly proclaimed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, is impliedly dismissed by Mr. Ford with the assertion that "mankind should produce forever more,"—not destroy the products of useful labor, not plow under growing crops, not slay live-stock.

Mr. Ford has little patience with these strange approaches to human well-being, which the book-fed experts have been dinning into our ears.

The old-fashioned sober wisdom of this viewpoint is much needed at the nation's capital where the theory-mad innovators are multiplying blunders faster than anyone can count them, and piling up their tragic miscalculations into a careening tower of folly.

"IT IS AMERICANISM," thunders the master builder, "THAT IS GOING TO SAVE AMERICA!"

"The recovery we need," he continues, "is our spirit of American independence and individualism."

Asked if he saw hope in the outlook, he replied firmly, "I do—in the American people."

This is a view which the people are clearly coming to—with a spontaneity of agreement, which the dotty new dealers have no conception of, and with a rapidity which is remarkable, considering the false bait and ballyhoo which have been used to confuse their thinking and distract their normal good judgment.

The Canal Petition

Youngstown's Proposal Should Receive Pittsburgh's Whole-Hearted Co-operation

Under the direction of the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce an intense effort is being made by the people of the Beaver and Mahoning valleys to persuade the Public Works Administration to finance the improvement of those streams from the Ohio River to Struthers. A canal from Struthers to Lake Erie is also planned. This would give us the waterway connecting the Ohio and the Great Lakes for which Pittsburgh business men have been striving for nearly half a century.

Army engineers have expressed a favorable opinion of the project. The time is ripe for a concerted effort to persuade the United States Government to proceed with it.

Next Monday (August 6th) is to be observed in the Youngstown District as "Canal Day." An attempt will be made to obtain at least 200,000 signatures to petitions to President Roosevelt for PWA funds for the canal.

Pittsburgh should join whole-heartedly in this campaign.

Flying Made Safer

The Pennsylvania Mountains Are No Longer "The Graveyard of Aviation"

An Associated Press dispatch, telling of new airplane devices to protect fliers from the dangers of rain and fog, says they will be tested in the Pennsylvania mountains, "the graveyard of aviation."

It is hardly fair to continue to call our state "the graveyard of aviation," for while additional safety appliances are most assuredly to be welcomed, flying over the Alleghenies has already been made reasonably safe.

Pennsylvania now has eight airways crossing the state. Lighting them at night are more than 100 beacons from 10 to 15 miles apart. Seventeen emergency landing fields have been constructed along these airways at 60-mile intervals. Seven emergency landing strips in forest areas are also planned.

Gov. Pinchot, a student pilot, says he feels as safe in an airplane as in an automobile.

A Notable Date

The 75th Anniversary of the First Oil Well Calls For a Great Celebration

Make a mental note of August 27, 1859, as one of the outstanding dates in the world's history. It was on that date that Col. Edwin L. Drake struck oil and gave the world a great new industry.

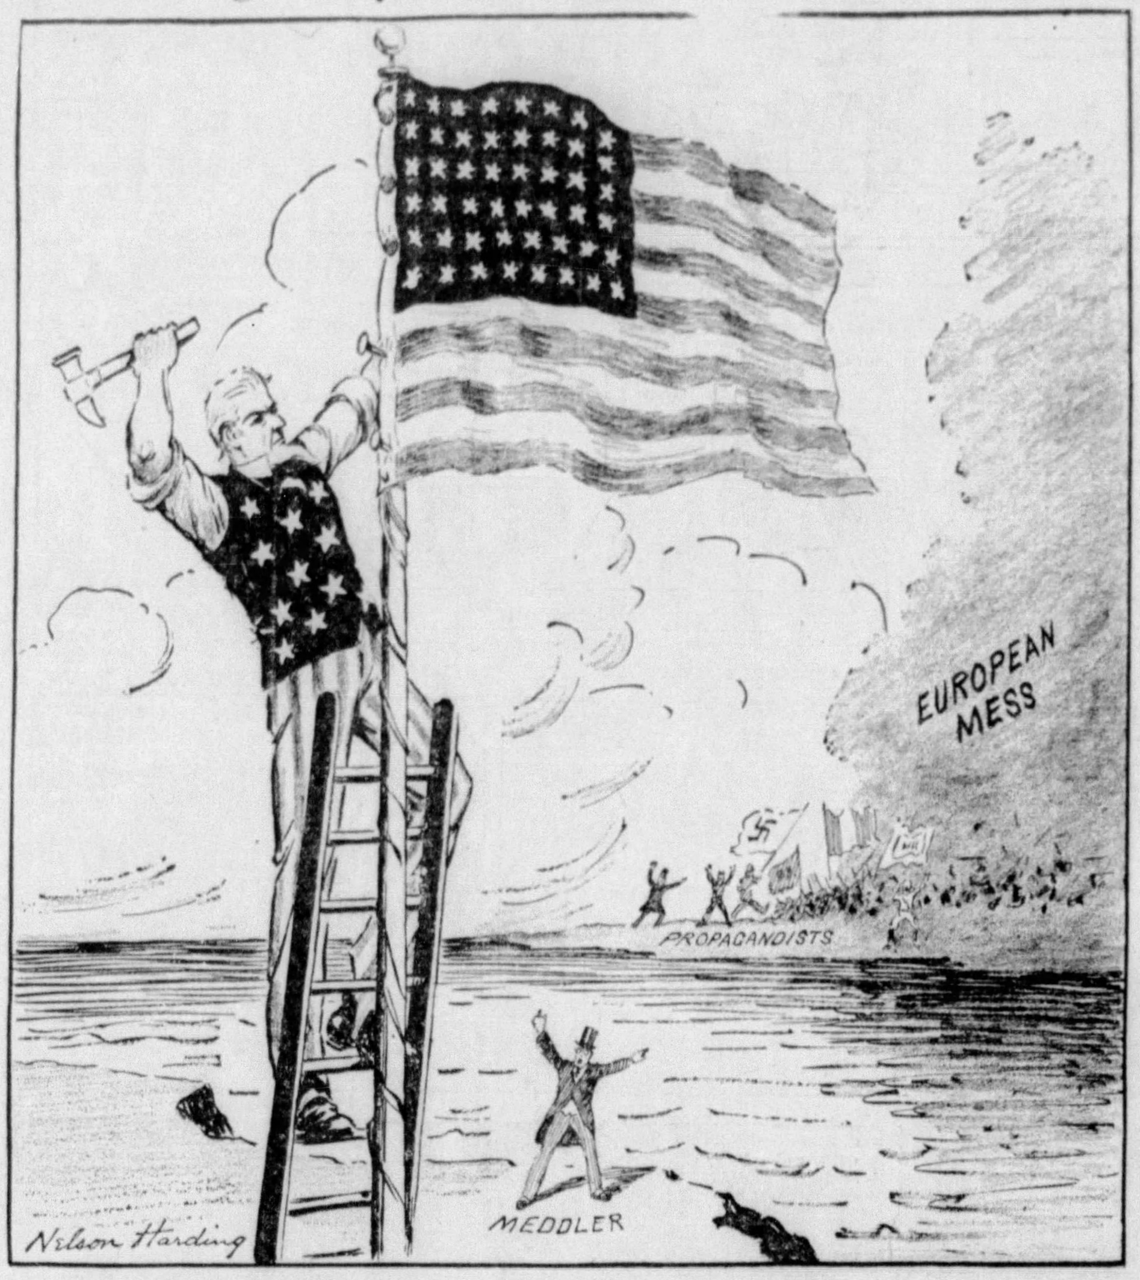
Since Drake showed the way 350,000 wells have been drilled.

The Drake well was at Titusville, and in commemoration of the 75th anniversary a park surrounding the site will be dedicated on August 27.

The leading oil men of the world plan to celebrate the anniversary. But it is not only they who should mark the day. The whole world has benefited by Drake's pioneering and should give him a grateful thought, as his enterprise is commemorated.

'This Flag Stays at Home'

By Nelson Harding



"Here's notice to a cockeyed world,"
Announces Uncle Sam,
"That if they start another war,
I'll stay just where I am.

"I'll nail my colors to the staff,
At home they shall remain.
This flag in other people's wars
Shall not be seen again!"

YOUTH OR AGE

By Winifred Black

CAN A MIDDLE-AGED man do more work and better work than a young man?

Mr. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, says he can.

Well now, I'll tell you what I think.

If I had a piece of brilliant, dangerous, dashing bit of work to be done, I'd give it to a young man.

If I had a piece of work that required a long pull, and a strong pull, patience, endurance and wise balance of judgment, I'd pick out a man of middle age to do it.

Youth is too busy having a good time, falling in love and out again, sizing himself up against other men of his years, dreaming, hoping, planning to do tremendously efficient work.

He's like a young colt just out of the pasture, high spirited, full of life, crazy to go—but you can't count on him. He changes his mind too often.

The middle-aged man has forgotten a good deal about the green pastures and the gay, joyous gallops around the field—he's settled into harness.

He knows how to accommodate his strength and his endurance and his patience to the job.

To be plain about it, he's broken into the harness and it doesn't scare him half to death to know that a stranger is going to ride him into new fields.

Of course, when you come right down to it though, it's all a matter of personality.

Some people hate work and they'll never do it well, because they're always watching the clock and wondering what she will say when she sees him in his brand new outfit this evening.

He's too busy living to take much time working—if he can help it.

Many a young man who is a bit of a failure at 30 turns into something a good deal like success when he's 40 years old.

He's steadied into his pace, he knows what he can do and what he can't do, and he has made up his mind to make the best of things and not to expect miraculous and bewildering delight every time he tackles a new job.

If two men applied to me for work, one of them 40 and the other 25, I think I'd be inclined to take the middle-aged man and give him the job, if he knew his work and knew that he knew it.

That is, if I didn't want to look too far ahead.

In the long run, of course, a young man is the best bet, he'll be middle aged when the middle-aged man is elderly, and that means something.

Here in America we don't look very far ahead—we don't have to do that; there's always some new emergency to meet, and it's time enough to meet it when it arrives.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Often you are annoyed by the elderly person who goes through a revolving door slowly, steps carefully from a street car or drives slowly.

Age brings more caution and, naturally, makes it impossible to move as the younger person does.

In some of the older countries such a condition exists, but in our country, there seems to be a disposition to push aside the person who has difficulty in keeping up with the procession.

The aged person is made to feel that he is in the way, and that he should keep off the main arteries of activity.

In a comparatively few years you will be a person of this sort.

This thought, and the consideration of your parents who have perhaps lost their former agility and vitality, should cause you to be more tolerant of the one who hinders you in the mad rush.

It is too bad that there is so little reverence for old age.

One of the saddest things about approaching age is the realization that one may be considered in the way.

Are you one of those who hurt aged persons?

Will Rogers Says:

Will Rogers

WAIMEA, Hawaii, July 31.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, they got rid of all the big Democrats now and the islands can settle down to steady gossip. They can't hardly figure Mr. Roosevelt's visit out. They can't tell if he come to see them or come to get some fish or come to impress somebody. I am not naming anybody mind you that he still would stand for no monkey business in the Pacific. Anyhow, whatever he come for it was a big success that is if it wasn't for fish. The fish didn't bite but everybody else did. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I Don't Want to Be Safe

I don't want to be safe.
I don't want to be comfortable.
I don't want to be settled.
Once I wanted all these things—
I wanted them very much.
I thought they were the proof of a successful life.
I thought that lives which weren't
Safe, comfortable and settled,
Proud, satisfied and content,
Were failures.
I thought it would be tragic
To be always in danger,
Always unsettled.
I thought that way
Because I'd been taught
To think that way—
When I started life
Thought that way, too.
So, naturally,
And every one I knew
I aimed all my efforts
Toward getting these things.
I tried my best
To reach a position
Where I wouldn't be Bothered any more,
Frightened any more,
Challenged any more.
Did I reach it?
No, I never did—
'S'matter of fact,
I long since ceased
Trying to reach it.
Why'd I stop?
Here's why—
All around me I saw
Those who had reached
A place like that—
People who,
After tremendous struggle,
Or convenient compromise,
Had become safe,
Settled and content.
Then what had happened
To those people?
Horrible things
Had happened to them.
Because they were safe
And comfortable—
Because they no longer
Needed to struggle
Or be afraid,
They had grown
Soft and lazy,
Stupid and intolerant,
Complacent and self centered,
Conceited and cowardly,
A ghastly fate
Had happened to those people—
A creeping paralysis
Had overcome them—
Nothing moved in them
Any more—
As nothing moved in a paralyzed man.
Thought did not move—
Desire did not move—
Imagination did not move—
Pity did not move—
Doubt did not move—
Only a feeble,
Sluggish slime
Of peevishness moved—
None of the feelings
Which keep life
Quick, warm and eager,
Moved in them
Any more,
These safe, settled,
Comfortable, contented
People had become
Just fungus—
They were living
On other lives
As fungus lives
On healthier plants—
They seemed alive,
But in themselves
They had no life—
They meant nothing—
They were nothing—
But they didn't know it!
That was the ghastly part—
They were dead
And didn't know it!
That was what safety did
To human beings—
And if you tried
To tell them,
They looked at you
With smirking content.
So I said to myself—
"My God!
"If safety does that—
"If that's the price
"One pays for being
"Comfortable and settled,
"Me for danger!"
Looking at safe lives
I deliberately chose danger—
Now I'm fifty-one
And often tempted
To take things easy.
It wouldn't be hard,
No one would blame me—
No one blames
People over fifty
For anything.
They can be
As lazy as they want,
As rude and selfish,
Dishonorable and cowardly,
And you're not supposed
To criticize
Or challenge them—
(Which is why
(Most people over fifty
(Are a pain in the neck).
Yes, I certainly Could take things easy
If I wished—
But I don't wish
For I'm still afraid
Of just one thing.
Not of poverty
Or sickness,
Failure or dirty deals,
Or even heartbreak—
I've faced them all
And lived through them—
I'm not even afraid
Of death—real death—
But I'm plumb terrified
Of being dead
And not knowing it.

And so—
I'm ducking
Safety and comfort,
And living
In hard, lonely ways—
And that's why.

Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

Today

Today means beginning afresh;
With the blessing of dawn
Comes life, budding out like the east,
And the old things are gone.

The old things, forgotten, depart,
Be they bitter or sweet;
From out of the thought and the life
What is past must retreat.

Today bears a gift in its hands
That no other could bring.
And its light has fired torches of hope
Like the promise of spring.

In the past were there sorrows and cares?
Was there old tyranny?
Then look up and be glad and march on,
For today sets you free!

Let All Americans Heed Washington's Warning

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IN THE light of the latest eruption of the Austrian volcano, which is turning the thoughts of the great powers of Europe toward their respective swords, Americans will find it profitable to turn their eyes again toward the farewell address of George Washington.

In this immortal valedictory soon to be enshrined by the side of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States in the Hall of Archives now nearing completion midway between the Capitol and the White House will be found these prophetic words:

"Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence, she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves, by artificialities, in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

"If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off, when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality, we may at any time resolve upon, to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel.

Objections To League Court

BY A singular coincidence the news of Austria's plight and all Europe's resultant appresensions broke upon the federal city in the very week in which from the Committee on Foreign Relations—"the great committee of the Senate"—one of its veteran employes was sending to the four corners of the country, under various senatorial franks, a most timely and arresting public document.

This document contains the brief of an American jurist, statesman and diplomatist—J. Reuben Clark, Jr., of Utah—setting forth the manifold reasons why the United States should keep out of the League of Nations Court — erroneously called the World Court.

After giving all the negative and affirmative arguments against implicating ourselves in this "artificial tie" with the vicissitudes of European politics and with "the combinations and collisions of her friendships," Mr. Clark who was the worthy successor of the late Dwight W. Morrow as American Ambassador to Mexico, says:

"I have touched upon a few of the ramifications which are incident to our membership in the League Court and indicated a few dangers which need to be explored. I give notice there are many others.

"Furthermore, I recur to the basic principle laid down at the beginning of my statement that the people of the United States have solemnly declared their unwillingness to become members of the League of Nations, and I ask the Committee on Foreign Relations to consider whether by joining this court and so bringing ourselves within the power and jurisdiction of the League, as also subject to some of the most drastic and iniquitious provisions of the League covenant, we should not violate the people's mandate and grossly betray their trust."

Ratification Will Be Urged

WHEN THE new Congress convenes the Senate will again be urged by internationalists to ratify the League Court protocols in spite of the admonitions of the Farewell Address, the warnings and appeals of Adams and Jefferson and Madison and Monroe, of Abraham Lincoln and Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt. It is the most vital question now before the Senate.

In view of what is again happening in Europe—happenings which prove that Europe has not changed with the years—every candidate for the Senate ought to tell the people of his state whether he agrees with the argument of Ambassador Clark that we ought not to go into the League of Nations either through the front door of the covenant or the back door of its court. It is a perfectly fair question and the people are entitled to an answer before they go to the polls next November to elect one-third of the membership of the Senate.

Going into the League Court is only another way of entangling "our peace" in the "toils" of the next European war.

Diamond Business, Directly Affected by Economic Conditions In the United States, Is Improving

By Edwin C. Hill

AS GOES the United States so goes the business of selling diamonds, which is why things have been looking up a bit lately in the market for the most brilliant and most glamorous of all minerals. With times somewhat better, at least in comparison with the preceding three years, the American public is becoming diamond conscious again. So the experts say, and their deductions are borne out by the report of a profit for the famous De Beers Company of South America. In the last fiscal year De Beers made three quarters of a million dollars against a deficit of a quarter of a million in 1932.

Kimberley and De Beers are two names synonymous with diamonds. What Dawson City was to the Klondike so was Kimberley to the diamond rush, and what the Hudson Bay Company is to furs, the De Beers Company is to diamonds. But Kimberley today is a stagnant little city, and the great hole in its center, from which comes the jewels, is quiet and idle. De Beers is not working its great mine, a mile in circumference and having a depth of some 1,500 feet.

Keep Output Down To Boost Prices

IT IS the company's policy to control the output so as to keep up prices. And with a handsome supply on hand, De Beers will wait until the demand again makes it necessary to send down an army of natives, at the wage of $1.50 a day, into the blue pit.

While the South African fields yield about 98 per cent of the world's diamond output, the stone has been found all over the world, even in the United States, and, as generally agreed, is of volcanic origin. The diamonds of antiquity came from India, the largest of these being the Great Mogul, taken from the fabulous mines of Golconda and first described by Tavernier, a French traveler, who saw it in India in 1665. This stone weighed 787 carats. Its whereabouts is unknown, but it is believed that the Great Mogul was cut up and that part of it is the famous Kohinoor.

This gem, seized from an Indian prince during the British invasion of the Punjab, was presented to Queen Victoria by the East India Company to become part of the British crown jewels. It is interesting to note that the world's fourth largest diamond, found this year by a poor prospector in Prestoria, is of almost the same size as the Great Mogul, which for centuries held rank as the most marvelous stone in the world.

This Jonker diamond, named after Jacobus Jonker, 62-year-old bearded prospector, weighs 726 carats, which is about five ounces, is pure white and like an egg in size and shape. Jonker, the father of seven children, had been digging for 18 years without success. He sat in his hut one day last January while his son and a native wearily worked the claim. Suddenly the native stopped in amazement. There in the bucket of gravel he had been washing was a great stone. He began cleaning it feverishly and then, realizing his find, shouted:

"Master, master, I have found it!"

That night Jonker tied the stone around his wife's neck and while she tried to sleep he, two of his sons and two friends kept guard with loaded revolvers. In the morning they had the diamond in safekeeping and in another day he had sold it to Sir Ernest Oppenheimer on behalf of a syndicate for $315,000.

First Diamond Found by Boy

THE DISCOVERY of diamonds in South Africa goes back only 67 years. A little boy playing on the shore of the Orange River came upon a pretty stone which he took home. His mother noticed the luster, and after the youngster had tired of the new found toy and had thrown it into the dirt heap in the yard, she happened to mention it to a neighbor. He asked to see the pebble and, digging it out, they gave it to him.

That pebble, the first diamond found in South Africa, was sold for $2,500 to the Governor of Cape Town, and it led to the diamond rushes and the diamond mining which have since yielded close on to a billion dollars worth of this pure carbon material which volcanoes, ages ago, deposited beneath the South African plain.

The Jonker find occurred only three miles from the Premier mine where, in 1905, the Cullinan, greatest of all diamonds, shone through the blue earth to dazzle the world. That stone, weighing more than a pound, was sold to the Transvaal Government, for $800,000, for presentation to the King Edward VII. And before it had been cut up into nine stones, the King looked at it and said:

"If I had seen it in the road, I should have kicked it aside as a lump of glass."
